Peace Won't at Brophy's Post: Pres.

James S. Peace (Student Life) is not among those considered by President James F. Brophy as Dean of Students, the President disclosed Monday.

Peace was appointed acting Dean of Students following the resignation of Dean Brophy in December and the subsequent split of the Department of Student Life into two divisions. Dr. Gallagher at an interview also discussed possibilities for the position. Louis Long, head of the Department of Student Services, Dr. Ruth Wright, Baruch Dean of Students.

Dr. Gallagher said he had interviewed several candidates individually and with them his plan to have two autonomous departments. Dr. Gallagher said, however, that his decision to search for a new man had been made before these meetings.

Looking all over the college for all over the College" for to fill the position, Dr. Gallagher said.

JAMES S. PEACE

President explained why he eliminated each of the three candidates from the running:

Dr. Wright is a senior staff member in terms of age and service. She's "so close to retirement."

Dr. Long's "abilities, background and talents lie primarily in teaching and counseling, not in administrative activities."

Dean Peace is not "a person with a primary field of training in personnel administration." Gallagher added that the Dean has a degree in educational administration and that his "first professional experience is in hygiene." Dr. Gallagher said that when questioned about the qualifications that will be required for the position, Dr. Gallagher said that the position to training in student services, the job requires "a supervisor plus."

President said further, however, that "with his [Dean's] background and a little common sense, he has done a very good job" as Director of the Finley Center.

DSL Keeps Records on All Students

Folders Are Open For Investigation By FBI Agents

By Vic Grossfeld

President Gallagher revealed in an interview Monday that records of the non-academic activities of every student at the College are kept on file by the Department of Student Life. They are used by the United States Government in granting security clearance.

The files are available only to FBI officers, US Army and Naval Intelligence officers and other qualified US Government security investigators, according to Dr. Gallagher. Students and College staff personnel do not have access to them, he stated.

Although few students have been aware that the files are maintained, the records have been kept by the College at least since Dr. Gallagher was inaugurated as President in 1952. The President said he knows of only one college which does not make such files available to security investigators—the Columbia School of Journalism.

The files contain information compiled by the staff of the College's Department of Student Personnel Services. Included are Freshman Orientation questionnaires, Bursar's entrance forms, Student Life registration questionnaires, correspondence with the College, clippings from newspapers and personal evaluations and reports by the DSPS staff.

According to Dr. Gallagher, the files have helped provide security clearance for "thousands of graduates."

'The Ptomaine Trio' Vocalizes To Protest Snack Bar Hours

Oh, we used to congregate every morning at eight
To have our cup of coffee and a little piece of cake,
But the breakfast club has vanished
And the kaffeeklatch is farnished
'Till they can get their coffee cup
At half past nine.

This is the first verse of "Half Past Nine," a song composed and sung by a group calling themselves the Ptomaine Trio, in protest of the shortening of the snack bar hours.

The trio, consists of Danny Shaw '62, Herb Berkowitz '63 and Elliott Shorter, an evening session student, who intend to present the song at today's meeting of student council.

If Council refuses to hear the plea of the Ptomaine Trio, according to Berkowitz, the song may "be reported out of the Student Affairs Committee," of which Berkowitz is chairman.

If the Council debut flops, the Trio will try to "confront Dean James S. Peace with it—if he grants us an audience."

The other two verses of the song emphasize the snack bar situation and propose measures to be taken if the demands of the first verse are not met. The second verse maintains that the "snack bar is cheerier than the filthy

Doman to Lecture On Eichmann Case

Nicholas R. Doman, Assistant Chief United States Prosecutor at the Nuremberg Trials will speak on the "Legal Aspects of the Eichmann Case" tomorrow at 12:30 p.m. in 106 Wagner.

Barry Brett, President of the Government and Law Society, which is sponsoring the discussion, said that Mr. Doman "will be objective . . . he has no bias." He added that "the speech will be especially timely since the Eichmann trial date has been set for April 11 and the presiding judges have already been chosen."

cafeteria" and that the cafeteria's coffee "is so vile."

The third verse proposes drastic action. It suggests "stringing up the Dean" and even capturing "Finley Hall."

Rosenberg Sees No Change In Representation on BHE

By Sandy Wadler

Dr. Gustave G. Rosenberg, Chairman of the Board of Higher Education, said yesterday that he was informed last week that a proposal enabling Governor Rockefeller to appoint seven members to the BHE was being "talked about."

According to Democratic Senator Joseph Zaretski, the Board of Regents requested Republican legislators to tell Dr. Rosenberg that a bill effecting this change "might possibly be brought before the legislature," this spring.

However, Dr. Rosenberg expressed confidence that the bill would not come before the legislature. He added that he "cannot support any change on the Board" and that he was certain "that the members will be against it."

The 21-member Board presently is appointed by Mayor Wagner. Although the state-appointed members would constitute only one-quarter of the Board, Senator Zaretski maintained that "the group could threaten to withhold the state's present aid to the City colleges" if the rest of the Board did not go along with it on other matters.

The present Board generally

Plan SC Action On Snack Bar

By Ralph Blumenthal

Drastic action will be taken by Student Council at its meeting today because of the College's refusal to accede to SC's demand for restoration of the original snack bar hours, Council member Bruce Markens '61 said yesterday.

A former vice-presidential candidate, Markens said he would be willing to introduce a motion to picket the snack bar or initiate a student "eat-in" demonstration, since "the Administration has not shown sufficient proof to justify the shorter hours of the snack bar."

Referring to the failure of Council's demand last Tuesday that the snack bar stay open from 8:30 in the morning to 10 at night, the hours as of last term, Markens said, "once reasonable demands are rejected, I think another outlook for Council has to be found."

At present, the snack bar is under a 9:30 to 9:30 schedule for a two week trial period instituted by Dean James S. Peace (Student Life). On Monday night, due to an oversight, the snack bar closed at 9. Last night, however, it remained open until 9:30.

Ted Sonde '61, sponsor of the Council demand, said he finds the present hours "inadequate. It is one man's decree," he said, "and not a compromise; it rejects the idea that the Finley Center is created for students."

In addition to demanding longer snack bar hours, Council's demand called for the North and South Campus cafeterias to submit financial statements to SC

Senator Zaretski publicly charged Sunday that the Governor was trying to gain "power" for the state on the BHE in order to impose a tuition fee on the municipal colleges.

File It, Please

The College has for more than eight years been giving information on students' political activities to government investigatory agencies for the purpose of security clearance. This we know today. We learned it Monday with profound shock. The shock has given way to a deep sense of disillusionment.

We had thought that an institution of learning would be the last to acquiesce in a system that violates the basic privacy of a citizen's political beliefs. We had naively assumed that our College, certainly, would not demean itself by setting up what is in effect a spy network to observe student participation in extra-curricular activities. On Monday we found out we were wrong about our school and every other college except the Columbia School of Journalism.

President Gallagher has told us he is prepared to make a "public defense" of the policy. He says we must weigh values, and he is right. But our scale does not tip on the same side as his.

The President says these personal records are the only means of enabling students to obtain security clearance for government employment. On the other side of the scale, however, we place our firm belief that a democracy must guarantee the right of privacy of political belief, and that the learning process must be carried on in freedom. The College may be serving its graduates in the exigencies of the present situation, but it is failing them and its students in a much more important way. It is failing to uphold basic individual rights and instead, performing a duty that, if it must be performed, belongs properly to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

There are those who argue that the nation's security is paramount, and that all efforts must be made to guarantee it. We can only answer that when a democracy suspends individual rights in peacetime, it is endangered in a much more subtle and invidious way than it is by a "security risk." A college especially has an obligation to support the rights of the individual against the encroachments of the state in the areas covered by the First Amendment to the Constitution.

We condemn the College's policy because it violates the right of privacy of political belief. We condemn the College for condoning and participating in the process of snooping on its students, and for not making this practice public until now. The keeping of political dossiers has no place in a college. Student Life staff members, who keep the files, have no more right to see them than does the FBI. And it gives us considerable pause that the Editor-in-Chief of this newspaper was permitted yesterday to examine one of the files simply by asking Dr. David Newton's secretary if he could have a look at it.

The system and the dossiers must be abolished, whether by the fiat of the President, the General Faculty or the Dean of Students. To do otherwise would be a travesty of individual freedom and academic dignity.

Plenty to Talk About

Students here will be asked tomorrow morning to fill out questionnaires on the proposed all-College conference for May. Two such conferences were held here previously — in 1952 and 1955 — and each met with considerable success. In 1961, undergraduates here should have much to talk about — from academic freedom to student-faculty relations. We trust that students will answer the questionnaires, which will cover this range of topics, seriously and intelligently.

DSL Files

is in Washington, D.C. Since many of the graduates have government jobs, which require security clearance, the files are used frequently.

"It does happen that a small number—certainly less than a dozen—have failed to get clearance" because of material in their files, Dr. Gallagher said, but if there were no records, a greater number would have been denied clearance, he declared.

"The clearance process would then have been based on hearsay and vague recollection," the President said. "A professor may confuse one person with another" and cost him a government job.

Dr. Gallagher cited an experience he had in getting cleared for the position of Assistant Commissioner of Higher Education in the Truman Administration, as an example of the value of keeping records.

An investigation lasting 28 months was made and, according to Dr. Gallagher, "the final decision [to clear me] rested on an accident of my working habits."

PRESIDENT GALLAGHER

Four clippings from the Daily Worker were uncovered, in which speeches made by Dr. Gallagher were misquoted.

"If I hadn't kept a record of those speeches, I would not have been able to prove that I was misinterpreted, and I probably would not have been cleared," the President said.

"Although he believes that these files are necessary, Dr. Gallagher said he feels that the student alone should decide whether to make his file available to security investigators.

He said this proposal has been debated by the General Faculty, which has jurisdiction over the administration of the files, but no action was taken by the group to change the present policy.

"If I were to attempt to make this change myself, they would probably reverse my decision," Dr. Gallagher said.

"However, I respect their reasoning, even though I am in disagreement," Dr. Gallagher said. "Besides a student's refusal to make this file available would probably cost him security clearance anyway."

Information on the way the files are compiled and the specific nature of the material in them could not be obtained yesterday, because Dean James S. Peace (Student Life) was not available for comment.

Library to Close Four Vacation Days

The Cohen Library will not be open March 31 to April 3, despite a Student Government request. Jerome Wilcox, head librarian, announced last week.

However, the library will remain open April 8 and 9, the last weekend of the Easter vacation, in a departure from previous policy. A request by Student Government last term resulted in the establishment of the additional open days.

The library will be closed March 31 to April 3 "in observance of Catholic and Protestant Easter holidays," Professor Wilcox explained. This is traditional librarian policy, and is followed by the other municipal colleges, he added.

In addition, the library will stay open on Decoration Day, May 30, for the first time.

Library hours for the Easter vacation are as follows:

- April 4 to 7: 9 to 5
- Saturday, April 8: 11 to 4
- Sunday, April 9: 1 to 5

Referring to his decision, President said it was "made out pressure from any quarter was my own decision and I full responsibility for it."

Beavers Lose Finale, 64-61, to St. Francis

The College's basketball team went down to the wire in its last game of the season as it lost to St. Francis, 64-61, last night at Wingate gym.

The Beavers and Terriers fought a nip-and-tuck battle with the lead changing hands six times in the last six minutes of play until St. Francis' John Jaisel hit a jumper with only one minute left to put the visitors ahead, 62-61. The cagers failed to score on their last two attempts.

Irwin Cohen, the Beavers' 6-foot forward, scored 22 points—14 in the second half. But whatever Cohen did right for the College, Jaisel equalled for the Terriers.

Playing only in the second period, Jaisel sent the Terriers ahead, 40-31, after their 33-31 half-time advantage. But the Beavers came back with nine consecutive points to tie the score at 40-all with six minutes gone in the second half.

But Jaisel then sparked a St. Francis rally that kept the Terriers out in front for another eight minutes. The Beavers grabbed a 53-52 edge—their first in the half—with six minutes left and held on until the final seconds.

Shelly Bender, playing the last game of his 3-year career, controlled the boards for the Beavers and scored 11 points until he fouled out with 4:07 left in the game. The cagers were ahead at this point 57-56, but didn't follow through with Bender out.

The cagers finished their season with a 7-10 mark for their third straight losing record. The Terriers now stand at 10-9 with only one game remaining on their schedule.

Freshman Sets Record

Alex Blatt set a new freshman scoring record with 38 points as the Beaver frosh defeated St. Francis, 75-69, in their last game of the season.

Net Captain Burned By High-Volt Wire

Jeff Zupan, captain of the College's tennis team, has been hospitalized with second and third degree burns which he received after touching a live electric wire on February 13.

The incident occurred when Zupan and a friend were walking along the tops of freight cars near Pelham Bay Park, in order to avoid the snow on the ground. Zupan came in contact with a live wire hanging overhead and immediately lost consciousness.

He was in critical condition for ten days, but was taken off the critical list earlier this week. Reached by phone at Misericordia Hospital in the Bronx, Zupan said he was feeling fine but would not return to school this term.

The netman's captain had been instrumental in the Beaver's winning of the Metropolitan Tennis title last Spring.

For the Record

By Jerry Posman

The stream of basketball history is responsive only to facts; there is no room for emotion in the mind of the cage historian when final records are surveyed. The sum of the victories and defeats is calculated and then placed in the archives of Beaver basketball, housed in Lewisohn Stadium.

If victories outnumber defeats, the total is placed in the right-hand column of a large ledger, proclaiming a winning season. If losses outnumber wins, it is placed on the left-hand side indicating a losing season.

Therefore, ten years from now when an observer views the records of the 1960-61 basketball season he will notice only that this season's record is in the left-hand column. No one will bother to seek out the explanations of "why" and "how" the Beavers had a losing year, and all the valiant efforts of this season's cagers will be doomed for posterity.

This is unfair and unsportsmanlike. Therefore, I am sure that no one will mind if a small notation is attached, at least to the Campus basketball records of the 1960-61 season so that no student will doubt the worthwhile efforts of this year's team. The notation will proceed as follows.

To Whom It May Concern:

In the year 1960 an experiment was attempted by the athletic administration that would allow the students of the once free higher education institution, the City College of New York, to attend their team's basketball games free of charge. While this policy change was being instituted, the College itself was engaged in a controversy over the merits of paying tuition or retaining the free system at the College.

The basketball team was instrumental in supporting the principle of free higher education by winning five of its eight games under the free system (at home) and triumphing only in two of nine when their fans had to pay (away from home).

The 1960 season also marked the first time in nine years that coach Dave Polansky became Coach Dave Polansky. The well-liked Professor Polansky ascended permanently to the position that Nat Holman had vacated the summer before the season had started.

Polansky had his first losing season in five years of coaching, but still managed to elevate the Beavers from next to last place in the Tri-State League, to the first division with a 5-4 record.

But, if anybody would have told Polansky at the beginning of the year that the cagers would finish their season with a 7-10 record he would have been as amazed as anyone. The Beavers lost their first four games of the season away from home and arrived at Wingate Gym in an attempt to prove that the first four contests were mistakes. They didn't break their losing streak, but junior Tor Nilsen proved his worth for the Beaver cause as he hit for the individual high point total of the season with 30 points.

Nilsen went on to complete the year as the Beavers high scorer, with a 15-point average, and as high rebounder.

After the 5-game losing streak, the cagers proceeded to reverse form as they won their next four games. Emerging as the hero in these encounters was Teddy Hurwitz, who reached his peak in the Beavers' toughest game of the season, a 67-60 victory over Fairleigh Dickinson. Hurwitz scored a career high of 22 points against the Knights.

The student body in 1960 also had a chance to view the transition of a clumsy, disorganized 6-5 semi-giant into a poised and effective athlete. This player, Shelly Bender, turned the laughs to cheers in his last season as he averaged 12.5 points per game and turned in the best individual performance of the year against Rider College with 25 points and 16 rebounds.

But most important, 1960 indicated a promising future for the basketball team as four of the five starters would return the following season and a well-balanced freshman team would graduate to the varsity ranks.
