21 Students Will Compete for Vacant Council Seats

Twenty-one candidates will compete for Student Council seats Tuesday's special election. The candidates' qualifications were certified yesterday with respect to academic performance and seriousness of intent by Alpha Phi Omega, the service fraternity. Perry Donber '63 APO President, announced that only one candidate of 21 had been disqualified. He said that the student had already handed out campaign literature before the official start of campaign yesterday. Student Council, however, re-validated his candidacy.

The twenty-one candidates' campaign costs will be restricted. Student Government experience, which aims at ending the "cost" of running for office. A prospective office-holder will be free of charge three stencils and five reams of paper.

THE CANDIDATES AND THE 6 SEATS

The following people are running for Council seats in Tuesday's special election:

Class of '63 - 3 seats
Benny Chan, John Lang, Steven North, Richard Schweidel, Marc Triebwasser, Lawrence Weiss.

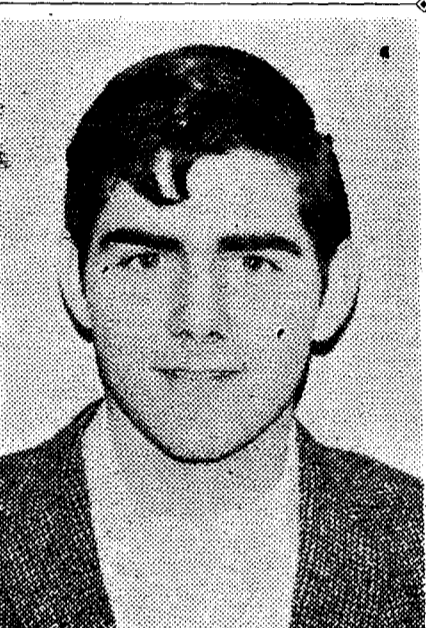

Class of '64 - 2 seats
Sam Eiferman, Eric Eisenberg, Ronald Goldberg, Jeffrey Hest, William Lentsch, Robert Levine, Girard Pessis.

Class of '65 - 1 seat
James Baltaxe, Michael Engel, David Finkelstein, Herbert Geller, Steven Groubert, Louis Koss, Adam Schweig, Carl Weitzman.

Frosh Tryouts

All freshmen interested in trying out for the freshman basketball team are invited to attend a preliminary meeting with coach, Jerry Domershiok next Tuesday at 4 in Wingate Gym.

SC SETS DRIVE ON 'OLE MISS'

BOB ATKINS sponsored substitute motion at Council meeting urging censure of Gov. Barnett.

Meeting during the last, frantic minutes of the Dodger-Giant game, Student Council last night passed a resolution calling for a "postcard drive" to express student opinion on the Mississippi crisis.

Council's mandate read: "The Student Council . . . urges the National Student Association Committee to sponsor a post card drive enabling CCNY students to express their ideas to the students of the University of Mississippi in care of the Student Government President on the problem of integrating the University."

Council further urged the Student Government President of the University of Mississippi "to call for free expression of opinion by all students there who support the integration of the University."

One of the co-authors of the resolution, Vivian Neumann '65, explained that the motion was aimed at the students there who might favor integration but are hesitant to speak up.

The students [at Mississippi] have almost been completely ignored," she said. "There must be some in favor of integration and we are trying to appeal to those students."

Another Mississippi resolution, offered by Bob Atkins '64 as a substitute motion, urged censure of Gov. Barnett.

Governor Asked Too

Robert M. Morgenthau, the Democratic candidate for Governor, has accepted an invitation to speak at the College on October 18.

Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller has also been invited but has not yet accepted. His decision is expected by the end of the week.

The gubernatorial candidates were invited by Lock and Key, the College's honorary leadership society, in conjunction with the American Association of University Professors.

The program, which will take place at 12:30 in the Finley Ballroom, is billed as a forum, not a debate.

Last year, the same two groups sponsored a forum with the two candidates for mayor — then-incumbent Robert Wagner and challenger Louis Lefkowitz.

Reports that both Governor Rockefeller and Democratic candidate Morgenthau would appear at Queens College on October 13 were discounted by the campaign offices of both candidates Tuesday.

Both Rockefeller and Morgenthau were said to have other engagements for the day.

Student-Drivers "Sit In" Here

In the luxury of driving to college every day, a select group of privileged students stoically arrive as early as three hours before the first class.

On the alternate side of the street, the regulations restrict parking on St. Nicholas Terrace until 11 in the morning. To get a parking space, the rules say you have to come after 10.

In the local police precinct, the officers forget to send around its representative between 9:45 and 10:15 to ticket vehicles parked illegally.

Student drivers who park at the end of their cars until 11.

One of them, Jimmy Strauss, said he likes "to do homework in the car, in peace and quiet." He also spoke of a friend who relaxes in his Chevy from 10 to 11, eating a box lunch, studying, occasionally napping.

A freshman at the College has already become accustomed to the intricacies of the parking system. He finds his car a pleasant place "with all the comforts of home, like radio and soft seats."

The parkers on St. Nicholas Terrace subscribe to a chivalric code of their own. Dan Brecher '63 explained that he "always left just enough room between the car behind and my own for a small foreign car. I like to make these guys feel good, getting into a space no one else can fit in," he added.

Another part of the code is that nobody can stray more than two car-lengths away from his own auto. That distance allows just enough time to dash back to the driver's seat when the ambulatory policeman approaches.

Bookstore Installs Anti-Theft Camera

By Larry Bortstein

A rectangular box located in the south campus bookstore is the latest of crime-fighting devices at the College.

The box, located above the Psychology section in the paperback area, houses a camera which is capable of photographing the entire area around the check-out lines of the store.

Although Mr. Ronald Garretson, bookstore manager, declined to comment on the methods of operating the camera and whether, it was being operated at all, he said that the purpose of the camera was "to prevent students from sweeping past the lines during our busy hours."

"Loss of books by theft has cost the store an average of $10,000 a year," he said. "We think that's a little high, and we have to prevent it."

Actually, students here have not been the main factor in prompting the addition of the camera. "People from other schools and adults who are professional pickpockets and thieves come in and often find it easy to pick books off the shelves," Mr. Garretson said. "But of course we do catch students and have sent them to the dean."

Music

Three compositions which are seldom played together will comprise the Music Department's annual Winter Concert: Mahler's Fourth Symphony, Stabat Mater and Te Deum by Verdi. Because all three pieces are written for a large orchestra and chorus, the success of the concert depends on large-scale student participation. Musically inclined students and faculty members should contact Prof. Jahoda in 229 Finley.

Man's Best Friend Formosan Educator Joins, Leaves Hillel Finds No Surprises In Tour of College

Last Monday, Greta C. Beagle wandered into Hillel house, made many friends, joined the organization, and was ejected—all in one day.

But Greta wasn't ejected just because she is a dog. "Membership is only open to registered students at the College," Hillel's Rabbi Arthur Zuckerman explained.

Greta had wandered into a meeting of the organization's executive committee, seemingly interested in joining. Because she had difficulty in speaking the language, some Hillel members pleaded her case.

They then took up a collection for the necessary $5 membership fee. Greta's membership card stated that she was a lower freshman born in 1944.

When Greta was later examined by Hillel's Assistant Director Yehoash Dworkin, she was found to display the symptoms of distemper. Accordingly, Greta was then sent to the ASPCA.

Both Hillel members and the directors agreed that this was the only solution. "We didn't even know if she was house-broken," the Rabbi said.

A later discovery proved that Greta wasn't.

Formosan Educator Finds No Surprises In Tour of College

The Dean of a Formosan university toured the College last week and later said that he wasn't very surprised by what he had seen.

Dean S. C. Tang of the Tungshai University said that he was struck by the College's size and activity, but that he had expected that.

Tungshai University has an enrollment of 800.

The Dean said that students here seemed very active in extra-curricular activities but that his own, smaller university boasted of 60 student organizations.

Mr. Tang was guided around the College by members of the Department of Student Life. He will stay in this country for six months visiting colleges and universities.

'The Juggler'

The Student Zionist Organization of Hillel is presenting a full length film, "The Juggler", starring Kirk Douglas next Tuesday at 4:10 in the Hillel Lounge, 475 West 140 Street.

There is no admission price to the movie. The film tells the story of a once famous juggler who has arrived in Israel from a concentration camp in Europe.

Letters

TEA

To the Editor:

Permit me to make a deplorably modest proposal to correct a situation which is presented to us in your columns over the signature of the President of the Student Athletic Association. He demands good tea—or cheap, he doesn't say which—for the "A" Team of the City College Cricket Club.

Why this callous disregard of the rights, welfare and interest of the "B" Team? Such discrimination is contrary to the established practices of the College, the City, the State and the Nation—not to mention the United Nations and the USNSA.

Moreover, to secure tea—good or bad—for an athletic team without extending the same privilege to all students is merely a thinly disguised form of subsidization of inter-collegiate athletics. There is nothing wrong with a subsidy such as free tuition, provided it goes to everyone and is not used to buy athletes only. To be acceptable, iniquity must be generally distributed so that all share its fruits.

It must be tea for all or for none. And if for all, then all must be required to drink it. That's why I do not demand that the faculty and administration get in on the deal. Let the students have tea. I hate the stuff.

Council

stitute motion to the postcard drive, urged a condemnation of Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett for interfering with the autonomy of the University.

The substitute motion was defeated.

Council's action last night follows a pattern of similar activity by student governments all over the country and especially those in the north east.

At other universities and colleges, students have indicated their concern over the Meredith case by wearing white arm-bands. No such resolution, however, was considered by Council.

In other action by SC, the second of three Executive Vice-Presidents was elected. Steve Reback '63 won the position. There is still one Exec post open.

The Council meeting was repeatedly interrupted by news of the Dodger-Giant baseball game. Many of the SC representatives brought radios to the meeting and SG President Ted Brown '63 issued repeated appeals that the game not interfere with the deliberative process.

Brown did, however, announce that he was a Giant fan and recessed Council for an hour in the ninth inning to allow the delegates to watch the game on television in Bittenweiser Lounger, where over 100 students had gathered for the occasion.

Campus to Campus

When Student Council passed the motion last night suggesting to the University of Mississippi's student body that it allow on its campus freedom of expression on the integration question, it did not, realistically, hasten the end of segregation in the South. But then again it didn't intend to; nevertheless the motion must be supported for what it was intended to accomplish.

Students at the University of Mississippi, the same students who violently rioted against James Meredith's admission to the University, study the same subjects that we study. The same books, scholars and facilities which are available to us are available to them. Yet our College has a heritage of integration; the integration of all categories of people into the "American" society.

The College's student body has a responsibility to this heritage. It also has a responsibility to the principle of freedom of expression for which student bodies here have often fought. But if we are to isolate ourselves within our own opinions and heritage, we are no better than those students we have so often criticized. We know of their opinions, or perhaps the opinions of the most vocal of them. Now it is fitting that they know ours. Then, perhaps, some of their own students will find the courage to speak against the apparent majority. But whether our letters move mountains or not, our intentions will be recognized: our responsibility to both our heritage and our contemporaries will be fulfilled.

It is sometimes forgotten that students here are moving mountains in their own back yard. The Harlem Tutorial Project is, and has been, helping to reduce the difficulties of economic integration in the city. It has not made the headlines; it has been non-violent and soft-spoken. But it has made progress.

It is more than symbolic. No one is naive enough today to deny that there is widespread segregation in the North; Harlem's very existence testifies to this. The causes of this segregation can be explained in both economic and sociological terms. Their cures lie in education: in the creation of well-educated leaders, in the creation of a professional class and in the creation of a citizenry who understand their position and how to reckon with it. It's as important as writing letters to Mississippi and may accomplish a great deal more.

Speaking of Politics

The speaking engagement here of Democratic gubernatorial candidate Robert M. Morgenthau is a feather in the cap of the College. Once again it has been acknowledged that the College is a significant forum for political expression.

We urge all members of the College community to attend the forum and to come equipped with important questions and comments.

But the significance of the forum is necessarily limited without the attendance of Governor Rockefeller. Although the Governor's opinions on certain issues affecting the City University—tuition, for example—have not always coincided with our own, a confrontation of these differing opinions is indispensable in the search for truth.

This has always been a basic principle at the College—one that has led to conflict here time and time again. We sincerely hope, therefore, that the Governor finds his way clear to attending on October 18.

Lock and Key, the honorary leadership society, and the American Association of University Professors, merit appreciation for their consistent efforts to provide the College with speakers worthy of its stature. Last year, just about this time, the same groups sponsored a forum with incumbent Mayor Robert F. Wagner and challenger and Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz. This year's program is the same tradition.

Noodles

By Ralph Blumenthal

"What're you doing?" asked J.B. of his friend Noodles. "I'm attempting to try and read the newspaper, or what do you think?" Noodles answered. "In fact, I'm trying to approve my knowledge."

"Improve," corrected J.B.

"Improve my knowledge about what is been happening all over the world and in the nation as well. Cannot an individual sit aside alone and read without being interrupted by every outlooker which passes? I mean you?"

"O.K., O.K.," said J.B., offended. "I'm leaving."

"Are you about to tell me that you are attempting to snob me?" means of walking away?" asked Noodles.

"The word is snub and it's you who snubbed me. Besides, what're you reading?"

"I am reading about the stories of two students which are attempting to try and enter into two universities," Noodles explained. "Of the students which is trying to become accepted into Mississippi and other into a college in Brooklyn."

"You don't say," responded J.B.

"Yes I do say. And do you know what I think it seems to me? I think that they are more students which are being kept out of college then they are in college."

"Really,?" said J.B.

"Yes, Really. And I have a theoremism."

"Theory," corrected J.B.

"You have a theoremism too?"

"No," said J.B.

"Well I do. Listen. They are more students which are being kept out of college then they are in it. Right?"

"If you say so," agreed J.B.

"I say so. And this is a democratical society, right?"

"Democratic and Republican," corrected J.B.

"Now you are trying to make fun of me," said Noodles, "and told you countless numbers of . . ."

"Countless," corrected J.B.

"Countless numbers of times, I am not about to be made fun of. Even if I am not so good-looking that does not give you the right to and attempt to make fun of me. I am not about to be used for jokes."

"I apologize," said J.B.

"Now in a democratical society," continued Noodles, "the majority does rule the minority, right?"

"More or less," said J.B.

"More or less, they do!" insisted Noodles. "Now if they are more students which are being kept out of college then they are in college if the majority does rule the minority in this democratical society, the students which are being kept out of college can kick those who are in college, out. Right?"

"Well . . .," stammered J.B.

"Irregardless of 'well,' I am right," said Noodles. "Besides, your theoremism would have countless benefits. First of all, it would be about to solve the dilemma of . . ."

"Dilemma," corrected J.B.

"So you know what it would solve?"

"No," said J.B.

"Well, it would solve the problem of educating more students which are being educated now. And without building more buildings to put them into."

"Amazing," said J.B.

"Second, it would end the spectacle of segregation in the south."

"And north," corrected J.B.

"And even the north too, even though I don't think there is any more segregation in the north, by turning over the colleges to the Negroes, which, everybody knows, are the biggest majority of students out of college."

"Amazing," said J.B.

"Third and final," said Noodles, "my theoremism provides for a expensive legalistical battles over students which want to go to college but are not about to be smart enough. What do you think of my theoremism now?"

"Amazing," said J.B.

"Now I am going to see President Gallagher on the subject of your idea. Doubtlessly, he will think it is amazing also."

"Good luck," said J.B.

WHAT TO WEAR TILL THE DOCTOR COMES

Now that you have enrolled and paid your fees and bought your books and found your way around campus and learned to hate your roommate, it is time to turn to the most important aspect of college life. I refer, of course, to clothes.

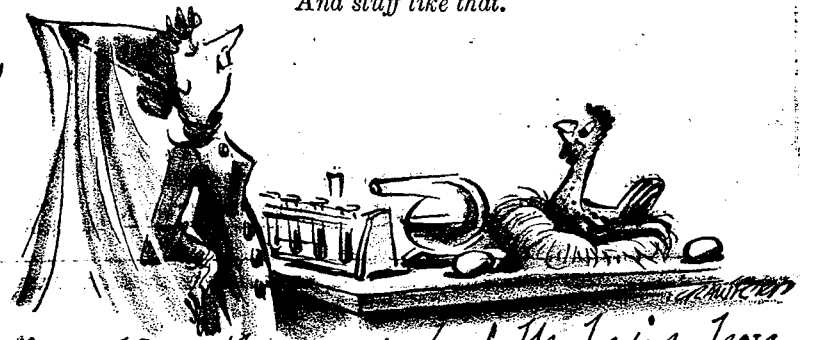

What does Dame Fashion decree for the coming school year? (Incidentally, Dame Fashion is not, as many people believe, a fictitious character. She was a real Englishwoman who lived in Elizabethan times and, indeed, England is forever in her debt. During the invasion of the Spanish Armada, Dame Fashion—not yet a Dame but a mere, unlettered country lass named Moll Flanders—during the invasion, I say, of the Spanish Armada, this dauntless girl stood on the white cliffs of Dover and turned the tide of battle by rallying the drooping morale of the British fleet with this stirring poem of her own composition:

*Don't be gutless,
Men of Britain,
Swing your cutlass,
We ain't quittin'.*

*Smash the Spanish,
Sink their boats,
Make 'em vanish,
Like a horse makes oats.*

*For Good Queen Bess,
Dear sirs, you gotta
Make a mess
Of that Armada.*

*You won't fail!
Knock 'em flat!
Then we'll drink ale
And stuff like that.*

As a reward for these inspirational verses Queen Elizabeth dubbed her a Dame, made her Poet Laureate, and gave her the Western Hemisphere except Duluth. But this was not the extent of Dame Fashion's service to Queen and country. In 1589 she invented the laying hen, and she was awarded a lifetime pass to Chavez Ravine. But she was not to end her days in glory. In 1591, alas, she was arrested for overtime jousting and imprisoned for thirty years in a butt of malmsey. This later became known as Guy Fawkes Day.)

But I digress. Let us get back to campus fashions. Certain to be the rage again this year is the cardigan (which, curiously enough, was named after Lord Cardigan, who commanded the English fleet against the Spanish Armada. The sweater is only one product of this remarkable Briton's imagination. He also invented the glottal stop, the gerund, and the eyelid, without which winking, as we know it today, would not be possible).

But I digress. The cardigan, I say, will be back, which is, I believe, cause for rejoicing. Why? Because the cardigan has nice big pockets in which to carry your Marlboro Cigarettes—and that, good friends, is ample reason for celebration as all of you will agree who have enjoyed Marlboro's fine, comfortable, mellow flavor and Marlboro's filter. So why don't you slip into your cardigan and hie yourself to your tobacconist for some good Marlboros? They come in soft pack or flip-top box. Cardigans come in pink for girls and blue for boys. © 1962 Max Shulman

Cardigans or pullovers—it's a matter of taste . . . And so is Marlboro a matter of taste—the best taste that can possibly be achieved by experienced growers and blenders—by science, diligence, and tender loving care. Try a pack.

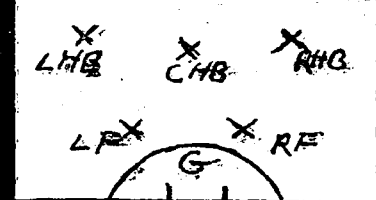

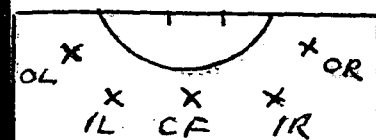

LIU's New Defense Provides Challenge for Beaver Offense

By Barry Riff

As if maintaining a high powered scoring attack wasn't trouble enough for the College's soccer team, LIU has come up with a new defense that is supposed to limit the scoring of even a potent, experienced offense.

The Blackbirds are planning to use six defensemen instead of the usual five, against the Beavers on Saturday because their backfield is filled with inexperienced sophomores.

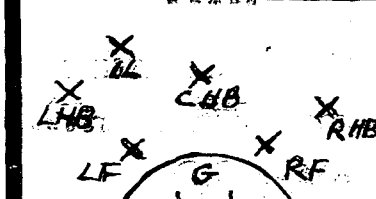

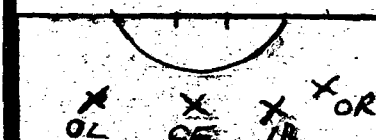

The brainchild of coach Gary

THE STANDARD DEFENSE

Rosenthal, the new formation is expected to compensate for the loss of two of the Long Islanders' experienced operatives.

The big loss was that of John Brunton who quarterbacked the defense from the center halfback position last season. Bob Fager, the freshman goalie last year will take over Brunton's position this season. Rosenthal can afford to make this move because of a powerful offense led by Ray Klivecka who scored 17 goals last season. Also back is Paul Pertran who was second to Klivecka scoring with eight tallies. They will be joined by hard kicking Dieter Fickett and Norbert

LIU'S NEW DEFENSE

Rosenthal is jubilant over the state of his offensive line.

"This is the first time I've ever had more than one real soccer player on the team," Rosenthal said. "And with four forwards like we have, a fifth would be a fifth wheel. This way we can add the extra defensemen."

Rosenthal was not alone in his decision to change the defense, however. Beaver coach Harry Karlin discussed the plan with Rosenthal during the summer. Karlin approved, and may even go to the same strategy later in the season if he thinks the booters will benefit by

Harriers Start on Low Note, But Expect Pace to Pick Up

By Harvey Wandler

Anyone following the fortunes of the College's cross-country team for the past three weeks must have felt like he was following the ups and downs of a sine curve.

At the beginning of the term, all the Beavers were looking forward to a record breaking season because they had been working out all summer, so they were already in top shape. They were anticipating little or no difficulty in winning the Municipal College and Collegiate Track Conference championships.

Last year the squad captured both these events and had an 11-1-1 record.

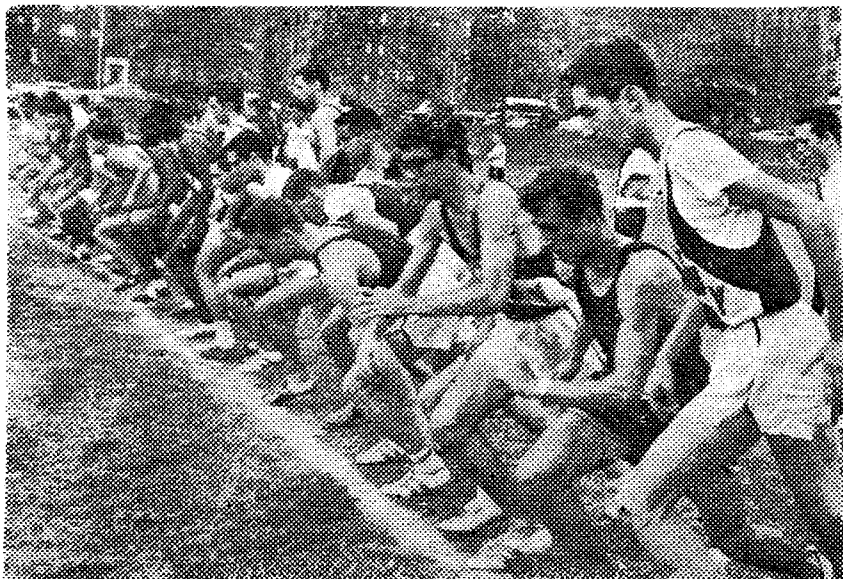

But after coach Francisco Castro started practice sessions it appeared that the squad's fortunes began to slide downhill. Captain Paul Lamprinos had a couple of minor leg injuries, Julian Offsay suffered an intestinal injury, and Mike Didyk wasn't in top shape.

The Harriers seemed to hit a low point in a practice meet with the Bruce Track Club last Saturday in Van Cortlandt Park. Al Paullay, the coach of the College's freshman track team also coaches the Bruce Club.

Even though the Beavers won, 25-30, their times were comparatively slow and disappointing.

Didyk led the Beaver runners with a time of 30:33. He placed second behind Bruce's Carl Gilmore, while Lamprinos was third finishing half a minute behind Didyk. Lenny Zane did not compete in the meet.

"In general, we ran pretty lousy," said Lamprinos. "No one was up for it. It wasn't the big thing everyone was concentrating for."

AND THEY'RE OFF: Lenny Zane (r) and Paul Lamprinos (2nd from right) set to start in last year CTC championship at Van Cortlandt Park. They are expected to lead Beavers again this year.

Even Castro predicted that the record would be broken in the first meet of the season—next Saturday against Fairleigh Dickinson and Hunter.

But the coach was so irritated with the "slow" times against the Bruce Club that he stopped giving the split mile times to the runners at various points along the course because he thought it discouraged them.

"The coach wants us to forget about the clock, and concentrate on the race," said Lamprinos.

At any rate, the Harriers feel they'll undoubtedly do much better next week. With Zane, Lamprinos, Didyk et al back in top form they're confident they're on the upswing once again.

Saturday's Games

BASEBALL

Beavers meet St. John's in doubleheader at St. John's campus, 175 Street and Union Turnpike. First game at 11.

CROSS-COUNTRY

Harriers face Hunter and Fairleigh Dickinson in triangular at Van Cortlandt Park. Freshman race at 11; Varsity race to follow.

SOCCER

Booters open defense of Met Conference title against LIU at Zeckendorf Field, 190 Willoughby Street. Game starts at 11. Field can be reached by IND subway to Hoyt-Schermerhorn St. or BMT to DeKalb Ave. or by car across Brooklyn Bridge to campus at Flatbush Ave.

The Female Water-Boy

By Marion Budner

Last Wednesday the College's soccer team—26 men and a girl—me—traveled to Baker Field to meet Columbia in a scrimmage.

That day I got my baptism of competition, as the first girl soccer manager the College ever had. Fortunately my boys won, 4-1.

When coach Harry Karlin offered me the job, with that wink of his, I thought he was just joking. But the coach wasn't and I took the job. At first I thought it would be great fun—myself and 26 men, 26 gorgeous ballplayers, thrown together every afternoon.

Then I realized that being a manager is more work than play.

I went to the first practice all dressed up and wearing high heels. Then I learned that I had to retrieve the ball and kick it back. So the next day I showed up in slacks, a sweatshirt and sneakers—just like one of the boys.

But where I really learned was at Baker Field. First, I had to carry a water bucket to the bench—as daintily as I could.

"Hey beautiful, you shouldn't work so hard," called out one of our forwards as he watched me tramp toward the bench. However, he violated the cardinal rule of soccer—never take your eye off the ball—and he missed an easy pass.

"There she goes, shouted another player, "our girl water boy."

Then I had to hide the two boxes of oranges that the players eat at half time. The players kept coming over to me for the thirst quenching oranges, however I like to think they just wanted to speak to me.

But, believe it or not, the hardest thing to learn was to cheer in five languages — Italian, Greek, German, Spanish and English. That's so no one on the team gets offended when he scores a goal or makes a brilliant play.

I'll probably learn all of these things in time, but there's one thing I'll never overcome — the post-game situation. You see most fields don't have a ladies' room. Baker field is no exception, and that wait on the steps of the locker room, talking to a players' girl friend, can be awfully long.
