

Tech Paper Plans Publication Oct. 14

By Sheldon Scherr

The Tech News, a publication geared exclusively to the tastes of the College's engineering students, will make its debut Oct. 14, pending final approval by the Student-Faculty Fee Committee.

This marks the second time in the history of the College that an attempt to establish a tech newspaper has been made.

The previous newspaper, a mimeographed publication, was merged with The Campus soon after its inception in the mid-forties.

Aims Stated

"Our aim," stated Daniel Rosner '55, Managing Editor, "is to publicize and add to the prestige of the School of Technology, to inform Tech students of professional and social activities on campus, and to promote active participation of Tech students in College affairs."

The paper will be an eight page, 8 1/2 by 11 photo-offset booklet, and will be distributed free of charge to alumni and students. Distribution centers will be the same as those used by the College's other newspapers. However, the bulk of the copies will be given out in the Tech Building. Four thousand copies are planned for each edition, with six issues contemplated.

Financed By Fees

Printing costs are expected to be financed by advertising and student fees. "The editors are eligible to receive a student fee allocation if they apply through IIC," Mr. Philip Brunstetter Chairman, SFFC said. "Otherwise they must put out the paper on their own for one semester before they may receive any money."

ROTC Drops 25 Students This Summer

One-sixth of the advanced corp ROTC students who attended summer camp this year failed to pass the requirements and were dropped from further reserve training.

The basic reason that twenty-five of the 152 cadets at Fort Mead, Md. and Fort Belvoir, Va. did not pass, explained Col. Paul Hamilton, was their failure to demonstrate required leadership ability under simulated service conditions.

Summer Course Compulsory

Every advanced ROTC student must take the six-week summer course sometime between his junior and senior year. Those who flunk become subject to draft regulations just as any other student at the College.

Most colleges in this section of the country send their reserves to these camps.

Campus Life Helpful

There was a possibility, he said, that groups of students living on campus would have smaller rates of failure because conditions under which they live are in some ways similar to those encountered at camp.

SC to Hear Soviet Report By Meisels

Andrew Meisels '55 will present a report on his tour of the Soviet Union to the Student Council this afternoon at 4:30 in 200 Main. Meisels, Editor of the Observation Post, spent three weeks traveling through Russia and her satellite countries. Students are invited to attend the SC meeting.

After the report by Meisels, SC will consider the question of hiring a paid manager to handle the printing and sale of sample final exams. Proponents of this plan say that this would provide for more efficient operation of this service.

Consider Crime Situation

The Council will then discuss the thefts and muggings around the College and consider action to remedy the situation.

A report will be made to the Council by the College's delegation to the National Student Association Convention. Reports will also be presented on SC Agencies, Leadership Training and Student Discount Services.

Elections Analyzed

The SC Election system will be analyzed and possible revisions will be discussed. A date for this term's elections will probably be set.

Brophy Requests Study of SFFC

By Ben Patrusky

Although referenda to change the membership of the Student-Faculty Fee Committee were passed by the student body last semester, they will not become effective unless approved by the Committee of Five, according to Dean Daniel F. Brophy (Student Life).

Committee Head

Dean Daniel F. Brophy who said that any student referenda designed to change the SFFC membership must pass through the Committee of Five.

The Committee of Five is a group set up by the General Faculty to implement the recommendations made by Pres. Buell Gallagher last term for improving student-faculty relations. Dean Brophy is the chairman.

Should Be Studied

Dean Brophy feels that no changes should be put into effect until the SFFC is examined by the Committee of Five. "The SFFC was designated in 1948 to disburse the Student Activities fee," he said, "and as such it has fulfilled its duties. No alterations should be made until sufficient study is given them."

The student referenda called for five student members, consisting of the Student Council treasurer and four non-SC members to be selected by Student Council. It also reduced the faculty representation from five to three.

Present Set-up

"The referenda should go into effect without the deliberations of the Committee of Five," Dr. Kiosk '55, SC president, said.

At present, the student membership consists of one student elected by Student Council and four others chosen, respectively, by the Technology Inter-Society Inter-fraternity Council, the Inter-class Council, House Plan, and the student publications.

Student Life Gives Subsidies To Encourage Student Trips

By Allen Kraut

As part of a program to encourage and determine student interest in camping, qualified groups can now have their trips subsidized by the Department of Student Life. This new plan has already paid for the transportation costs of outings undertaken by two groups this semester.

The monies which are used to pay the transportation costs of those groups who qualify come from the accumulated interest on a 250,000 dollar Schiff Fund grant received by the College in 1952. The grant, which is held in trust, was intended to further a camping program at the College. The grant money is invested, and only the interest, which amounts to several thousand dollars a year, is used under this new plan.

To qualify for the subsidy a group must have an approved campsite as a destination. The students must be accompanied by a faculty member and are expected to observe certain health and safety precautions.

Groups intending to take advantage of the new program should make a written request to the Department of Student Life. When the groups are large enough, buses will be chartered for the outing. Dean James S. Peace (Student Life) believes that the subsidies will aid many groups and a number of students will be benefited by them.

The desire for a camp to be owned and used by the College was expressed by many students after the death of Marion Weinberg in 1948. Miss Weinberg, a student at the college, was killed by a bus on Convent Ave. and the idea for a 'Camp Marion' in her memory soon became popular.

Don't Be Confused - Join 'The Campus'

Things aren't what they seem to be, as this picture illustrates. To get at the real facts behind the news, join THE CAMPUS tomorrow.

Come to 15M at 12:30 tomorrow and you will receive instruction in newspaper writing and techniques. During the next seven weeks, methods of covering and writing stories in the news, features and sports fields will be discussed. No previous journalistic experience is necessary, so join THE CAMPUS and get all the facts.

GRAND SLAM' STAR RETURNS:

'Great To Be Back'—Roman

Ed Roman, star center of the 1949-50 "Grand Slam" basketball team who has been readmitted to college after a two-year army hitch, feels that "it's a wonderful thing that President Gallagher and the College have seen it to give me another chance."

Ed Roman

"I'm very happy to be back at the College," commented the 6'6" hoop ace, "and I feel that I've been treated very fairly in being given the opportunity to get my degree."

Roman, who left school after the disclosure of the bribery scandals in 1951 and who received a suspended sentence for accepting a bribe to shave points in College games, revealed that he had worked at various odd jobs, including one in a TV distributing house, before receiving his army call.

Played Service Ball

In the army, he served in the transportation corps, spending time at army posts throughout the United States and in Alaska where he drove a tank. "I played a good deal of service basketball, but now that I'm home again, I intend to concentrate on my studies. Any basketball playing that I do now will be strictly for my own amusement and conditioning."

Ed, who was married last year, recently became the father of a baby boy. A social studies major, he expects to receive his B.A. degree in June. His graduation at that time, however, depends on whether the seventeen credits he took at Seattle University last semester are acceptable transfer credits at the College. An A-minus student prior to his suspension, he hopes someday to teach social studies.

"Glad It's Settled"

Commenting on the exoneration of Prof. Nat Holman (Hygiene) by the state commissioner of education, and on his subsequent reappointment as head basketball coach, Roman said, "I'm very glad to see that the affair has finally settled itself and that the College will receive no more unfavorable publicity."

Although Al Roth, another member of the "Grand Slam" team was readmitted to the Baruch Center last week, Roman pointed out that Roth was not discharged from the service until this last weekend and that he has had no opportunity to see him or any other members of the team nor does he expect to in "the near future."

NSA Convention II:

College Editors Unite At National Congress

By Mel Copeland

This is part of a series of articles on the U. S. National Student Association and the activities of the College delegation at the recent national congress. Almost one thousand dollars in student fees are spent each year for NSA dues and for sending delegates to the national congress.

Freedom of the Press is followed by many "ifs" and "buts" for most college papers. There is hardly a college paper in the entire United States that is not subject to some form of censorship or control.

With this in mind, twenty-four college editors from all parts of the nation met at the sub-committee on "The Role of the College Press," a part of the National Student Association Congress held this summer in Ames, Iowa.

Group Considers Action

The group considered what they could do about the many violations of college press freedom.

A group of college editors in the southwest, when faced with the problems of censorship and control, united to form a highly successful organization to protect their rights.

The group at the NSA Congress agreed that the idea was worth a trial on a national level. Such an organization would put the papers in a better bargaining position. The inclusion of professional newspaper editors and publishers, as part of an advisory board, would add importance and responsibility to the organization.

Executive Committee Elected

An interim executive committee of one editor from each of ten regions was elected. Eugene Hartwig, Managing Editor of the "University of Michigan Daily" was chosen as chairman. Mel Copeland of The Campus was elected as the northeast region executive. Sam Perelson, editor of The Ticker at the Baruch School, was named as the group's treasurer. Each regional executive would attempt to enlist one or two important professional editors or publishers in his region and as many member schools as possible. Dues were set at three dollars per year.

When faced with a problem of censorship or administration control, the college editor would contact the chairman of the National Association for a Free College Press. He, in turn, would contact the regional executive who would visit the school with a member of the advisory board and several other college editors from the region.

Attempt Peaceful Settlement

The group would investigate and would attempt to settle the dispute peacefully. If this proved impossible the group would issue a report stating where the fault lay—with the administration, or with the paper. This report would be sent to the national chairman who would distribute it to the member schools.

Grad Studies On Met NY Initiated Here

The College's new graduate program dealing with the New York Metropolitan Area, the first of its kind to be offered in any New York college, began Monday with an enrollment of about fifteen students, according to Prof. Oscar Janowsky (Director, Division of Graduate Studies).

The exact number of students enrolled is not definite yet because of late registration. "It will be less than twenty, though," Professor Janowsky said. "We want a small number of students to begin with in order to maintain a high standard."

Three courses are being offered this fall. Prof. John Davis (Government), chairman of the committee which supervises the program, is teaching "The Government of the Metropolis." "New York as an Art Center" is being taught by Dr. Bernard Myers (Art), and "The People of the City of New York" by Prof. Alfred P. Parsell (Sociology).

Upon completion of the program, which is made possible by a teaching grant from the Lucius N. Littauer Foundation and a research grant from the Rockefeller Foundation, a student may receive the Master of Arts degree with a specialization in New York Areas Studies.

Folk Concert Thurs. at 12

Martha Schlamme, world renowned folk singer will give a concert at Hillel House tomorrow at 12. The concert inaugurates an extensive Hillel program commemorating the tercentenary of the arrival of the first Jews in America.

A native of Vienna, Miss Schlamme has traveled over the European and North American continents. She appeared at Hillel last year, and was asked to return this term.

Lectures to be given by invited guests on following Thursdays include "The Historical Background of Jewish Settlements" on Oct. 14, "Jewish Creative Arts," Oct. 28, "Outstanding Jews in America," Nov. 18, and "American Jews after 300 Years," December 9.

Also planned is an exhibit of historical American-Jewish documents in Lincoln Corridor; the setting up of a "succah" in the yard adjoining the Hillel building during the Succoth holiday, and the annual "Israeli Cabaret Night," October 9.

Summer Marriages Harass Name Changing Department

By Otto Doelling

After a long summer, the Name Changing Department in the Registrar's Office is tied up by the bonds of matrimony. At the end of the first day of the semester, Mrs. Mildred Kraft had 53 applications for change of name on her desk.

Each year more than 300 coeds apply at the office to have their names registered, but for some reason September seems to be the busiest time of year.

Asked whether these figures seem to indicate that many girls attend college with matrimony as one of their free electives, Mrs. Kraft opined that, "It just happens. But a great many of the girls marry College men. In fact we sometimes find the husband's file card right next to his wife's in the cabinet," she said. The job has had its effect on Mrs. Kraft though. Shortly after she started the job of name changing, her own changed.

English Qualifying Exam For Ed Majors in Oct.

Qualifying Examinations in written English for Day Session students will be conducted on Thursday, October 14, from 12 to 2, in the Great Hall, announced Dean Harold Abelson (Education).

Applications will be available on September 27 in 311 Main, for Day Session Students.

Oral Examination applications will also be available in 311 Main on September 27.

Prof. Returns from Europe After Year's Study Abroad

By Matt Kaufman

In general, Europeans devote more time to living than to making a living as compared with their American counterparts. This observation was made by Samuel Hendel (Government), recently returned from a year of research and travel in Europe under a Ford Faculty Fellowship.

Professor Hendel, who teaches Government, is titled "Government and Society of the U.S.S.R." at the University. He studied Russian culture in fields other than his specialty, such as literature, art, philosophy and science.

He spent six months in England, most of his work being done in London with a few weeks in Scotland at the University of Edinburgh. "I had a chance to meet scholars specializing in the U.S.S.R.—talk with them, probe their minds, exchange ideas. England," added Professor Hendel, "except for its dismal climate, is a wonderful country; the people have a keen appreciation of the meaning and values of freedom and democracy."

From England, Professor Hendel went to France where he spent the next three months. He traveled extensively through that country and said of it, "The French are a charming and cultured people, and everyone talks politics. There is a deep undercurrent of cynicism and the dominant psychology seems that of a defeated and humiliated nation. Paris is a beautiful eye-appealing city, but Paris is not France."

Leaving France, the professor spent a month traveling through

Of Germany, Professor Hendel commented, "There is much building and construction going on. Munich seemed more like New York than any other city I visited in Europe."

Booters Forward Line Key To Second Straight Crown

By Hank Grossman

It seems that Dr. Harry Karlin, the new soccer coach, is only going along with the consensus of opinion when he says that, "We have the best looking forward line in the history of the College."

The Booters, who have the brightest outlook of any Beaver team this season, have lost only two men from the front line which last year fought its way to the Met Conference championship. The offense will be built around returnees from the '53 squad. The forward wall will be strongly bolstered by the return of Johnny Koutsantanou and Gus Naclerio. Both are remnants of the team which captured the Met Championship in 1951. That year "Koutsy" won all-American honors while the diminutive Naclerio placed on the first all-Met team and the all-State second team the following season. Neither saw much action last year, Koutsantanou due to injuries and Naclerio because of personal reasons.

Flashy Newcomers

In addition to a powerful core of veterans, Karlin will have the services of the flashiest group of sophomores in years. Heading the list are Rudy Gedonke, Wolfgang Wostl, Pierre Mazer and Novak Masanovich.

The Beavers only weak point is in the nets which were left wide open by the graduation of all-American Hal "Punchy" Friedland. Currently battling it out for the goal tending position are Wally Meisen and Herschel Nissen.

Loaded With Talent

The team's biggest worry is, as co-captain Gus Naclerio puts it, "We just have too many good players." Some of the other coaches probably wish that they had more troubles of that sort, but it seems that "Doc" Karlin, in his first year at the soccer helm, has stepped into a coach's dream team. "They are the scrappiest bunch of boys that I have ever seen playing any sport," commented Karlin. "They are terrific."

Johnny Koutsantanou

Dr. Karlin should know whereof he speaks because although he is a novice as far as soccer is concerned, in the past he has coached handball, water polo, swimming and tennis at the College.

According to the soccer mentor, "There are only two soft games on our schedule—the season opener against Pratt on October 2, and the Hunter game. However," he added, "you never can tell when a good team will have an off day."

Karlin will probably be able to resolve some of his line-up problems after today when the Beavers are tentatively slated to take on New York State Tech in the first scrimmage of the season.

Hocherman Returns To Plague Opposition

This year's soccer team figures to have plenty of scoring punch and one of the main reasons should be the play of Morris "Moish" Hocherman.

Last season, his sophomore year, Hocherman booted in six goals to lead the team in scoring. However, he doesn't place much emphasis on this achievement since the scoring, as a whole, was evenly distributed among a well balanced forward line.

Hocherman had his first experience in organized ball with a Bronx P.A.L. team. Johnny Koutsantanou, another of this year's big scoring threats, and co-captain Eddie "Trunk" also got their starts with the same team.

Great Year

At Stuyvesant High School, Morris only played one year because of the coaches' strike. It was a great year though. He was team scoring leader with 11 goals and was voted their most valuable player. The same year, 1952, he played in the German-American League, considered the best of the soccer loops in New York. "I gave that up though," he says.

"I just don't get the same kick out of playing outside ball as I playing at college. Some of the guys on the team are just opposite because they say the fiber of play is higher on the outside. I just don't see it that way."

Both Feet

Hocherman thinks he learned more about playing soccer watching his college mates than in any other way. "For example, I used to head the ball wrong before I watched Gus Naclerio at Lucien Dauphars do it the right way." Playing at college also caused him to learn to use his feet for kicking. "In high school you can get away with being a right footed player, but the fiber of play is much higher here. So I learned how to use both feet."

Sports Notes

Hill 'n Dalers

Several basic falsehoods keep students from coming out for the College's cross-country track team each year. Chief among these are the beliefs that experience is necessary, and the long distance runs are too much for a normal person's endurance to take.

The conditioning required for the long runs engaged in by the Hill and Dalers is a gradual process which any healthy person may obtain through steady and regular training.

Last season's Captain and ace miler Paul Pavlides once described coach Bruce as "one of the foremost experts on conditioning in the country."

Interested students may see coach Bruce at 3 in Lewisohn Stadium, every day until the Hill and Dalers move over to Van Cortland Park next week.

Cheerleaders

The call for College Cheerleaders is out.

Both males, and females are invited to participate in try-outs that will be held this Thurs. at 12:30 in 310M.

This term, the squad will be replaced almost in its entirety. The remaining three girl cheerleaders, Norma Haber, Sandy Kelberg, and Rose Gregory, in addition to three members of the Student Athletic Association, will be entrusted with selecting those who will make up the entire complement of the College Cheerleaders.
