Student Council Protests Ban on Gates; Gallagher Defends Presidents' Action

FCSA Votes to Reconsider Council Ruling

By Ken Foege

The Student-Faculty Committee on Student Activities ended last night a proposal by the Student Council protesting the ruling of convicted Smith Act violators from speaking at the College, and then voted to reconsider its action.

The Committee decided, by a vote of 5 to 1 with 2 abstentions, to reconsider the ruling within an eight-day period "to discuss more fully the merits of the action."

Originally, the Committee had voted in favor of the proposal by a vote of 4 to 1 with 4 abstentions. Steve Shacknow '57, initiator of the proposal, objected to the decision and the vote was taken "with inadequate discussion." Four abstentions, she asserted, "don't really register the Committee's feelings."

El Resnick '57, called the ban "ridiculous and ludicrous" and had the reputation of the College. Dr. Marvin Magalaner (Engineering) agreed that much can be learned from minority opinions but said "It is not up to us to protest the action of the powers above us, it would be a fair thing to say we are disturbed."

Speaks at SC, Press Parley On Gates

By Michael Spielman

Persons convicted under the Smith Act are guilty of a crime which "closely approaches treason," Pres. Buell G. Gallagher declared yesterday in defending the decision to bar John Gates from speaking at the College.

Dr. Gallagher had initiated Tuesday the ruling of the Administrative Council of municipal college presidents prohibiting Smith Act violators from speaking on their campuses.

The President made the statements about the new ruling at the Student Council meeting and at his press conference yesterday, in answer to questions concerning the banning of Gates, editor of the Daily Worker, who was to speak here next Tuesday.

"I will do nothing which can reflect honor or dignity upon those who have been convicted for their clear intent to destroy American freedoms," he said.

"The action does not mean," Dr. Gallagher said, "that other communists will be barred, providing they have not been prosecuted under the Pres. Buell G. Gallagher listens attentively to a question posed by a member of Student Council. The President appeared before Council yesterday to defend the ruling banning John Gates from the College.

'Queen Dance' Chairman Scores 'Engineer Apathy'

Engineering students to the College are "an apathetic lot," according to Steve Stone '58, Chairman of the House Plan, Carnival Queen Dance. The event will be held tomorrow night at 10 in the Grill Room of the Hotel Taft.

"The sale of tickets on North Campus has been very disappointing," Stone said. "This may be an indication that tech students simply don't care about College activities, and that they consider the College merely a means of learning a vocation."

Tickets for the affair are still available at three dollars and fifty cents per couple in the House Plan Office, 331 Finley.

The highlight of the evening will be the crowning of a Carnival Queen. Forty girls are entered in the contest, five of whom will be selected as Carnival Queen finalists. Among the awards for the winners will be a beauty course at Helena Rubenstein's, a gown and shoes from Orbach's, and corsages from United Airlines.

AN EDITORIAL:

The Two Long Hours

Pres. Buell G. Gallagher carried the ball for the Administrative Council of the Municipal College Presidents yesterday, through the highly vocal interference of Student Council and the college press. He didn't score.

In fact, he did such a poor job of rationalizing the Administrators' decision that he succeeded only in convincing most of his audience that he didn't believe in it himself. Students do not frequently get the opportunity to see Dr. Gallagher unable to argue on better-than-even terms with a group of their contemporaries. For when the President has resolved a question—in his heart—he is expert in persuading even the most skeptical audience of the validity of his point of view. Yesterday, he could do no such thing.

Dr. Gallagher's difficulties stemmed not from the keenness of his adversaries, but rather from the simple fact that the position he expended such energy in defending was almost inherently untenable. He began at three in the afternoon with a clear-cut, neatly mimeographed statement of the implications of the Administrative Council's ban on Smith Act violators. Two hours

JOHN GATES

Controversy Marks Career

By Barbara Ziegler

Embroided in controversy throughout his two-year career at the College, John Gates, editor of the Daily Worker, is once again the focal point of political strife on campus.

The soft-spoken, self-confident Gates, who is one of the foremost Communist leaders in the United States, inadvertently fired up the current ideological battle over academic freedom by being banned from speaking at the College.

Originally, the editor first developed an interest in the Marxian theories while attending the College. A social science major, he studied here during the depression years and was a leading member of the Social Problems Club, an organization which espoused Socialist doctrines.

Under the influence of fellow students, he soon became firmly entrenched in communism and played an active role in the campus strike protesting the expulsion of Max Weiss, a student editor who had vehemently protested compulsory membership in ROTC.

Following the strike, Mr. Gates took his first major step towards a future career by joining the Young Communist League.

Forced to leave college in 1932 by a lack of finances, he worked at odd jobs until, in 1937, he enlisted with the Loyalist Army in Spain. A member of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade, he rose to the rank of colonel in the unsuccessful struggle against Franco.

In December 1941, ten days after the attack on Pearl Harbor, Mr. Gates enlisted as a paratrooper in the United States Air Force. He served for five years, and after his discharge in 1946, he was made a member of the National Committee of the Communist Party.

A year later he became editor of the Daily Worker, and has held that position for the past ten years.

Charged with "conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the government," Gates was convicted in 1949 under the Smith Act and sentenced to five years in prison. After serving three years and eight months, he received time off for good behavior.

Columbia Invitation Accepted by Gates

John Gates, editor of the Daily Worker, has accepted an invitation to speak at Columbia for three days next week.

On Tuesday he will talk as a member of a panel at a rally, "In Definition of Academic Freedom."

His agenda for the following two days has not been announced.

The Eugene V. Debs Society, a Democratic Socialist organization at Columbia, invited Mr. Gates to speak at the rally after he was denied the right to speak at any of the municipal colleges.

later, weary and wilted, he retreated to gratuitous damnations of the Red Menace.

In the interim, Dr. Gallagher made it clear that the ban applies only to Smith Act violators. Conviction under the statute, he said, is "so close to treason as to be almost indistinguishable from it." Explaining why non-Smith Act communists would be acceptable as speakers here, while Mr. Gates is not, the President drew a delicate distinction. "There are depths within depths," he insisted. He then launched into a wordy analysis of the unscrupulous tactics of the communist movement.

We agree with Dr. Gallagher that a communist, whether the Justice Department has caught up with him or not, may be guilty of numerous infamies. But we fail to see how the Smith Act can legitimately be used as a criterion to differentiate one communist from another in this context. Communists who conspire to teach or advocate the violent overthrow of the government—and the underlying philosophy of the party has been just that for many years—are all potentially in jeopardy of prosecution under the Smith Act. Anyone, who believes—as Dr. Gallagher does and as we do—that communism is an international conspiracy cannot, in honesty, draw an artificial "circle" around Smith Act violators, singling them out for special treatment.

Dr. Gallagher also asserted that granting Smith Act violators the courtesies of the campus would, in degree, "dignify" them and their activities in the public mind. But in his mimeographed statement, the President declared that "communists, fascists, monarchists, and the spokesmen for all the other anti-democratic isms, can still come here and make their same dreary speeches." Is Dr. Gallagher more willing to bestow the dignity of the College on the proponents of these totalitarian faiths than on John Gates? And if so, why?

Dr. Gallagher further explained that Gates was barred because of his conviction under the Smith Act and his continued pursuance of the activities that led to his prosecution. But the President persistently emphasized through the two long hours yesterday that he is unwilling to "sit in judgement as a court of law" to rule on the loyalty of any individual. In fact, he rests on the Smith Act as the indication of condemnation by due process. Yet he has advanced a judgement on Gates, that, if true, would return the Worker editor to a federal penitentiary and in accusing Gates of continuing his subversive activities, Dr. Gallagher is, in effect, pre-judging and superseding the same due process he cites so affectionately.

The President pleaded ignorance when asked why the appearance of Ben Davis, another Smith Act felon, last semester went unprotested. "I did not know of his appearance until afterwards," he said. Even more surprising, Dr. Gallagher, who said he had personal knowledge of the communist movement for thirty years, added, "I did not know that he had been convicted under the Smith Act." He explained later, at an impromptu press conference following the Council meeting, that the multilateral ban on Mr. Gates by the five presidents had been precipitated by Provost Garvey's action at Queens College. "A decision had to be made here," the President said. "We cannot operate in a vacuum insulated from the actions at other municipal colleges."

Judging by this last statement and the lukewarm and unconvincing arguments he offered yesterday, it seems likely that Dr. Gallagher was obligated to defend the action of Provost Garvey and the subsequent multilateral action he acceded to with the other four presidents. "The buck stops at my desk," he said apologetically, flashing his best "it's tough being a president, boys" look.

The proposal passed by Student Council last night is the logical result of the President's thoroughly unconvincing defense of his actions. Dr. Gallagher proudly affirms his interest in student opinion on this issue. "Yes, of course, student opinion carries tremendous weight," he said in response to a question. "It's only a question of whether I will yield to it." He added that he feared this issue might be "the first major misunderstanding of his actions," in his four-year administration. But, had the President chosen to survey the student and faculty opinion he seems to prize so highly before making his decision, scores of students might have more confidence today in the actions of their President.

On February 19, 1953, at his inauguration, President Gallagher had this to say:

"The people's right to know is the key to all our liberties," and this right to know carries the right to inquire and teach freely—without interference from outside pressures.

We submit to Dr. Gallagher that freedom of inquiry cannot be limited by artificial criteria without being lost.

with Act provisions, or are not presently under indictment," He said that he would even be willing to debate publicly with such a per-

President Gallagher denied that the action was a "cover-up" for a decision by Thomas V. Garvey, provost of Queens College who refused to allow Gates to speak at an Academic Freedom Week meeting on Monday.

Asked why no notice had been given when Benjamin Davis, also a Smith Act violator, had spoken at the College last semester, Dr. Gallagher said he had not been aware that Davis was to speak, and that he had not recalled that Davis had been convicted under the Smith Act.

Questions Gates' 'Rehabilitation' No Smith Act violator, the President said, would be permitted to speak at the College unless he had been proven that he was no longer guilty of the acts which led to his prosecution. He said that Gate's agreement with the new American Communist Party Constitution which now takes stand against the violent overthrow of the government, and is in favor of achieving socialism through peaceful means, does not constitute part of his "rehabilitation." "I have checked the ins and outs of the Communist Party line," he said, "and whatever they may say their fundamental strategy is one of world revolution.

If we allow a person who has been convicted under the Smith Act speak here at the College," Dr. Gallagher said, "we take away the stigma of his conviction and make it appear to be a rehabilitated person." Gates, whom the President called a self-admitted liar, was convicted of charges that are "so close to treason as to constitute the kind of thing which should not be dignified by extending campus courtesies to him."

in a manner contrary to this idea of academic freedom."

Finally, the resolution concludes, "We strongly urge the Board of Higher Education to reverse this ruling and to end all such barriers to controversial speakers at the municipal colleges." The BHE will consider this question on Monday night.

'Mockery of Free Speech'

Opposing the resolution, Kenneth Genbaum '59, said that Council was "making a mockery of free speech. This irresponsible action will cast a shadow upon the name of the school," he cried.

The Administrative Council took action after SG Public Affairs Forum had invited Daily Worker Editor John Gates to speak at the College next Tuesday. Gates had previously been barred by Queens College Provost, Thomas Garvey, from appearing at that school during Academic Freedom Week.

SG President Stan Wissner '57, defended the resolution and accused President Gallagher of "compromising certain values for the sake of expediency." "He could have risen to the problem and been courageous," Wissner declared, "or he could have—as he did—go along with the Daily News."

Wissner and Supreme Court Chief Justice Howard Schumamm '58, were elected to a committee of students from all the municipal colleges which will investigate possible student action on this case.

Council also tabled a motion to sponsor with the Queens College Student Senate a picket line in front of the BHE meeting Monday night.

Squad's Two High Scorers Among Departing Hoopsters

By Bob Mayer

The points have been totalled, the averages compiled, the records filed away, and seven of the College's seventeen-man basketball team have completed their careers for Old Allagaroo.

No numbers have been retired. There will be no professional bids. In fact, five straight losses took much of the sheen off an otherwise brilliant record. Still, there are memories of fine achievements, and there are seven seniors who have donned for the last time the Lavender and Black.

There's Syd Levy, who joined the squad in 1954 as a gangling, uncoordinated reserve. It's the same Levy who was named Saturday to the All-metropolitan second team; it's the same Levy who will play next week for the New York All-stars; it's the same Levy who coach Ken Norton of Manhattan described recently as "the most improved player in the city."

Levy led the Beavers in scoring and rebounding for the past two campaigns. This season he averaged 16.9 points and 12.5 rebounds per game. He sparked the Lavender mid-season winning streak by tallying twenty points or more in six straight contests.

The towering 6-9 center dominated the Beaver basketball scene during the past two seasons, but he was not alone.

There was Ralph Schefflan, dependable backcourt man who averaged almost 14 points per game.

Second high scorer this year and last, his outside shooting has balanced the short-range scoring. Ralph hit for 20 points in the NCAA post season tournament game against Mount Saint Mary's.

There was Marv Rose, who joined the squad in his senior year and set the team afire with his unorthodox but deadly jump shot, despite an injured heel which plagued him during the second half of the campaign.

There was Jim Mazzaferro, a transfer from Brooklyn College, whose tricky dribbling and fine backcourt play aided in several key victories.

There was Bill Lewis, co-captain and a fine defensive player, a key performer in the victory over Wagner. His defensive play made the 66-58 win possible. Lewis' two clutch baskets in the Manhattan encounter almost pulled the game out for the Beavers.

And there were others, who didn't gain any headlines, but who played a vital part in making the season a success. There were Marty Doherty and Jim Sullivan, who in practice became the Paulsons and Ramseys of the opposition, to sharpen the defense of the first-stringers.

Not all of the players drew accolades from the crowd, but all feel they profited from their relationships with each other, and with men like Dave Polansky, Nat Holman, and "Red" Wolfe.

The record book is closed for seven seniors, but the benefits are lasting, and the memories remain.

Lacrosse

Lenny Fagen and Mike Volpe, both seniors, have been named co-captains of this year's lacrosse team. Fagen is an attackman while Volpe plays the mid-field. Both are in their third year of varsity competition.

Students wishing to join the lacrosse team should see coach Leon Miller any weekday after 3 in Lewisohn Stadium. The season will open with an alumni game, March 30.

Square Dance

A square dance, sponsored by the Finley Student Center, will be held today between 12 and 2 in the Grand Ballroom. Dick Kraus, a professional square dance caller, has been hired to instruct students and do the calling. All students are invited.

Sabremen to Defend Crown In Eastern Collegiate Meet

By Bert Rosenthal

A crescendo of "touche's" will resound tomorrow and Saturday when the College's fencing team competes against the top colleges in the east in the 60th annual tournament sponsored by the Eastern Intercollegiate Fencing Association. The meet will be held at the Hotel Concourse Plaza, 161 St. and the Grand Concourse in the Bronx.

The EIFA is an organization of twelve eastern colleges, including Brooklyn, Columbia, Cornell, Harvard, MIT, Navy, NYU, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Rutgers, Yale, and the College.

Individual and team trophies in each weapon division—epee, foil and sabre—and a team trophy award for three weapon supremacy will be presented.

The Beavers' sabre team will be trying to defend its first Eastern Intercollegiate sabre team championship which was won last year by the trio of Manny Fineberg, Elliot Mills, and Marty Wertlieb. Wertlieb, who won the individual sabre crown, has since graduated, but Fineberg and Mills will return along with sophomore Bob Melworm to see what they can do about returning the sabre title to St. Nicholas Heights.

Last year's three weapon champion, was Navy with 64 total victories. The Midshipmen also won the epee crown. Seeking the coveted Iron Man Trophy, symbolic of eastern foils supremacy, and currently held by Cornell, will be captain Joel Wolfe, Morty Glasser and Paul Tannenbaum.

The College has won the cup several times in the past, most recently in 1952 with a team of Bob Byron, Hal Goldsmith and Charles Piperno. The Lavender also won the award in 1948, 1949 and in 1953 with Cornell Wilde fencing for the College.

In the 1955 event, the College number one foilsmen, Aubrey Seeman, won the individual foil championship. This year Beaver coach Edward Lucia has high hopes that Wolfe will be able to regain the title.

Lucia said yesterday that Wolfe fences up to his potential and gets his opponents to fight his type of bout, then there is a good chance that he will be the epee champion. The coach forecast that Wolfe's strongest opposition should come from Al Paredo, a member of NYU's scholarship loaded and tournament favorite Violets.

In the epee division, Tony Urcioli, Milt Yabkow and Stan Hochman will compete for the Lavender. The highest an epee team has ever placed in the Easterns was a tie for third in 1955 with a team composed of the versatile Wolfe, Olympian team member Norm Zafman and Jonas Ulenas.

Final Basketball Statistics

Syd Levy was top man on the College's basketball team in all but two departments: field goals attempted and free throw percentage. The 6-9 center led in field goals made, field goal percentage, free throws attempted, free throws made, rebounds, rebound average, totals points and average. Ralph Schefflan with 283 shots from the floor was the team leader in that department. Stan Friedman, with 34 out of 42 foul shots converted for a sparkling .810 percentage, led the team from the free throw line. Schefflan's scoring total for three years of varsity competition stands at 640 points with Levy second at 585.
