Nine Clubs To Discuss Lists Topic

A meeting of the seven political clubs on campus, Hillel and the College's chapter of the NAACP, to consider possible joint action on the membership list question will be held today.

The meeting, sponsored by Students for Democratic Action, will be in 121 Finley Center, from 3 to 5.

Invitations Sent

Specific invitations have been sent to the Marxist Discussion Club, Hillel, NAACP, Young Democrats, Young Liberals, and Young Republicans, by Arnold Adoff '56, Acting president of SDA.

Adoff emphasized, however, that the meeting is open to representatives of any interested organizations on campus.

Gloria Kingsley '57, Student Government president, will appear at the meeting to give the club representatives a resume of the Student Faculty Committee on Student Affairs meeting, Tuesday night, at which the membership list ruling was amended.

For Joint Action

At Tuesday night's SFCSA meeting an implementation of the lists ruling was passed by which a special sub-committee of SFCSA would destroy the lists after one academic year had passed.

"We are calling this meeting," commented Adoff, "to see if it is possible to form a joint action, or joint protest of those organizations opposed to the ruling."

Of the nine clubs definitely participating in today's meeting, only two, Young Democrats and Young Republicans, have submitted membership lists for this semester. The deadline for submitting lists is October 31.

Borough President Hulan Jack To Speak At Cohen Library Ground-breaking Today

By Nat Benezra

Hulan Jack, Manhattan borough president, will deliver the key address at today's groundbreaking ceremonies for the new Morris Raphael Cohen Library. The inauguration of construction will take place at 12 on the site of the picnic grove (135 Street, between St. Nicholas Terrace and Convent Avenue).

WUS Embarks On Fund Drive

The College's World University Service is forming a steering committee to organize this semester's fund-raising campaign, according to Annette Fishbein '57, WUS Chairman.

"One of WUS' prime objectives this year," she said, "is to educate the students in international understanding. We'd like to have every week of the year dedicated to this purpose."

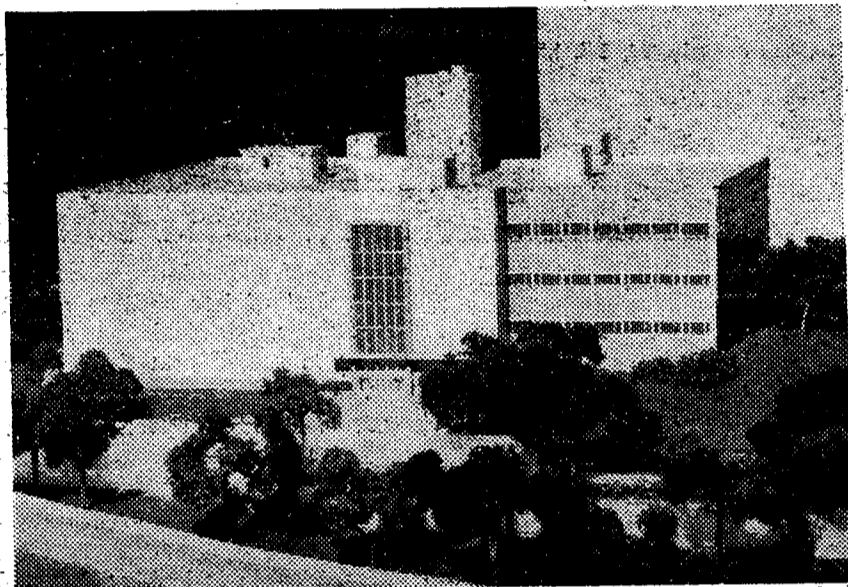

Exchange Information

The organization will correspond with the main universities in the world and exchange school newspapers, magazines, and information about the school systems.

An International Party will be given for all students at the College in December. Each one attending will wear a costume of a different country. Entertainment will consist of folk music and folk dancing.

A special program is planned for WUS week, Dec. 15-22. Pres. Buell G. Gallagher will officially open the week at the Maccabean Festival. The festival, presented by Hillel, will be based on the cultural theme of Chanukah and will include a dramatic play and a performance by a guest artist.

A regional meeting of WUS will be held this Sunday from 10:30 to 5:30 at New York University Heights. The topic is "The How, The Why, and The What of WUS." Pres. Gallagher is expected to be present.

A model of the new Morris Raphael Cohen Library for which ground will be broken this afternoon. The model is on view in Shepard Hall.

'Games Around The World' Theme of College Carnival

By Vic Ziegel

"Games around the World" has been chosen as the central theme of this year's Carnival.

'Mike'

Many positions are open on "Microcosm," the senior class yearbook, according to Mort Berger, '56, editor-in-chief. These positions are open to all students, not just seniors. An organizational meeting will be held today at 12:30 in 151 Finley Center.

"The crowning of the queen will be the main event of Carnival," stated Steve Stone '58, chairman of the entertainment committee. "We have added many new features which will make this Carnival the biggest in the College's history."

Added Features

"One of these added features," Stone continued, "will be the finding of the cutest daughter or granddaughter of a faculty member, who will help crown Miss Campus Queen."

Many more contestants for the "Miss Campus Queen" title are needed and applications are available in 335 Finley Center.

Five Finalists

Five finalists from among the field of hopefuls will be chosen at the Carnival Queen Dance, November 10, in the Carnival Room of the Hotel Capitol. Tickets for this affair, priced at three dollars per couple are also available at 335 Finley Center.

All clubs and organizations on campus are invited to set up booths at Carnival which will be held Saturday night, December 10 in the Great Hall.

There will be three different shows throughout the night at this year's Carnival, according to Stone. A mambo and society orchestra will play for dancing.

All proceeds from Carnival will go to United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

Among the other speakers will be Dr. Joseph B. Cavallaro, chairman of the Board of Higher Education; Dr. Jerome Wilcox, chief librarian; and Gloria Kingsley '57, Student Government president. Pres. Buell G. Gallagher will preside at the ceremonies.

Dynamite Exploded

A small charge of dynamite will be used for the groundbreaking instead of the conventional shovel according to President Gallagher. "I hope the students turn out for the ceremonies," he said, "since it is a family affair."

The contractor for the 3,500,000 dollar project has been selected, and construction is to begin before the end of the year. Estimates indicate that the library will be ready in two years.

Glass Walls

Planned in accordance with the latest ideas of library design, three sides of the building will have glass brick walls. A ramp in front of the building will serve as the main entrance and exit for the library. This is a nationally unique library feature, according to Dr. Wilcox.

The library will house 600,000 volumes and will accommodate 11,500 readers. The first floor of the building will contain two reading-rooms, each seating 350 people. With twenty-five square feet of space provided for each reader.

A maximum of 1,000 students are seated in the College's present facilities, with only sixteen square feet allotted for each.

To Speak

Robert Penn Warren

Robert Penn Warren, Pulitzer Prize-winning author of "All the Kings Men," will lecture today at noon in the faculty room, 200 Shepard.

This will be the first in a series of talks by prominent authors and poets presented in conjunction with Prof. Henry Leffert's (English) Comparative Literature 90 course. Everyone is invited to attend.

HERE WE GO AGAIN:

'Ugly Man' Contest Seeks Monsters

By Jack Schwartz

All self-styled Quasimodos and budding Hydras are invited to compete with each other in the annual "Ugly Man" contest.

Sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, the proceeds of this year's contest will go to combat infantile paralysis in the name of the late Sheldon Scherr, president-elect of the Class of '57, who was fatally stricken with polio last summer.

Get Even

Any organization wishing to get even with one of its members, may sponsor him by writing the contestant's name and his organization on the APO bulletin board opposite Knittle Lounge.

The homeliest of the hideous horde will be selected by balloting at stations on the North and South Campuses on November 2 and 4.

Voting Easy

The only requirement a voter needs is to place a contribution into the collection box under his favorite candidate for immortal infamy.

Last year's winner

There will be two separate contests, one for students and another for faculty and administration since the latter would naturally run away with the contest if they were allowed to compete with the undergraduates. Pres. Buell G. Gallagher was last year's faculty winner.

Cadaverous Contestants

Students vying thus far for this somewhat dubious honor are: Bill Brown '57, representing Chi Delta Phi, Irwin Krittman '57, sponsored by AIEE, Joel Engel '57, supported by Tech News, and a few other faces that were ashamed to give their names.

The administration will sponsor Dean Shelbourne Barber (Curricular Guidance), who will have some rough competition from Mr. Sy Schaffel (Geology), and Prof. Rene Vaillant (Romance Lang.)

Arnold Frisch '57 and Barry Mendelsohn '57, co-chairmen of the "ugly man '55" contest will see that the winners of this year's competition each receive an "ugly man's key."

No Compromise

The Student Faculty Committee on Student Affairs voted for a plan labeled "compromise" on Tuesday night hoping to silence some of the objections in the original compulsory membership lists ruling.

In doing so, the committee has missed the point concerning the objections. Opposition to the ruling is being carried on by sincere people who, guided by the principle of the individual's personal freedom, cannot compromise.

One of the hollow cries of those who favored lists at the meeting was that club members should "stand up and be counted!" They felt that no student should be afraid to make known his affiliations with organizations on campus. But they compromised, tagging a time limit on these affiliations, and the cry now reads, "Stand up and be counted by a few people for just one year." If the proponents of the membership lists were such firm believers in having everyone openly state his affiliation, they should have originally declared all lists to be made public. That lists are now kept under lock and key indicates a backing down from one of their basic premises.

It is evident that strong opposition has made the advocates of compulsory lists realize their untenable position, and these compromises are their only ways of slowly getting off the hook without admitting they were wrong.

They will feed compromise to those who oppose their stand, never considering the morality of the decision; never giving thought to the principles involved. But those who oppose lists will not accept halfway measures. They will keep chopping away at the original proposals and compromises until the very idea of compulsory membership lists is non-existent.

It would be a much more magnanimous action by SFCSA if it were to admit its error and rescind its original proposal for lists.

Ground Breaking

Today's library groundbreaking will be attended, we hope, by a good deal of the student body. It has been called a "family affair" by Pres. Buell G. Gallagher and is deserving of a good turnout.

The planned construction of the Morris Raphael Cohen Library is significant in that it will be the first project on the South Campus intended for the College's use from the very outset. A model of the building indicates that it will not be in the style and period of the old Army and Finley Halls. The library, modern in design, will provide space for many volumes now in storage and reading facilities for 1500 students, 500 more than can now be served.

Manhattan borough president Hulan Jack will keynote today's addresses. Other speakers will be Dr. Joseph B. Cavallaro, chairman of the Board of Higher Education and President Gallagher. We hope their words won't be wasted on a small group of people usually present at the College's ceremonies.

Rugged Individualism

From the mass of statistics which confront the student body, comes one heartening and yet sad fact. In the distribution of grades we see that one student out of 510 has failed Music. He is not even listed as a figure, but a mere decimal point. To this "decimal point" student we extend our sympathy.

Here is a man who is truly an individual spirit. He has stood alone against 509 students. He has succeeded in failing where over 500 others have failed in succeeding. We are sorry you failed but congratulations!

Coed Pool Player Picks Up Cue; Males Cornered Behind Eight Ball

By Bernie Lefkowitz

Man's last private retreat, the pool parlor, is being invaded and a co-ed is leading the charge.

Mrs. Faith Henkin '58, a very pretty transfer from Ohio State University, is a pool player extraordinaire. "I first learned the sport at the age of six," she said, "when my father showed me how to make a bank shot on top of an orange box."

This early training paid off when she finished second in the Ohio State University Tournament, her first actual competition. "Practice is the key to a good pool player," she said. "I intend to spend a good deal of my daily 12-2 break at the pool table."

The talented sophomore with cue stick magic came to the College when her husband was appointed as a Mechanical Engineering instructor.

Her expertness at the sport became evident at Ohio State where she was taught by professional players. Mrs. Henkin attributes a great deal of her skill to enrollment in a physical education course in billiards at the University.

"It is an ideal sport for women," she averred. "There is a minimum amount of physical activity required and greater coordination is developed."

Mrs. Henkin is looking forward to starting a women's billiard club at the College. "Hollywood is responsible for the lack of popularity of pool and billiards," she claimed. "The film industry characterized the sport as one played chiefly by gangsters — a definitely wrong impression."

Mrs. Henkin, an education major, foresees the day when pool parlor owners will hang frilly curtains on their windows and display signs boldly proclaiming, "Ladies invited, tea served at three."

College Fellowships Available For Students in Grad Work

"Many graduates of the College work hard trying to secure fellowships from other colleges without even realizing their own alma mater offers fine opportunities for graduate work," Mr. Al Israel, a fellow of the History Department, said recently.

Varied Duties

Mr. Israel, a newcomer to the department, has varied duties around the History office. Besides general office work he is called on occasionally to substitute for absent teachers.

The life of the fellow is further enhanced by his salary, usually 1500 to 1700 dollars. Mr. Israel has his own office, which he shares with another graduate student, but they have no secretary as yet.

Doing Grad Work

Not all fellows are novices in the field. For instance, Mr. Jerome Eckstein, doing graduate work in the Philosophy department, has taught courses at Brooklyn College. In addition, he ran his own antique silverware business for many years, was a hackie, and has a wife and three children on the side. His first child was born while he was taking one of his final exams. Both he and his wife came through with flying colors.

Another of his duties is to mark test papers, and he confessed that he had his share of trouble with tests in his undergraduate days, but now that the tables are turned he tries to mark as fairly and conscientiously as possible.

Cha-Cha-Cha

Chi Lambda, the College service sorority will hold the first of a weekly series of dance lessons today in the Grand Ballroom, Finley Center. This week the cha-cha-cha will be featured. All male and female students are invited.

What young people are doing at General Electric

Young engineer pioneers in design and sales of new tiny transistors

The germanium transistor—some smaller than the eraser end of a pencil and able to operate on a few thousandths of a watt—is probably one of the most promising developments in the electronics field today. It opens the way to new midget radios, TV sets flat enough to hang on a wall and many other exciting possibilities.

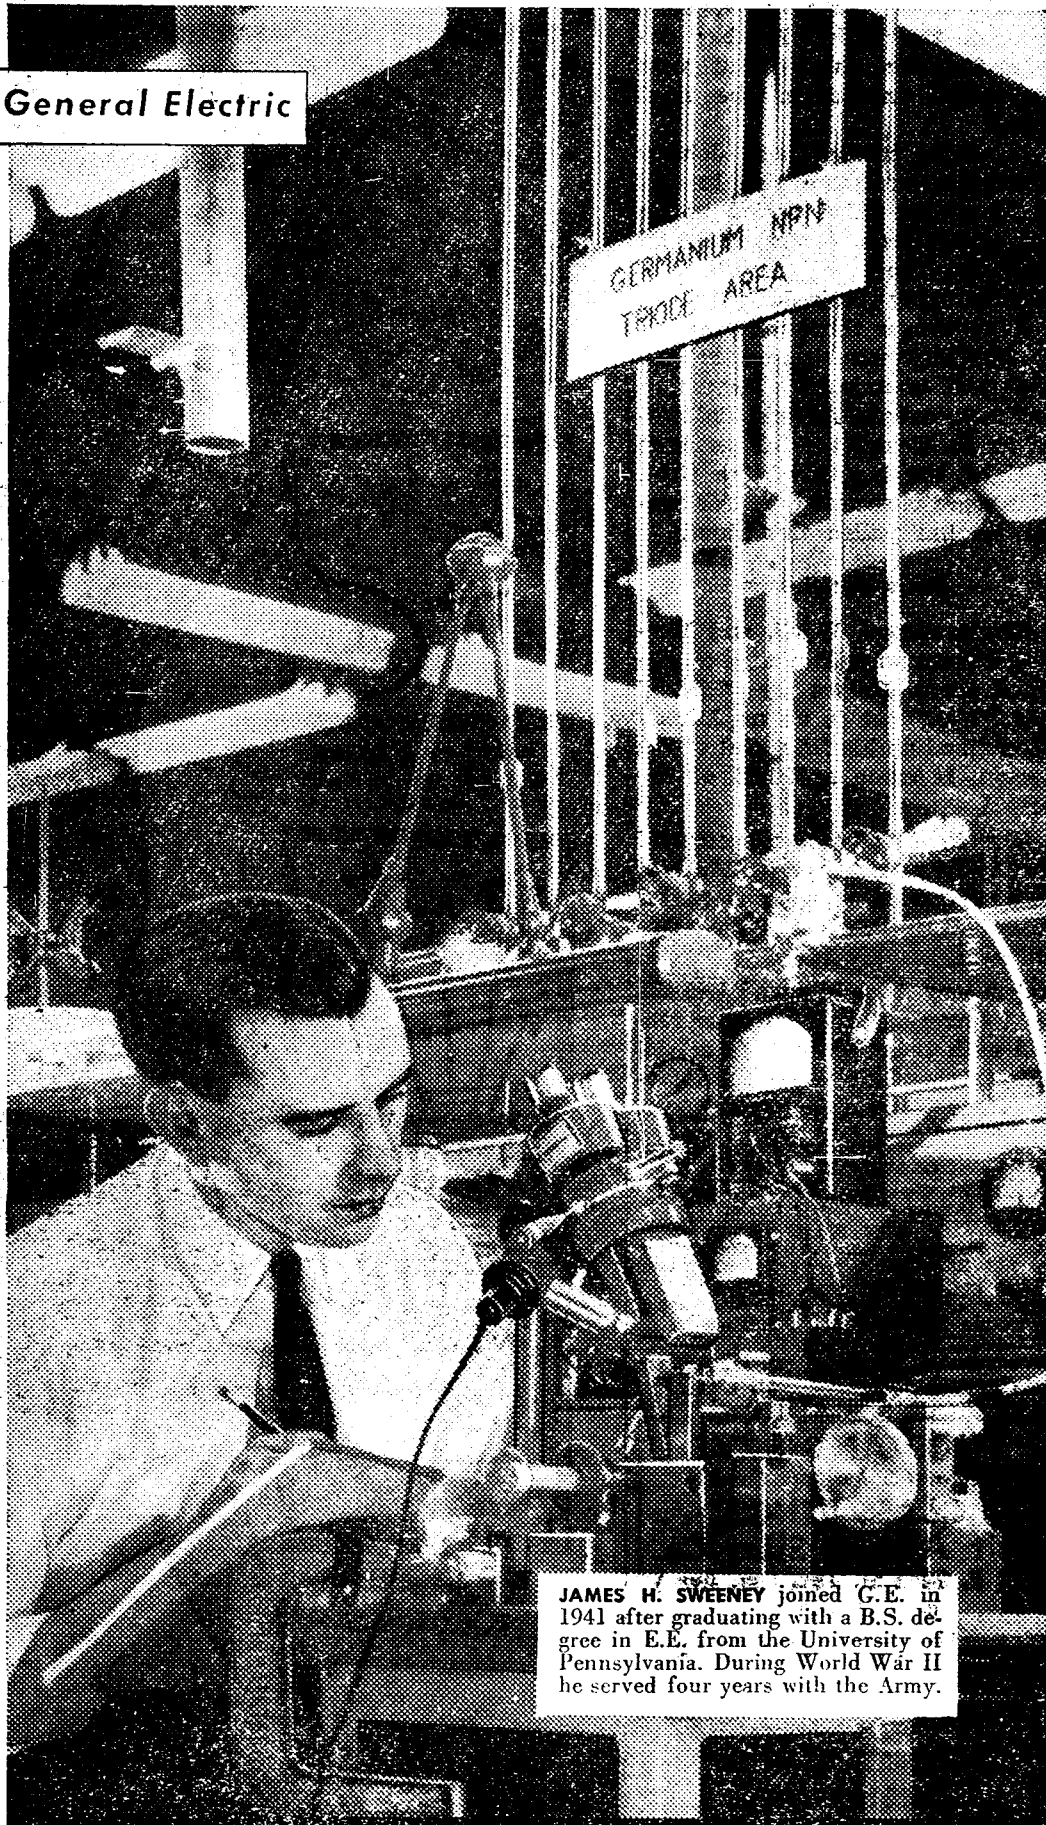

One of the men who helped design and perfect these tiny transistors—and the man who is now head of sales for all General Electric germanium products—is James H. Sweeney, Manager—Marketing, Semiconductor Products Department.

Sweeney's Work Interesting, Vital

As early as 1948, Sweeney was head of a group that studied the design and possible uses of germanium products. He gained national recognition for his work in developing and introducing these products to other industries, and when a new Semiconductor Products Department was formed in 1953, Sweeney was a natural choice for the job of marketing these products.

25,000 College Graduates at General Electric

When Sweeney came to General Electric in 1941, he worked in many different departments until he finally found the work he wanted to do. Like Sweeney, each of the 25,000 college-graduate employees is given the chance to grow, to find the work he does best, and to realize his full potential. For General Electric has long believed this: When fresh young minds are given the freedom to make progress, everybody benefits—the individual, the company, the country.

JAMES H. SWEENEY joined G.E. in 1941 after graduating with a B.S. degree in E.E. from the University of Pennsylvania. During World War II he served four years with the Army.

Beavers Trounce Adelphi, 4-0; Fencers Lose Key Men; Coach Sees Tough Slate

By Marty Ryza

If you were in Lewisohn Stadium yesterday afternoon you saw big Wally Meisen, goalie on the Lavender's soccer team slouched against one of the goal posts. Wally wasn't waiting for a bus. He was watching his teammates on the other half of the field rack up Adelphi, 4-0.

By winning their third straight Met Soccer Conference game, the Beaver booters tied N.Y. Maritime for first place.

Not only are they undefeated this season but they have yet to be scored upon in league competition. This is the seventh shutout Meisen has turned in against Met League foes over a two season span.

The story of the game was Beaver offense against Adelphi defense. Adelphi's scoring ability is conspicuous by its absence so they dropped their entire squad back to defend against the repeated scoring thrusts by the Lavender's forward line.

Three Goals in Third

This strategy worked for one half which ended scoreless. Come the second half and the Beavers' power and maneuverability asserted itself. They crashed through the pesky Panther defense for three third period goals and added another in the final frame.

Lavender scoring ace Johnny Koutsantanou broke the ice at 16:30 of the third period as he got a pass from Wolfgang Westl deep in the goal mouth and rammed it by goalie Jack Hyman.

A little over three minutes later, Bob Hayum registered the second goal unassisted. Hayum, a halfback, caught Adelphi flatfooted as he kicked the ball in from a third the length of the field. This was the second time this season he has pulled this stunt.

Arnheiter Scores

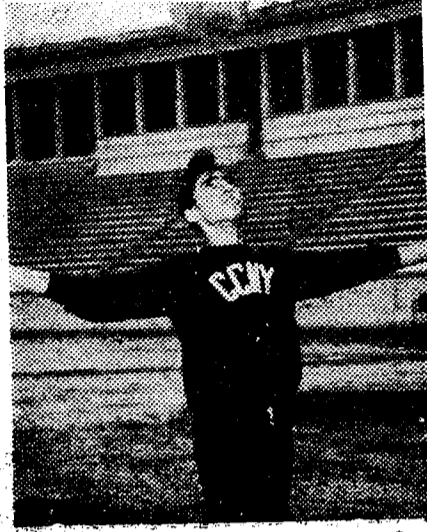

Koutsantanou, Westl, and Morris Hocherman collaborated on the third score. Passes by "Moish" and "Wolf" set it up as Johnny K. chalked up his fifth goal of the season. It came at 20:25 of the period.

The final tally was accounted for by Bill Arnheiter at 16:52 of the last period as he converted a loose ball to the right of the Adelphi goal.

A weary Adelphi squad left the field dragging an 0-3 league record with them. Only their all-defense style of play kept the Beavers from piling up a higher score.

Coach Ed Lucia's fencing squad will open its season on Dec. 17 against Columbia, the defending intercollegiate champion, without the services of last year's three top men.

Aubrey Seeman, last year's Eastern Intercollegiate Foils Champion, is no longer eligible and Al Gordon, another top foils man, has graduated. In addition to losing Seeman and Gordon, Lucia will also be missing last year's captain and number one sabre competitor, Dick Susco.

Lucia isn't making any predictions, but he has some very promising lower classmen who are expected to take up the slack. In comparison with the scheduled opponents, the College squad stacks up as one of the best in regard to physical condition, "but being trained and being able to win in competition are two different things," the coach said.

There won't be any soft touches on the schedule, according to the fencing master, as Columbia will be followed by N.Y.U., Yale, Princeton, Fordham and M.I.T.

with St. Peter's and Brooklyn thrown in to round out the very tough season.

Lucia is greatly pleased by the Hygiene Department's action which has transferred him uptown two days a week for practice sessions. The physical set up is also encouraging, he said. A room has been given over to the fencers in the Lewisohn Concerts Building and is being completely outfitted. In addition, the nearness of the cinder track gives the boys a chance to do some heavy running.
