Second Defeat Sees Jensen High Again

By Sheldon Podolsky

The Columbia Lion proved too tough a foe last night and the College's basketball team went down to its second successive defeat of the season, 83-67, before a jam-packed house at the newly dedicated Wingate gymnasium.

The game was the season's opener for the Light Blue and it was evident in spots, although the Lion hit for a spectacular 28 for 47 from the floor, they had considerable trouble controlling the ball. They threw away the ball on many occasions and had it stolen away on others.

Unfortunately for the Beavers, however, they played the same kind of basketball with one exception; they couldn't hit on their shots. The Lavender connected for 24 out of 74, less than a 33 per cent average and it showed in the final score.

There were a couple of bright spots in the defeat. One was the sensational play of Joe Bennardo, a sophomore reserve. The 5'8" speedster scored ten points on five baskets and played a whale of a floor game, stealing the ball away on many occasions.

For George Jensen, the senior letterman, it was his second magnificent performance of the season. He led the Beavers with 17 tallies and was the heart of the Beaver attack, fighting like a bear off the boards. He led both clubs in rebounding with 20.

Chet Forte, who hurt the Beavers last year with a 29-point performance was once again the big cog in the Columbia machine. The shifty 5'7" junior scored 23 points and gave the Beavers fits on defense. Right alongside Forte in the scoring column was Frank Thomas, the Lions' 6'4" center. He tallied 19 and did yeoman work off the boards.

On the plus side of the ledger in this defeat was the Beavers' ability to fight back when all seemed lost. After trailing 40-28 at half-time, the Lavender fell further behind, 66-46 midway in the second half.

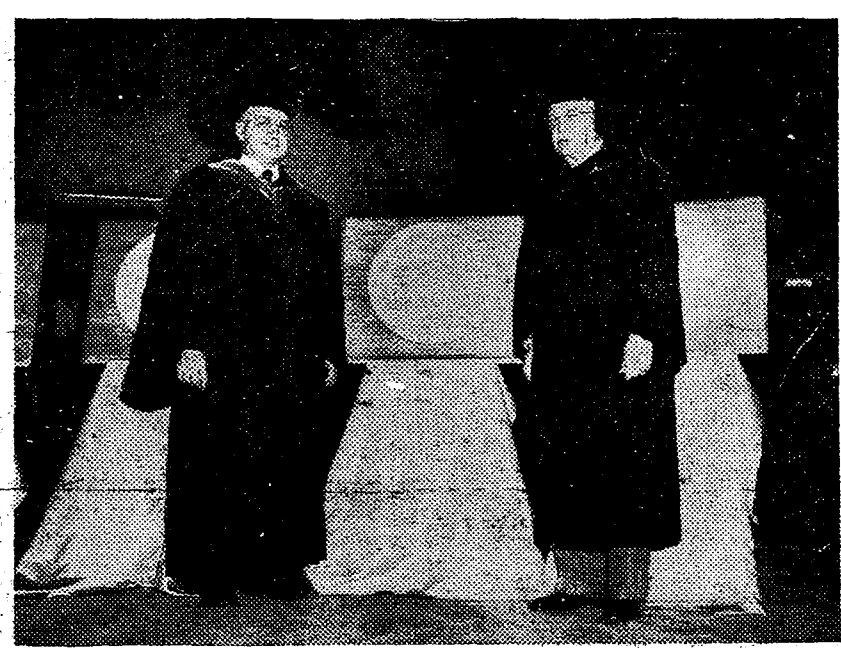

Here, behind the shooting of Jensen and Bennardo, the Beavers made their move. They outscored the Lions 21-10, and trailed by only 10, 77-67, with three minutes remaining.

Over Four Hundred At Naming Ceremony

By Nat Benezra

After nearly half a century of official anonymity, five buildings on the North Campus were formally named and dedicated yesterday. Beginning at 11, the hour-long ceremonies in Great Hall were attended by over 400 persons. The program included an academic procession and dedication addresses by Dr. Joseph B. Cavallaro, Chairman of the Board of Higher Education, Dean Morton Gottschall (Liberal Arts and Science), and Dr. Joseph George Cohen, Dean of the Teacher Education Division of the four municipal colleges. Pres. Buell G. Gallagher presided.

Dr. Joseph B. Cavallaro, BHE chairman, and Conrad Saxe Keyes, senior member of Wingate and Cullen, stand before the Wingate Hall dedicatory plaque. Dr. Cavallaro delivered the Wingate dedication address and Mr. Keyes, a one-time law associate of George Wood Wingate, unveiled the plaque.

The buildings dedicated were formerly known as Main, Technology, Hygiene, Chemistry, and South Hall. Named after distinguished alumni and faculty members of the College, they are now known as Shepard Hall, Goethals Hall, Wingate Hall, Baskerville Hall, and Klapper Hall.

Plaques Unveiled
Plaques bearing the names of the men in whose memory the buildings were named, were unveiled by relatives and associates of the men. Plaques were also unveiled for two buildings previously named, Harris and Compton Halls.

Dr. Cavallaro made the dedication address for the men's hygiene building, named in honor of Gen. George Wood Wingate '58. The BHE chairman reviewed General Wingate's career as a civic and military leader. General Wingate was the founder and president of the Public School Athletic League, a member of the Board of Education, and Inspector-General of the National Guard.

Fitting Honor
"It is fitting," Dr. Cavallaro concluded, "that The City College and the Board of Higher Education do honor to such a man, who gave so much to the youth of this City—who expressed so well in his own life the ideal of a sound body and a sound mind; by giving his name to this building, designed to promote the physical well-being of students of his Alma Mater."

Jayne Mansfield to Appear As 'Carnival Queen' Judge

By Mike Cook

Jayne Mansfield, star of the Broadway smash hit, "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?" will be one of the five judges selecting the Carnival Queen at House Plan's Carnival tomorrow night.

The other four members of the panel are Miss Lorien Eyerly, fashion consultant for Ohrbach's; Mr. I. E. Levine, Public Relations Director at the College; Mr. Mike Wallace, WABD news commentator; and Mrs. Ruth Erb, UNICOF's Public Relations Director.

The five finalists, chosen from a group of 36 at the Carnival Queen Ball on November 10, will be judged on the basis of beauty, poise, personality and how well they represent the typical College coed.

After the final selection is made, Bunny Gold '58, last year's Queen, will crown her successor at 12:30 in Lincoln Corridor. Bunny will be assisted in her royal duties by Francesca Borgatta, "Miss City College of 1970."

Miss Borgatta is the five year old daughter of Prof. Robert Borgatta (Art) and was chosen in a contest between the children of faculty members last week.

The five finalists will be escorted into the Great Hall by members of Compton '56, mount the stage at midnight and then

PAC 'Lists' Protest Rally Postponed Until January

By Fred Jerome

The Political Action Committee has decided to postpone its rally protesting membership lists until Thursday, Jan. 5, because of complications in the speakers' schedules.

Plans have been made by PAC to have one prominent speaker from outside the College, in addition to professors and student leaders, to address the rally. The Committee is also contacting leading figures in the field of entertainment for the demonstration.

A statement made by the committee yesterday declared: "We feel that spirited student participation in this rally will demonstrate to the Administration the determination of the student body to erase this blot on the democratic traditions of City College."

The Upper Manhattan division of Students for Democratic Action has pledged to support the rally. Arnold Adoff '56, chairman of the division said, "We will aid PAC in publicizing the rally by distributing leaflets off campus and in every other way we can."

SDA, which refused to submit membership lists this term, has two observers at the PAC meetings. Adoff stated that "even though we are not on campus, all our activities this term will be directed at the various facets of life at the College. We will continue to support PAC wholeheartedly in its efforts to rescind the ruling."

Red Cross Collects 178 Pints of Blood

The Red Cross collected 178 pints of blood yesterday afternoon.

The bloodmobile, which set up its headquarters in Knittle Lounge yesterday morning, returned at 8 today in an effort to collect the 223 pints necessary for the College to reach its quota of 400.

The Red Cross will accept contributions up to 3 this afternoon. If the quota is not reached only those students who have donated this term will be able to receive, free of charge, as much blood as may be needed for a member of the immediate family in case of serious illness.

Members of Chi Lambda and Alpha Phi Omega are helping the nurses collect blood.

Guards Won't Help

A stranger walking through the Finley Center cafeteria could not help but agree that the reasons for hiring a Burns Guard are justifiable ones.

The guard's function is to enforce a set of rules framed by the Student Faculty Cafeteria Committee which pertain to maintaining some semblance of cleanliness and order in the cafeteria. Nobody, well almost nobody, wants to eat in a garbage dump. As things have been going, the Burns man certainly has his work cut out for him. Empty and sometimes half-empty pie plates, milk containers and bits of miscellaneous refuse cover the floors and tables. It seems the only areas clear of garbage are the receptacles in which it should be deposited.

Student behavior in the cafeteria, we feel, exemplified the general attitude prevailing at the College. Call it apathy, indifference or just plain bad manners. It all boils down to the same thing—no one seems to care about anyone's comfort except his own.

No matter how many guards are hired to patrol the cafeteria, the situation will persist, for without student cooperation, all efforts are in vain.

'Sorry Sons'

For the first time in many years, it looks as if the students at the College will not donate enough blood to reach the quota. It is disheartening to note that more than 7000 so-called "sturdy sons" cannot find 400 pints of blood among them.

The aspect of the situation which is most distressing and admits the least comprehension is that many don't realize how simple it is to do so much good. Walk into Knittle Lounge anytime between now and 3 today, and lie down on one of the tables. It takes only seven minutes. You will get excused from class, the Red Cross will provide free milk and cookies, and you will walk out with the red button pinned to your lapel, feeling ten miles high.

Wanted: Competition

The extended deadline for handing in signed petitions for Student Government and class offices passed quietly on Wednesday with only one new name added to the list of major office candidates.

As the situation now stands all Student Government major offices, with the exception of SG secretary, are unopposed. Although the candidates for these unopposed offices are experienced and no doubt capable of fulfilling the responsibilities which go with the positions, the situation is regrettable. The competition for class offices is a bit more heated, but there are unopposed class offices as well.

This semester, particularly, students have complained bitterly of an increased administration role in student affairs. The most logical and effective means for students to demonstrate their desire to conduct their own affairs is a vital and dynamic Student Government. Apathy, needless to say, does not breed vitality.

Only the Class of '59 seems to show sufficient interest in its class elections to present any substantial competition for major offices. In this, those who are interested in dynamic Student Government can take heart. The members of the other three classes have no one to blame but themselves.

Morse Shepard's life, which were as a son of Alma Mater, a lawyer, and a force for civic betterment. "In each of these phases, his record was distinguished," the dean said.

Suggested Great Hall

A member of the class of 1869, Shepard was largely responsible for the acquisition of the present site of the College and for the erection of the main group of buildings on the North Campus. He also suggested the construction of Great Hall.

Klapper Hall was dedicated by Dr. Cohen. He thought it fitting "that the first building on this campus, designed as a center for the education of teachers, be dedicated to the memory of Paul Klapper, beloved master teacher, devoted son of the College, and for many years Dean of its School of Education, distinguished first President and for a decade chief builder of Queens College." Dr. Klapper was a member of the class of 1904.

Baskerville and Goethals

Baskerville and Goethals Halls were dedicated by Dr. Benjamin Harrow (Professor Emeritus, Chemistry) and John C. Riedel '91, respectively.

Charles Baskerville was a professor of Chemistry at the College from 1905 to 1922. He was responsible for the design and equipment of the laboratories in the building that now bears his name.

A graduate of the College in 1877, George Washington Goethals is best remembered as Chief Engineer of the Panama Canal. Mr. Riedel said that many names were under consideration for the Technology building, "but the selection made reflects great credit on the administration."

Brief ceremonies were also held at the various renamed buildings after the completion of the Great Hall program.

SFCSA Membership

To the Editor:

As the only former student member of the Student Faculty Committee on Student Affairs at the College, I feel it is my duty to comment on the current issue of SFCSA membership.

Regarding the question of having direct elections of student representatives to that body, I am very strongly against it. I am primarily in favor of maintaining the status quo for the following reasons:

1. It assures the student body of having mature, experienced leaders as their representatives.

2. It assures the great majority of students who are active in co-curricular activities that they have a representative who is in close contact with them. TICC's President is in contact with the 2000 members of all Tech groups on campus, the Senior Class Proxy has a direct relationship with the entire Senior Class, the House Plan President is very close to his 70 House groups comprising 800 members, and the President and Vice-president of Student Government are direct representatives of the entire student body.

It is important to keep in mind that the five students presently on this body are representing the student body as a whole—and not just the active students.

I believe that direct elections would not give the student body the above mentioned advantages that we now have.

Let me make one suggestion however. I think there is a possibility that a compromise can be worked out:

1. Student Council could elect the student representatives to SFCSA. None of those elected should be Council members.

2. Qualifications regarding leadership positions held, knowledge of the College, contact with students and other factors would have to be determined.

3. Student Council should not have the power to remove the people once elected (for obvious political reasons).

4. The first term three students could be elected for a one-year term and two for a one-semester term. The following term, two would be chosen for a one-year period.

The above plan would add to Student Council's power and prestige. It might even assure the student body of getting qualified representatives on SFCSA. I sincerely hope that this letter will stimulate both student and faculty thought on this very important question of the student membership of the Student Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

S-F Teas

To the Editor:

A wonderful attempt was made last Friday at 3 o'clock in the Main Lounge of the Finley Student Center by the Faculty Wives and various service groups to make a success out of the opening Student Faculty Tea.

Passing by the lounge at about 3:15, I happened to notice a glow of warm light from the interior of the up-till-then closed lounge. Accompanying the glow were the strains of some classical piece playing on a phonograph. Being inquisitive, I decided to go in and find out what was going on. Upon reaching the door, I was stopped by a young man who informed me that I wasn't dressed for the occasion. That is, I didn't have the proper attire that an affair of this sort warranted. A shirt, tie and jacket were the essentials needed for entrance. My first reaction was to gently slip this young man to the carpet with a poke at his jaw. My second reaction, which was a little more rational, was to think about what was happening at the College.

All of a sudden things began to become clear to me. Here I was in a building that imbues the spirit that every established college and university in the United States cries for.

Here was a building that had the ivy-covered walls and bright, shiny new insides that every student here has ever dreamed and hoped for. Here were the people; the spark of spirit that caused the glow within that room and Theatre-wise Davidson Travels to Iran in Jan.

Prof. Frank Davidson (Speech), will leave for Iran next month under the auspices of the United States Department of Information Service.

This trip was planned jointly by the US and Iran. The Iranian government requested an expert from this country who would be able to set up a program of theatre.

Prof. Frank Davidson

Professor Davidson was chosen. Professor Davidson felt that this would be "an opportunity to do something constructive in a country we sorely need on our side at this time."

Agenda Items Listed

A schedule has already been set for the professor. Listed among the items on his agenda are lectures at the University of Tehran, the establishment of a theatre program for the university, administering educational instruction to secondary school teachers in dramatic arts, a liaison with the professional theatre and the setting up of a production for British and American embassies.

In 1952, Professor Davidson received a Princeton University grant which enabled him to go to Europe. He gave 21 lectures in seven different countries on "Theatre, USA."

Professor Davidson was appointed to direct for OUDS, which is the professional drama society at Oxford University. He was also chosen to open the Coronation Week in London for the British Drama League.

Graduated from Yale

A graduate from the Yale school of drama, Professor Davidson also has a PhD in drama from NYU and is a recipient of an honorary Doctor of Literature degree from Union College.

Besides teaching speech at the College, the professor is a co-ordinator for the drama, speech and travel divisions of the evening sessions. The theatre group of the Extension Division at the College will be on WNYC December 14, at 9:30.

Meet Miss Freshman

Majoring in education, Iris Gooze (36-28 1/2-36) came from the Bronx High School of Science last September.

The brown-eyed coed is interested in modern dancing, classical and popular music, and horseback riding. She is chairman of Sis Compton's social functions committee.

Prof. Harvey Leads Male Glee Club at Columbia

Not content with laboring daily to teach his students the correct way to pronounce "time and tide," Prof. Bailey Harvey (Speech) has also spent his last 25 years as a conductor of some of the nation's top male choral groups.

As director of the Columbia University Glee Club, the professor conducted his group in a triangular concert with Pennsylvania and Dartmouth Universities at Carnegie Hall last Friday night.

Hobby is Singing

This was the first of a proposed series of annual Ivy League Glee Club concerts. The choruses sang a joint number, "Testament of Freedom," and then Professor Harvey conducted the Columbia choir in Handel's "Hallelujah Amen" and "Mary Had a Baby," a Negro spiritual.

Acquiring his first taste for music as a choir boy in church, the professor took up choral singing as a hobby, which he has continued ever since.

Although he has never done much solo work himself, he was a member of the City Champion Barbershop Quartet of 1935. He also led many similar groups, including the Manhattan Chapter of Barbershop Quartet Society of America.

Admires College Chorus

Professor Harvey thinks a great deal of the College's Choral group, but in comparison to his own chorus he thinks that the group here tends to concentrate more on major works rather than songs, and will use an orchestra more often than not.

During his long career as a chorus director, Professor Harvey has more than once found himself in a tight situation. Once, while appearing at a recital in Queens College, he packed his tuxedo and sent it to Queens. When the time arrived to go on, he found that he was dressed in white tie and tail, but he had left his pants in the Bronx. —J. Schwartz made it possible for you to hear that pleasant music. Here was a core of people who were fighting to revive a spirit that the College has been slowly losing since its founding on January 20, 1849.

That's a long time ago and its been a long enough time for the many student bodies here to let the spirit that once made our school, slip quietly through their fingers until the present time.

At present, we have a small core of "sturdy sons" making an effort to renew the spirit that is missing. There have been many "sturdy sons" in this drive, but they never have had the opportunity that now presents itself. That opportunity is our new South Campus and our new Student Center.

To ever be sure of completing a well-rounded education, you have to try and get to know your school. Don't wait! Hop on that handwagon and support your school.

Mermen Open With Manhattan In Drive for Third Straight Met Swimming Crown

Tonight, the College's swimming team will open its season against Manhattan. The mermen will be striving for their third consecutive Metropolitan Swimming League crown.

Coach Jack Rider is not very optimistic about the team's chances of keeping their crown.

His lack of enthusiasm stems from the loss of six key men from last year's squad.

Graduate Mermen

Those who have graduated are Howie Schloemer (220-440 freestyle Met champ), Bob Kellogg (League record-holder in breaststroke), Tony Sousa (Met Individual Medley champ) and Lou Ruffino, diving star.

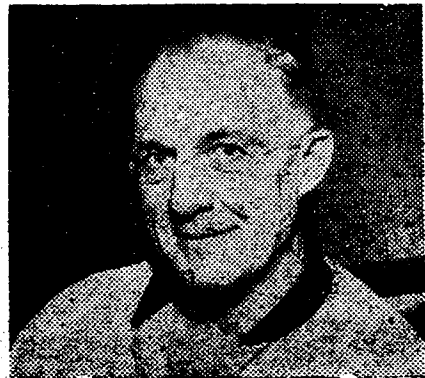

This year's presumed Co-Captain Ben Trasen and freestyler Steve Kesten are ineligible to compete this term. There is a possibility of Trasen's returning next semester, but then it may be too late.

As for tonight's encounter, Rider intends to employ Co-Captain Jimmy Johnsen, the squad's top freestyler, in the 220 yard, 100 yard and possibly the 440 yard events. Richie Silverstein will compete in the 50 yard freestyle race.

Two Backstrokers

The backstrokers will be Sol Stern and Jerry Lopatin, who will do double duty by participating in the 200 yard Individual Medley. Shelley Manspeizer will replace Kellogg as the team's breaststroker and rounding out the starters will be Roy Schlacter and Joe White in the 440.

In the diving competition, veteran Marv Gettleman will see service, as will newcomer Joe Weissman.

Coach Rider doesn't expect the Jaspers to give the Lavender too much trouble, but he does fear losing the impending N.Y.U. and Kings Point meets. These two teams along with the College are rated the top three in the league.

The swimming mentor feels that if the Beavers can hold their own the first half of the season, their chances to repeat winning the title will improve next term with the addition of two promising mermen, John Kenneally and Larry Pemisler, plus the hopeful return of Trasen.

Sapora Not Predicting Outcome Of L.I. Aggie Match on Sat.; Team in Good Condition

The wrestling team opens its season tomorrow afternoon against the Long Island Aggies in the Tech Gym at 2 PM.

Coach Joe Sapora refuses to make any predictions concerning the outcome of this initial match, but the veteran mentor admits that the team has looked very good in practice sessions.

Of the seven starting men, the best grapplers are in the lighter weight classes and the Beaver coach feels that "as the light men go, so goes the team."

The team is in perfect physical shape and there should be no trouble on that score, Sapora feels, and if the large array of veterans comes through the team should do well.

"I figure the season being a success or a failure on the LIA meet. If the team wins I'll know I have a good squad and if they lose the season will probably be in the class of usual mediocrity," the diminutive coach concluded.

The starting team consists of co-captain Sal Sorbera, 123 lbs; Al Taylor, 130 lbs; Vince Norman, 137 lbs; Sonny Golia, 147 lbs; co-captain Ira Zingmond, 157 lbs; Bernie Stoll, 167 lbs; Bob Siegel, 177 lbs. and heavyweight Jim Siegel and Golia are new men and their work tomorrow may spell out the fortunes of the grapplers throughout the season.

Siegel and Golia are new men and their work tomorrow may spell out the fortunes of the grapplers throughout the season.

Riflemen Face Rams Tonight; Away Contest

Coming off two straight victories over Seton Hall and N.Y. State Maritime Academy, the hopes of Beaver riflemen ride high as they practice for the big match against Fordham University, tonight. The dual meet will be held at the Fordham range.

Before the double victory against the Pirates and the Mariners, Sergeant First Class Arthur Carriddi, Beaver coach expressed optimism over his squad in practice. His optimism was further strengthened by the resounding triumph as the Lavender marksman hit the targets for their season's high mark, registering 1393 points.

Again, the murderer's row of Sal Sorbera and John Marsyniak are expected to carry the load as the Beaver gunners lay it on the line in a dual match with a perennial power, the Rams from Rose Hill. Sorbera and Marsyniak fired their best rounds of the year in the triangular meet against Seton Hall and Fort Schuyler, with scores of 285 and 283 respectively.

Sgt. Carriddi felt that the riflers were a "hot team," and if their marksmanship remains as phenomenal as it was in their last meet, they could stop the strong team that has been firing in the 1300's consistently.

Hoopsters to Face Hunter On Home Court Tomorrow

The basketball team will meet Hunter College's five tomorrow night in the Main Gym. Game time is 8:30.

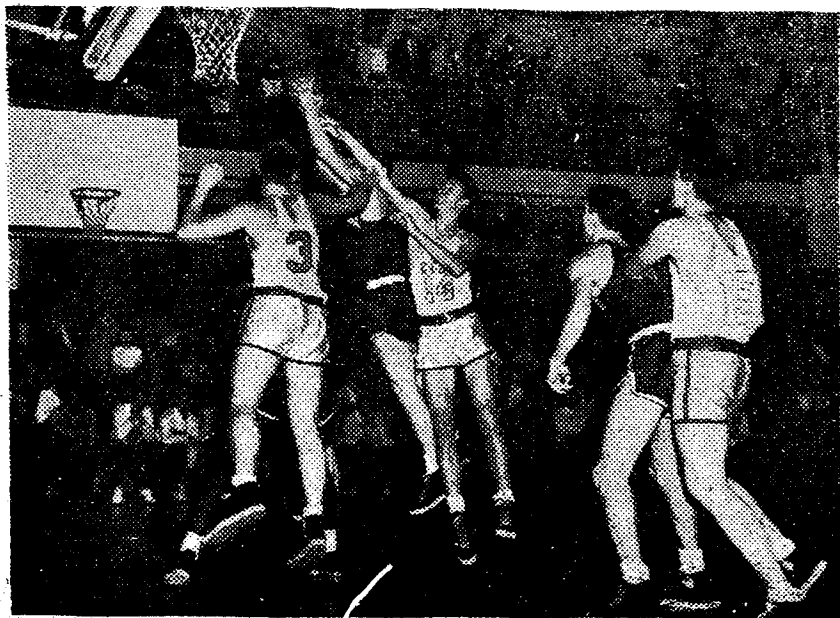

In the three games previously played between the teams the Beavers have made a clean sweep. They won by lopsided scores in 1952 and '53 but last year Hunter made it rough before bowing 98-77. It took a record breaking 37 point spurge by Merv Shorr to turn the trick.

This season the Hawks will have two chances to turn the tables since the four city colleges will be playing on a home and home basis against each other.

Hunter may have the guns to beat the Beavers. They've started off fast, winning their first two games of the season, whipping Brooklyn Poly on Tuesday 81-69.

The Hawks' starting team against Poly consisted of Bob Sack and Don Altman at the forwards, Dick Scott at center and Ira Schwartz and Ed Milan at the guards. Sack, who led his team with 21 points against Poly, and Scott are the veterans who carry the major part of the rebounding chores. Both are 6'3" and husky. The tallest man on the squad is Dave Miller at 6'4". Schwartz, at 5'10", is a fine shotmaker and coach Mike Fleischer rates him as his top scoring threat. Schwartz is bearing out his coach's opinion with 45 points in two games so far.

George Jensen (3), Frank Thomas, Rudy Milkey and Pete Marsh fight for a rebound during the first half. Bob Lehner (14) and Bill Lewis (15) watch.

Beavers Lose

But the Lions went into a freeze on offense and pressed the Beavers up close on defense and the losers couldn't handle the situation. Forte deposited four more points and Ted Dwyer, two to close out the contest.

In the final analysis it was the Light Blues' defensive work in the first half, which proved the difference. The Lions clogged up the middle and didn't allow the Beavers to work their pivot plays. Instead of working the ball on the outside looking for the set shot, the Beavers forced the ball in the bucket and had it stolen away.

The Lions led by as much as thirteen points, 25-12, midway in the first half before the Beavers started clicking. Syd Levy, who was guarded closely by Herb Kutlow, finally broke away for two baskets and Bill Lewis and Ralph Schefflan added another to keep within six points, 25-19.

A foul shot by Schefflan at that point had the fans in an uproar, but then the Lions put on a five point surge of their own and it told the tale of the first half.

Aside from Thomas and Forte, two other Lions hit in double figures. Kutlow had 12 and Dwyer 11.

Five Beavers hit double figures. Aften Jensen, came Lewis and Schefflan with 11 each and Levy and Bennardo with 10 each.
