Citizen's Holman Committee Leaves for Albany Hearing; Otis Hopeful of Exoneration

By Otto Doelling

The independent citizen's "Committee for Nat Holman" preparing to go to Albany next Monday to support the case of the former basketball coach. Professor Emeritus William B. Otis (English), chairman of the committee, stated at a thirty page brief prepared by Attorney James V. Hayes for the defense of Mr. Holman has been termed "irrefutable" by the four judges who are members of his committee.

Dr. Otis stated that most people are confused as to the real issues of the case and he attacked the Board of Higher Education for taking advantage of this confusion. The committee was formed last week with the aim of focusing public attention on the Nat Holman case, which is scheduled to be reviewed May 24 by Lewis Wilson, State Commissioner of Education.

"There was a time," he said, "when an injustice of this sort could have caused a small revolution at the College."

Dr. Otis admitted that the committee has not made any progress in uncovering the record of the March 3 meeting of the BHE which rejected the findings of the majority of its trial committee which exonerated Professor Holman. The Board found him guilty of "neglect of duty and conduct becoming a teacher."

"In America," Dr. Otis stated, "man has a right to know the charges and he should have an equal right to answer those charges, but as yet the only information of the March 3 meeting that is available is the record of the vote. If the Board did uncover subsequent information on Professor Holman it should have been made public."

The committee released a two-page report to the press yesterday, which sets forth the "true facts" in the Holman case. The report is signed by one hundred names including those of Eddie Kantor, Lazarus Joseph and Norman Cousins.

Seniors May Apply for Cohen Award

Graduating seniors are eligible to apply for a two hundred dollar scholarship to be used for graduate study. The award, the Morris-R. Cohen Memorial Scholarship, is sponsored by the Cohen Houses of House Plan.

The funds will be granted on the basis of three factors: scholarship, extra-curricular activities and level of aspiration.

In addition to listing any awards or honors he has received, the applicant will be asked for a comprehensive statement of his immediate plans and long-range goals for professional development. This statement will be the basis for estimating his level of aspiration.

Applications may be obtained from the Department of Student Life, 120 Main, and will be accepted until next Wednesday.

The late Morris Raphael Cohen, noted philosopher and educator, fought at the College for many years.

Prof. Nat Holman

To Honor Collier

John Collier, retiring professor of sociology and anthropology, will be the guest of honor at the Student-Faculty Tea this afternoon at 2:30 in Knittle Lounge.

Professor Collier, who will retire next month, will be succeeded by his wife, Dr. Laura M. Thompson. A luncheon honoring Professor Collier and welcoming his wife will be held in the Faculty Dining Room at 1.

For many years U. S. Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Professor Collier has often been highly praised as "the man who did the most to emancipate the American Indian."

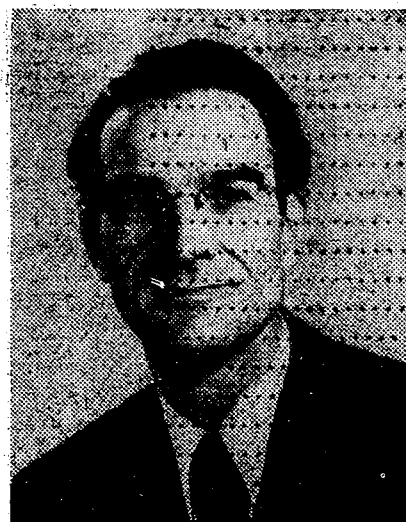

Athletic Coddling Inquiry Calls Over 100 of Staff

By Jack Billig

Over 100 professors and instructors are now being questioned in connection with the alleged coddling of athletes during the College's "big-time" basketball days, The Campus learned yesterday.

The inquiry is being conducted under the direction of

Presses Probe

Pres. Buell G. Gallagher

Pres. Buell Gallagher who announced last March that "the investigation of past athletic practices was going forward in other areas. By "other areas" the president referred to mal-practices which may have occurred during the building of the "basketball empire," but which were not directly pursued in the Sand-Holman investigation.

The actual interrogation is being carried out by Mr. Andrew J. O'Neil, a private investigator, who was instrumental in gathering the evidence used by the prosecution in the Sand-Holman Board of Higher Education trial. It has not been announced, however whether the results of this investigation will lead to charges against any faculty members, or whether it will merely serve to acquaint President Gallagher with past practices. The president said that he could not comment on what possible action would be taken until the investigation is completed.

The inquiry, which began last week and which will probably continue for another week, is being conducted in order to determine why an unusually high number of student athletes registered in sections taught by certain professors and whether these athletes received preferential treatment in terms of marks or assignments. Since the majority of the athletes who played on varsity teams were physical education majors, the professors being questioned are predominantly from the Hygiene and Education Departments. Council Votes To Co-Sponsor Fall Field Day

Student Council voted Wednesday night to co-sponsor an annual College Field Day. The first such event is tentatively scheduled for late October.

The affair, also sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega and the four class councils, will feature a bus ride to a state park, a picnic, and Field Day competition among clubs, fraternities and individuals who wish to participate.

According to Charles Fremed '55, APO director for the outing, it was planned "because we felt that the College should have at least one affair in the fall to go with the spring boat ride. If the first one is as big a success as we believe it will be, Field Day can be expanded into one of the biggest and most popular events of the college year."

A committee, consisting of six delegates each from the SC Social Functions Agency and APO and representatives from the class councils, will meet over the summer to draw up final plans and make arrangements for the event. "There is a probability," said Fremed, "that Field Day will be held under the direction of the Hygiene Department."

Final information concerning the time and place of the outing, as well as arrangements for purchasing tickets, will be released early in the fall semester.

Final Exams

Sample final exams are now on sale in the Student Council office, 20 Main, for one cent per sheet, announced Howard Loewenstein '54 and Judson Yalkut, '57, co-chairmen of the SC Final Exams Agency.

A schedule of hours during which they will be sold is posted in the office.

Past finals in Civil, Electrical, and Mechanical Engineering are available for room use in the Tech Library.

Plans Set for New Grad Course

By Louise Gross

Details have been completed for a graduate program dealing with the New York Metropolitan Area, to be instituted at the College in September, announced Prof. Oscar Janowsky (Director, Division of Graduate Studies).

The program, which Professor Janowsky describes as "a study of American civilization as reflected in the focus of life in a great metropolitan community," will cover the fields of art, economics, education, government, history, literature, music, philosophy, psychology and sociology.

"A program of this kind is unique," Professor Janowsky said. "No college in this vicinity has a comparable one."

Courses to be offered include: New York in the Atlantic Civilization; The Political Process in the Metropolis; New York as a Force in Shaping American Literature; History of the City of New York; Dynamics of the Metropolitan Economy.

A special seminar and colloquium will attempt to integrate all fields of the study.

The program, made possible by a teaching grant from the Lucius N. Littauer Foundation and a research grant from the Rockefeller Foundation, is open to any graduate from a college of approved standing who has maintained an average of approximately "B" or over in the social sciences and humanities.

The courses will be given between the hours of 4 and 8 so that people who work may attend. According to Professor Janowsky, "A full-time student can complete the course in a year." The program leads to the Master of Arts degree with a specialization in New York Areas Studies.

Four assistantships, distributed among the fields of social sciences, English, art and music, will be awarded to successful candidates. Professor Janowsky urges that students with high records should apply for the posts, each worth 1500 dollars.

The teaching staff will include members of the College's faculty from the Main Center and the Baruch School, as well as instructors from the three other municipal colleges. Among the faculty from the Main Center will be Prof. Michael Kraus (History), Prof. Samuel Middlebrook (English), Prof. Isaac B. Berkson (Education) and Prof. William D. Gettel (Music). The chairman of the program is Prof. John A. Davis (Government).

"I am very proud of the program," Professor Janowsky said. "The Faculty Committee has been working for two years to prepare it. The other graduate schools in the College of Liberal Arts have an excellent record and we intend to maintain this fine record."

The complete enrollment schedule and applications for admission may be obtained by writing to the Director of Graduate Studies, care of the College.

HP Council Ends Election Deadlocks

A tie in the balloting for House Plan president resulted in the decision being placed in the hands of the HP Council which selected Stuart Schwartz '56.

The Council also elected the new treasurer. Although one of the candidates had a one vote margin, the results were rejected since a majority of the total House Plan membership did not vote in the week long elections. Phil Mischel '56 defeated Dave Gorfer '56 in the resulting vote.

Joel Resnick '56 and Carole Mishkin '57 will serve as vice-president and secretary respectively next fall. Resnick ran unopposed and Miss Mishkin had so wide a margin over her opponent that the fifty votes needed to validate the election could not have altered the results.

Dr. Marvin Magalaner (English) was named "the faculty member who has done the most to further student-faculty relations" by the Council.

The following is a list of appropriations for Student organizations made by Student Faculty Fee Committee. ROTC Grads Must Undergo New Training

All Reserve Officer Training Corps graduates will now be required to take training as Rangers or airborne officers, according to a story printed in the New York Times last week. Such a policy would affect all new second lieutenant, including those ROTC graduates from the College.

Rangers are specially trained, commando-type officers whose training under simulated combat conditions requires a two month period. The airborne course, including parachute training, runs five weeks.

News of the rigorous training was received favorably by most of the Advanced Corps cadets at the College.

Major R. H. Strecker (Adjutant) said that he had received no directive indicating such a change. "If the story is correct, I will receive such a directive through regular army channels in about a week," he said.

Investigation

The investigation has met with mixed reaction from those professors who have already been questioned. Prof. James A. Dawson (Chairman, Biology) who was questioned by Mr. O'Neil last week, said that he told the investigator that "no one ever approached me for preferential treatment." He would not comment further on the investigation.

Prof. Carlos Wagner (Hygiene) also said that he knew of no instances of preferential treatment in his classes or in the Hygiene Department. "The inquiry is perfectly all right," he said, "but I don't know why they're conducting it this late. I think they should have done it a long time ago. To keep harping on these things does not help the College students."

Thirty

By Morton Sheinman

The valises are stuffed, the lights have been turned off and the rent is paid in full. The four-year lease has expired and thank God for that, I'm ready to check out.

There are others who will accompany me. I don't know they've filched a few towels for souvenirs, but larceny has controlled my own behavior. You can't park in one spot for four years without something rubbing off.

The recollections I'll take with me are entirely my own. Nobody will miss them. Time will, of course, play strange tricks on the brain and the memories will run together, blurry like an aching morning after, but cherished just the same.

It will be interesting to see just what sticks longest, the important events or the nonsensical ones. Certainly, the first "F" won't be forgotten. After the chagrin had worn away, I found myself a member of a lodge of martyrs—those who had tapped out on May 61. The organization was non-sectarian and there were no dues. I had a large roster.

The first time I met Nat Holman will always stay with me. It was just after his team had won the double-championship, and the Sports Editor of this paper asked me to interview him. We sat in his office, which was located in Lewisohn Stadium. The walls and his desk were covered with the mementoes collected by a man who had given his life to sports. I was more than just a little awed.

Holman, immaculate in his custom-tailored suit, must have sensed my uneasiness for he tried to act as gracious as he knew how. It was hard to warm up to the man, however, for Holman speaks as though each one of his words was being delivered to an alumni banquet.

An awful amount of criticism has been leveled at Holman during the past few years, but it should be remembered that to him basketball was a way of life. He loved it and everything connected with it. I think he still does. Detecting flaws in something you revere is a difficult chore.

I never failed to get a kick out of springtime on the campus. It was nice to be able to hold recitations outdoors. If there was any teacher I regretted not having, it was Professor Susskind of the German Department, who conducts his classes in Lewisohn Stadium whenever the weather permits. His ability to lecture on verb conjugation while ducking line drives is unique. I don't know the man, but I'll lay odds his spring students do better than people taking him in the colder months.

I did have a class with Chief Miller, though. Miller, whose age is a subject for philosophers rather than historians and whose voice was once described as a booming falsetto, is the undisputed storyteller of this community. Curiously enough, his tales are usually true. He once was taking some of the guys on his lacrosse team home after a game and he drove along the West Side Highway. One of the athletes happened to admire an elegant-looking apartment house which overlooked the river.

"It's mine," Miller declared. "I own it." The Chief was immediately denounced as a villain and a fraud. Without another word—a rarity in itself—he drove to the house and parked there. The janitor came over and looked into the car. "Hello, boss," he said.

I only attended one Student Council meeting, while I was here. That, I would rather forget.

But it's all over now. The exams and the lines for books are the coffee for seven cents. And when I shout "Altagaroo" it won't be the same. It was a good thing, though, this college bit. I'm glad it's finished, but I'm even happier I decided to start. I think I better stop now, before this gets too weepy.

Move over, Barney. Make a little room on that park bench for me.

Term's Largest Art Exhibit Feature Students' Work

By Hank Grossman

For the next few weeks, the fourth floor of the main building will become the scene of the term's last, largest, most varied art exhibit.

Sponsored by the College's Art Department, the exhibit will feature the works of graduate and undergraduate students in both elementary and advanced art courses.

A showing of paintings will occupy 416 rooms while other art forms, such as wood-cuts and dry-point, will be displayed along the length of the fourth floor corridor.

Graphic arts will be represented by students of Prof. Hans Kerk, himself an artist of world fame. Among those contributing to the display are Jules Maitland '55, whose work may be seen in the current issue of "Prometheus," and Murray Reich '54.

Mr. Ralph Fabri, president of Audubon artists and a member of the National Academy of Art, and Mr. Robert Borgatta, are participating in the exhibition, have had their own works on display. Included in the showing will be paintings by Schuman '54, Charles Meyers and George Ford '55.

Many Exhibits

The variety and excellence of the displays presented thus far are due to the planning of Mr. Rothenberg who is responsible for the administration of all exhibits.

This exhibit is part of the department's policy of giving as many showings as possible during the semester. Among the courses which could be seen during the term were commercial design, illustration, drawing and art education.

Next semester, the showings will be held on an even larger scale if Manhattanville is available for use as an exhibition site.

Cricket Dance Topping Tonight

The "Cricket Hop," the last day Night Dance of the term, will be held tonight at 8:00 in the Main Gym. The dance is sponsored by the Cricket Club, the Day and Evening Student Councils, and the Day Night Dance Committee.

The program will include entertainment by members of the Cricket Club. Free refreshments will be served.

LETTERS

ATTACKS EVANGELISTS

To the Editor:

Mr. Domenicucci has told only half the truth in his letter to The Campus in defense of the Evangelists. Perhaps he was not present at the opening of this meeting. These so-called "Evangelists" made some extremely degrading statements prior to the jeering that took place. These people took it upon themselves to mock some of the prayers of my religion and others'. Would you or any man stand for another calling his religion a farce?

I respect the rights of others, and I want their respect in return. We are not here to convert each other, but to live, learn and benefit together. We are intolerant only of those who are intolerant of us.

Stadium Keyboard Exercises Keep Orchestra Leader Trim

By Eli Sadownick

Prof. Fritz Jahoda (Music), who will conduct the College orchestra at the semi-annual concert tomorrow evening in the Great Hall, has found a novel way to keep his fingers nimble.

Early morning piano practice in Lewisohn Stadium helps Professor Jahoda stay in shape for performances which he gives in his spare time as a third of the New York Trio. The Austrian-born musician has his own key to a private room in the South Tower of the Stadium. While the maestro's fingers parade over the keys, the 8 o'clock ROTC drill classes march on the field below.

Professor Jahoda made his first public appearance at the tender age of ten and claims he could read notes on the musical scale before he could read letters of the alphabet.

He has been leading the orchestra at concerts since the first one was given in May, 1947, a year after he came to the College.

Professor Jahoda raves about his soloist for tomorrow evening, Bernard Jacobowitz '55, who will offer Beethoven's Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, No. 3 in C Minor. Jacobowitz is "extremely gifted" according to the professor.

Tickets for the concert, which will begin at 8:30, may be obtained for seventy-five cents at the Music Department.

After some male mice started a brawl which cost the lives of two, a student came upon the idea to chloroform them to end the bloodshed. The saddened student's only reply was, "I tried to save them from themselves."

Nine Ends Season Against Kingsmen

By Hank Grossman

It's been a long hard season, but it will finally end, Saturday, when the Beavers meet Brooklyn College at the Kingsmen's field. The Mishkinmen, in an effort to drag Brooklyn down to the depths in which they now dwell will send Bill Konig to the mound in the morning affair.

The way things have been going all year, however, even a well pitched game by the big right-hander will not be enough to overcome the Brooklynites, for the Lavender hitters have repeatedly failed to give the hurlers any offensive support.

The Kingsmen will, in all probability oppose Konig with south-paw Bill Anderson. Anderson held the Beavers to one run in Wednesday's abbreviated game, and with two days rest, may be able to put the hex on the Beaver hitters all over again.

Coach Sol "Skip" Mishkin, bemoaning the Lavender batting slump commented that "We've been getting men on the bases, but we just haven't come up with the key hits. At the beginning of the season, Nat Baretz was carrying the entire club along with a splurge of RBIs. But when Nat's hitting tailed off at midseason, no one moved up to take his place. As a result, even though the team has gotten good pitching and adequate fielding, they have been losing all the close games.

Mishkin is planning no lineup changes for the diamond finale. Larry Cutler will lead off playing second base, followed by short-stop Raoul Nacinovich. Nat Baretz, the centerfielder, will bat third with Raoul's brother Paul, playing left field in the clean-up spot. Batting fifth will be first baseman John Ryan, Catcher Jimmy Cohen hits sixth followed by Vito Giovanniello. Eddie Lubitz, playing third, will bat eighth.

The Beavers thus far have compiled a three and eight league record. Their victories have come against NYU, in the season opener, and Wagner twice. Bill Konig hurled the College to their 7-1 romp over the Violets, but since then he has fallen down considerably, and now sports a 2-6 overall record.

Although the Beavers are now in sole possession of last place in the Metropolitan Collegiate Baseball Conference, if they beat Brooklyn Saturday, and either Wagner or the Kingsmen go down to defeat in their season finals, then the Lavender will have some company in their cellar position.

Whatever happens, it's still a far cry from the club that was last year's league champion.

Bohrer, Burd Net Captains Next Season

With the net season having been completed Saturday, the College's tennis team elected two new co-captains, Jay Bohrer and Warren Burd. Walt Thomas, the forty-six year old undergraduate was elected honorary captain.

The Beavers wound up what coach Harry Karlin termed "a very successful season" with a three and five record. "The scores indicate that we could have won all but two of our matches if the breaks had gone the other way," said the net coach.

Near Upset

The highlight of the tennis season came in the finale, Saturday, when the Beavers almost pulled a major upset as they were edged out by highly touted Fordham University, 5-4. This was the first time in many years that the College scored any points against the Rams.

Only two regulars, Capt. Cliff Huffman and Larry Ginsberg, will graduate in June, and coach Karlin already has tentative replacements available. In addition, the netmen will gain the services of Guy Ferrara, a freshman who has caught the coach's eye this season. "He will definitely add to the team's strength," said Karlin.

According to the coach, the players who have given the outstanding performances during the year are Allen Jong and Walt Thomas. He cites Mel Drimmer as the player who achieved most during the year.

Runners End Season Tomorrow at B'kly

The College's track team will go to Brooklyn college tomorrow to run their last race of the season. If they cop tomorrow, it will be their fourth win in five dual meets this season and the first straight year that they have beaten the Kingsmen.

Lacrossemen In Final Tilt

Lacrosse Coach Leon Miller's warriors will attempt to improve on last year's performance when they travel to Philadelphia tomorrow to play Drexel Institute. In their last meeting, the Beavers were defeated by an embarrassing score of 20-3.

As the squad goes into the season's finale, its record is identical with last season's 3-5 mark, with this year's wins posted against the same opposition, the Alumni, Adelphi, and Lafayette.

Same Finale

Last season's final game for the squad was also against Drexel, and unless the Beavers muster up some hidden strength, which has yet to be found, it is likely that Coach Miller's squad will again go down to defeat.

In fairness to the team, it must be said that injuries have greatly hampered its chances for improvement this season. Injuries to key players like Charlie Rowe and star scorer Arnie Levinson might have reversed such defeat as the 7-6 loss to Manhasset.

The field events start at the track events at 2:45.

Coach Harold Anson Br... of the opinion that the results go either way. "They're strong in the 100 yard dash, the 220 shotput, discus, and javelin. Their shotputter, Ed Green took first place in the College Track Conference meet last Saturday, and their sprinter, M... Silver, won his event."

"The events that we should win," he continued, "are the 880, mile, 2 mile, hammer, and broad jump. Jim Spe... should take first in the 880, O'Brien should certainly win the mile, and Paul Pavlides seem to have the edge in the 2 mile. Cutler is pretty certain to out their best hammer thrower, Greenberg."

The coach also sees Joe... winning the broad jump, Fred Thompson and Gold as best bets to tally points in sprints.

If Tom O'Brien wins the run, as he is expected to, he will end his varsity career undefeated in that event in dual meet competition.
