Health Dept. Closes Spanish Classrooms

The Spanish classrooms of the Romance Languages Department were closed down in a surprise raid yesterday by the city Health Department.

DOWNER HALL just before a surprise investigation by the Health Department yesterday.

"This place is a horrible slum, unfit for human habitation," explained Deputy Health Commissioner Kenneth Klean as he sealed the last of seven rooms in Downer Hall. An anonymous phone call two weeks ago prompted the Health Department investigation, Mr. Klean explained.

Mr. Klean expressed "sheer amazement" over the state of the Spanish classrooms. "It's horrible," he said, "to see large rats from the basement cafeteria scampering across the floor of a classroom. Its even more horrible to see seventy students and three teachers crowded into space for twenty people."

Professor Gastric Ghoul (Chmn., Romance Languages) attacked Mr. Klean's statement as "sheer fabrication." "There's plenty of room in these rooms," he asserted, "and as for their dirty condition, well, you know how these people are just naturally dirty, drunken people."

Professor Ghoul was supported by Dean Jimmy Pierce, who commented, "Why don't all these people go back to where they came from?"

In other developments, a group of instructors of Spanish courses issued an open letter supporting the Health Department action, and severely criticizing Professor Ghoul.

The instructors, members of the Committee for the Creation of Decent Teaching Conditions at City College, stated in their "100-Page Documentary Report on Evil" that:

Dean Charges A Foul Move By Turkowitz

By Student Fees

Dean James A. Piece said yesterday that Stephen Herbert Igor Turkowitz '66 would have to change his name if he wished to run for Student Government President.

"I've been through this before," Piece said. "His candidacy is simply a foul move. Why doesn't he just change his name to Herb Burkowitz, or something?"

Turkowitz, who formed the Party for Higher Use of Constitutional Knowledge for the campaign, protested Piece's action.

"I don't give a student higher integrity ticket what Dean Piece says. My name will not be dropped," he explained.

SG observers said they could see nothing wrong with Turkowitz' name. "Many of us often use our middle names to lend an air of dignity to the campaign," one said.

Several council members, however, protested Turkowitz' choice of a name for his party. "His party seems to promise more than it can deliver. The initials seem calculated to get a rise out of the student body," said Mob Barfus '63.

"So what," said Carol Rackedup '69, "we've been doing that kind of stuff for years."

Dean Piece said he could see nothing wrong in the initials of Turkowitz' slate.

"I don't see anything wrong with the initials of Turkowitz' slate. But his name will have to be eliminated," Piece said.

OP Suspended In SC Action

By Clyde

Student Council last Wednesday revoked the charter of Observation Post, an English language morning newspaper at the College.

OP, as the tabloid was wont to be called, published here intermittently since 1947.

The resolution revoking the charter was passed unanimously. It charged OP with "slander, distortion, malice, vindictiveness, BO, lying, cheating, stealing, sexual abnormality, poor punctuation, radicalism, and bad spelling."

"We never said we were perfect," exclaimed OP Editor-in-Chief, Barbara Schwartzbalm, on hearing of the Council action.

Miss Schwartzbalm said that she did not dispute the validity of the charges, but only the degree of punishment.

"OK, so we're bad, we can't write and we think bathing is bourgeois," she explained, "but is that any reason to be so nasty to us?"

Summing up the feelings of Council, member Fred Brown pithily observed: "Who said a dull morning newspaper had to be good?"

Echoing Brown's statement was his sometime associate and SG politician, Frankly Daniel, who remarked only, "Brown knows."

The end of OP brought the following immediate reactions:

- A telegram of congratulations from Washington to the Council
- A telegram of protest from the Kremlin to the Council
- A tremendous fraternity beer and sex party
- A mass suicide by the Marx-

Dean Blessed Set to Publish Autobiography

Buy Cold Beer

Latest addition to the College faculty's growing list of authors is South Campus' most popular Mormon, Dean of Students Wally Blessed.

Dean Blessed, who came to the College from the University of Utah last September, is writing his autobiography, "I Led Three Wives."

The brown-eyed amiable Dean is known around the Campus as "Willowly Wally." According to the Dean, "my three wives, Hilda, Nilda and Griselda keep me thin."

When asked for further comment, the Dean, as he is wont to do, replied only, "hmm,hmm, ya, ya."

Dean Blessed also revealed that i.e. Latrine, the College's Public Relations Director, would ghost-write the book. Mr. Latrine is famous as a popular writer of children's books.

When asked by President Goullagher if he were going to ghost-write the book, Mr. Latrine said, "Absolutely, Dr. Goullagher."

"Positively, Mr. Latrine," retorted the outraged President.

Economics

The Boardwalk-Park Place duo is nowadays, by most experts in the field, considered the soundest investment in Monopoly. Although the initial cash layout may be considered a bit steep, past yield records reveal it to be a consistent money-maker.

Brett Hall Action

By By Botya

Police last night uncovered one of the largest vice rings in the city's history in a raid on the College's Brett Hall.

73 arrests were made while two hundred of the house's clients were taken to the 26th precinct for questioning.

Reached by phone at the 26th precinct last night President Giggler said, "this puts an end to the Faculty Spouses Committee."

The wives could not be reached for comment, according to Sergeant Patrick Ward of the Police Department. "They're allowed only one call—that is, only one telephone call," he said.

Dean James S. Piece, (Lewd Life) who was seen "sneaking out the back way" later said today's classes will be called off. "A majority of faculty members are temporarily indisposed."

"They will be raring to go again by Tuesday," he added.

Dean Morty Gotchel, who was reached at his home, said regretfully, "If the police close down Brett Hall it will break a forty year tradition at the College."

Asked why he wasn't present at Brett Hall, the septuagenarian replied, "There's no point to it any more."

Brett Hall, which ostensibly housed the College's switchboard, was founded by Millie Crotch in an attempt to offer faculty members added incentive at the College.

It immediately became one of the most gratifying aspects of the College.

The atmosphere in the OP office Wednesday night was tense: sandals and old guitar strings lay strewn mel pell in the filth where the shaking hands of crazed OP people had thrown them. Then, word arrived from Council.

"We've been shafted," daintily observed former editor Barbara Brownie. "There's nothing to do now but apply for an IFC charter as Omicron Pi," she added.

Piece Is Selected For Miller Award

Dean James S. Piece (Stewed Life) was named yesterday as the recipient of the College's Henry Miller award for 1963.

The award, which is named after the writer who attended the College before being expelled for obscene men's room scribbings, is annually presented to the College official who is empathetic and has a high degree of integrity.

In accepting the award at a secret DSL cell meeting, Dean Piece, said: "I am empathetic and have a high degree of integrity."

The award committee, in an unabridged and unexpurgated statement, said it named Piece because he was "like a father to the sons and daughters of the College."

"The fact that Dean Piece was responsible for hundreds of unmarried coeds makes him the perfect choice for the Henry Miller Award," it concluded.

Rap Up

How do you say goodbye and good riddance to a newspaper? A newspaper which for 10 these many years has symbolized all that is foul and rotten in college journalism. A newspaper which by contrast has made THE CAMPUS seem the ultimate in human achievement in all phases of endeavor.

The College will not be the same without Observation Post. A specter has been haunting the College, the specter of OP. Now an *OP*pressive weight has been lifted. Perhaps justice and freedom will reign again. . . .

There are, however, two sides to the issue. For while OP's editorial policy was intolerable, its journalistic standards were horrendous.

We need only look to the 23 House Plan members who were driven to suicide by what OP later called a "typo." An editorial was written in which . . . But these are matters best forgotten, along with the hundreds of innocent coeds who now walk the streets at night unable to look themselves in the eye. Another typo.

But a newspaper is more than just 4, 8, or 12 pages of newsprint and ink. It is the sweat and toil of numerous truly dedicated people. It is a spirit which fights courageously against what are sometimes insurmountable odds for what it believes is right. OP was none of this. Instead it was an insidious ill-worked plot to gain power.

We are indeed being kind to OP and we realize that we risk a great deal.

We are indeed being kind to OP (much too kind, in fact) when we say that their sole purpose for existing was the perpetration of evil. Their chief advisor might well have been Satan himself. The sole objective seems to have been to take all that was good and pure and prostitute it. (And we think it unnecessary to comment on the absolute lack of moral character displayed by every member of the OP staff).

Over the years, there was, however, one consolation. Observation Post's insidious and evil plots were often thwarted by the sheer stupidity of its members. Often they were simply unable to communicate their diabolical plans accurately.

We look back with horror now when we realize that OP used a unique type of printer's ink—an ink with an arsenic base. Observation Post truly was a paper you wouldn't want to wrap fish in.

We Are Shocked

We are shocked and mortified by the recent scandalous disclosures concerning Brett Hall and the Faculty Spouses Club.

We are amazed that such a situation has gone unheeded all these years.

We are ashamed of the faculty spouses who are supposed to represent all that is good and pure in the academic world.

We are curious to know who paid for police protection all these years.

We congratulate Dean Fleece as the man responsible for all the pregnant coeds.

We hope that the sterling example of the Faculty Spouses Club will spur the coeds to bigger and better efforts.

But mainly, we're mad because no one ever told us about Brett Hall before. Who's got the action?

Profiles

Below are sketches of the editors of the now defunct paper, Observation Post.

BARBARA SCHWARTZEMBALM '63 always keeps her head in a crisis. See picture. She joined OP nine terms ago, when she wandered into the office on her way to a sit-down strike. Miss S., as she is wont to be called by her staff, is the latest in the long line of female editors of OP. Like her predecessors, Miss S. hopes to snare a liberal husband before she graduates. "My wants are few," she exclaims, "a house in Scarsdale, a new Cadillac each year, and a subscription to the Readers' Digest for my library."

BARBARA BROWNIE, associate editor of the now defunct Observation Post, is a home economics major when not busy grinding out social-conscious copy for the paper. The black-eyed, gray-haired Babs, as her intimates call her, lives in the Bronx, and loves lox, Marx, and picketing the U.N. in the autumn season. After graduation, Miss Brownie hopes to attend a journalism graduate school, where she will learn how to write for newspapers. She wears long flannel underwear, and sleeps in a large double bed with the windows open.

VIOLA NEUMAN, OP features editor, is often complimented for her astonishing resemblance to magazine personality Alfred E. Neuman. "We are not related, and the first I heard of Alf Neuman was when Dean Spiece ran up to me and giggled, 'What me worry?'" the diminutive Miss Neuman recalled with a chuckle. Vi has chalked up 200 days and 30,000 miles on peace marches, and is responsible for sinking three Polaris submarines before they were even launched. She is engaged to a nice Jewish boy, also on OP, and will teach elementary school and live in the Bronx.

TOM BROWN, is the great-great grandson of John Brown, and the cousin of Brown Knows, Student Council representative. How did he rise to the position of managing editor of OP? You guessed it, Nepotism! "Brown Knows knew I couldn't write, but he owed Daddy a favor, so they made me an editor. It's loads of fun," Tom giggled the other day when being interviewed. Tom-tom, as his Indian buddies call him, can be found in 201 Downer each Thursday at the Campus' candidates class. He's learning how to write.

O NEWS EDITOR WRETCHIE CROW originally intended to be a novelist. When he discovered he couldn't write he joined OP instead. One of the few males on the OP board, Coe says he likes the feeling of being mothered. A journalism major, he says that one day he would like to join a College newspaper. Crow says he likes: "girls who wear sandals, snack bar beans, Rogue Magazine, the Eden Roc, buttons, egg creams, ROTC drills, sneakers with holes, criss crafts, underprivileged children whose fathers drink, and argyle socks."

O SPORTS EDITOR STEVE UNABLE joined the OP sports staff after being suspended from the wrestling team for applying vaseline to his head and shoulders during a key match. Unable is known to the College's figures for his habit of stealing the teams' orange slices during half-time. He says that now that OP is suspended he will spend his time playing third base for his neighborhood stick ball team; that is, if he is chosen in.

CAROLE MINCOUGH, O BUSINESS MANAGER controls the O Purse all week except on Tuesdays when she acts as a collection agent for a slum lord. Known to her friends as "Soupy," she has gained worldwide renown for her preparation of slum gullion hollandaise, a favorite O dish.

THE TWO SUB-SCRIPTS that help the OP managing board determine its editorial policy are Sherman Oaks and Cora Hernia. These two freshmen are the brightest stars in the paper's galaxy of reporters. Both have made astonishing progress since Campus rejected them last term.

Sherman came to the College from Hollywood, where he played the title role in the film, "Lassie," and won two Academy awards. He likes girls with sandals, Lawrence Durrell, speeding D-trains, and himself. He dislikes cafeteria food, suits and ties, and bathing. He will grow up and work for the Bronx post office.

Miss Hernia is a political science major. She hopes to go to graduate school and teach revolutions. Her hobbies are carrying green book bags, shrinking tight dungarees, cutting classes, naming old ballplayers, and sex.

In the twenties, the faculty spouses joined with Miss Crotch to expand Brett Hall activities. "We originally did it for publicity, because we weren't getting enough of it," a former faculty Wives chairman said.

In recent years though, the faculty Wives have themselves suffered stiff competition from coeds at the College.

"Youth must be served," Miss Crotch explained.

Dean Peice claimed that the reason he was present at the raid was purely in the line of duty. "According to College regulations, I must be the man responsible for pregnant coeds. If I hadn't been there, who knows who else may have been responsible?" he queried.

News In Brief

Chance Cellar

Dr. Gus Rose Berger, leader of the Board of Hire Education, confirmed yesterday that the Board was looking for a chance cellar to hire.

It was the fifth time in the last two days that Dr. Berger confirmed the rumor.

"Why don't you guys stop calling me up?" he explained yesterday. "Why don't you call Mrs. Louisiana May Alcott Stewer instead?"

He admitted, however, that 857 chance cellars had already been looked into by the Board. "Before we're finished with this search, we will have been in every cellar in the city of New York," Dr. Berger said.

College Suspended

The Department of Stupid Life yesterday revoked the charter of the College for failing to submit membership lists.

"We searched through the original charter and found they did not list 12 members," Dean Willie Blazer announced.

When informed of the decision, President Gallagher said that he would take his College off-campus.

"As soon as we find a new dean of students," he added.

First Prize

House Plan announced yesterday that Meyer Wagner '67 won the contest to choose a first name for Mister Clean, the television personality.

Meyer's prizewinning entry: This is-your-city-keep-it. First Prize is two weeks in Mexico as the guest of Meyer O'Dwyer.

Pretty Coed Loses Virginity on Lawn

A pretty sophomore coed lost her virginity last Thursday during the 12-2 break, on the South Campus lawn, the Lost and Found reported yesterday.

The young lady involved was brought to the man responsible for pregnant coeds, Dean James Peice (Students' Affairs). He was quite shocked at the situation. "I am shocked at the situation," he remarked.

A number of students admitted that they were at the "scene of the crime," but they report that they didn't notice anything. "After a couple of Thursdays on this lawn, nothing seems unusual. That's probably why nobody noticed," one coed remarked.

The man responsible. That's what Dean James "Jimmy" Peice (Sportin' Life) likes to be known as.

When he first came to the College 75 years ago, he was not responsible, Dean Peice recalled.

"Little by little," he said, "as I developed my empathy and high degree of integrity, I became more and more responsible."

"Now I am responsible for everything," he warned, soft-spokenly winking his eye.

Among the interesting things Dean Peice has been responsible for are:

- The cafeteria.
- The raid last night on Faculty Spouses.
- Dr. Buell G. Giggler
- Overtime.
- The 26th Precinct.
- John P. Gant, 4.

Dean Peice is, of course, proud of his responsibility for pregnant coeds at the College. "Aw shucks," he said, "the Board of Hire Education sure knew what they were doing when they fingered me for that job."

"It has gotten me a lot of publicity," he said, "and made things much easier."

"Now they come to me," he added.

"LITTLE" FACTS YOU FORGET MAKE BIG DIFFERENCES IN YOUR GRADES!

THE PROBLEM: Few students can remember every name, date, formula, conjugation, theorem, definition, principle, demanded by a 4-year program. Educators know that through the "extinction process" you will forget many of the facts taught last week, last month, last term, last year. Thus a "Memory Gap" develops between the facts you are required to remember and the facts you do remember. The smaller you can make your "Memory Gap" the higher your grades will be.

THE SOLUTION: Only DATA-GUIDE solid plastic loose-leaf summaries are specifically designed to close the "Memory Gap." DATA-GUIDES preserve, on solid plastic, the essential fact-core of each subject to give you a permanent, portable reference that can be used from term... to term... to term—throughout your entire school career. Thus in spite of lost notes, surrendered texts, a difficult program, and an overburdened memory, with DATA-GUIDE solid-plastic charts, you will always have the facts you need. Authored by leading educators, the subject matter on each DATA-GUIDE solid-plastic chart is imaginatively written and uniquely organized for rapid fact location and memory strengthening. Students throughout the U.S. are using all-plastic DATA-GUIDES to insure success in school. REMEMBER: Today's lessons are based on yesterday's facts! HOW IS YOUR MEMORY?

Nine Cheerleaders Incarcerated

Police Looking Into Matter Of Indecent Exposure

By An Corio

Nine members of the College's cheerleading squad were arrested for indecent exposure after the last basketball game of the season, Dean Jimmy Pierce revealed yesterday.

The girls were arrested when the players of Transylvania University complained that they were distracted by the cheerleaders who weren't wearing any underwear. And on top of that they had very short skirts.

The girls were taken to the 26th Precinct, where the police are currently looking into the matter.

EMBARRASSED basketball player refused to be implicated in the new cheerleader scandal.

However, their findings have not yet been made public.

Not Obscene

According to Shirley Swinger '63-26-36, the head madam of the cheerleaders, their appearance wasn't meant to be obscene. "We only wanted to stimulate the team a little," she said.

Evidently the cheerleaders activities paid off because the cagers, who have had a rather undistin-

When Humid "Hands" Greenhouse, the hottest man on the court, got in early in the second half, the team began to roll it up. And the fans went wild, too.

"Those cheerleaders were great," Greenhouse said.

"I was never so hot in my life," he recalled with a smile.

"It was a tremendous thrill, and I'm also glad we won," said Greenhouse.

After the game, Beaver coach Dave Paternal was jubilant over the first victory. "This was the first time this year that all the players were able to get in. I like it when everyone is happy," the coach remarked.

When informed of the arrests, President Giggler said the entire episode "is disgusting."

Luciano Will Open Olympic Cafeteria In City of Caesars

By George

Ego Luciano, the College's fencing coach said yesterday that he plans to open an "Olympic Restaurant."

The olympic mentor feels his olympic boys "won't choke up" if they eat the olympic food in his new olympic restaurant.

"This olympic venture is needed," Luciano said, "because the food in the cafeteria and the snack bar is so olympically bad. Besides a guy gotta make an olympic buck."

Unfortunately the restaurant will be located in Rome, Italy. But buses will be supplied by the Olympic Transportation Company.

MAITRE'DE of Ego Luciano's new Olympic restaurant greets all guests with a happy smile.

Beaver Tongue Wrestlers Soundly Beat Three Girl Team from Ellenville A&M

Better Buy Birds Eye

The College's Debating Team, after compiling a 0-10 record for the semester, regained its pride over the weekend with a conclusive beating of a three-woman team from Ellenville A&M.

However, in the debating which proceeded the beating, the College lost all four matches.

The captain of the tongue wrestlers, Mob Barcus, noted that although the girls were polished debaters, they were suckers for a quick kick to the groin.

The topic under debate was: "Resolved, The Lone Ranger Brought Law and Order to the Early West."

Debating the positive for the College, Barcus claimed that "without the masked man's silver bullets, bad men would still be hurting people." Barcus further revealed that the Ranger, or Kimosabe as he is wont to be called, was a one-time student at the College who donned his mask after being exposed as a dumper during the 1897-8 basketball season.

"But he realized his evil deeds," Barcus explained, "and together with his faithful Indian companion, Tonto, and his white horse, Silver, or 'big fellow' as he is wont to be known, he brought law and order to the early West."

The girls from Ellenville, better known as the Aggies, clashed with Barcus on the issue of the Ranger's morality.

"There is only one reason why a grown man would go gallivanting around the country, living with another grown man," claimed Aggie debater, Shirley Fink.

Denying the allegation that his hero was gay, Barcus asked Miss Fink what she was doing "gallivanting around the country with two other broads?"

The tongue wrestlers' final encounter of the season will occur next Saturday when they take on the "Battling Geishas" of East Tokyo Textile Trades.

Zane Gray to Refashion Lawn Into Links for New Golf Team

By Sigmund Freund

The south campus lawn will be converted into a miniature nine-hole golf course next term for the convenience of the newly formed golf team here, according to Arthur Zane Gray, the Faculty Manager of Athletics.

The course will be an exact duplicate of a regular one in all respects except for one—there won't be any sand traps. The traps however will be located in Lewisohn Stadium, thus making the shortened course a difficult par 462. In addition, Park Gym will be made into a club house.

"It'll be quite a challenge," said a grinning Zane Gray, "but at least the duffers will have a straight shot up and down Convent Avenue. You know they're playing by my rules and I say they must play at least two sand shots every round. I want them to move forward and become champions."

Mr. Gray maintained that it wouldn't be too much trouble converting the lawn into a course. "The biggest problem," he said, "would probably be keeping the necking couples off the grass. I guess we'll have to put up signs."

Palmer Method, a transfer from Pennsylvania and captain of the team is looking forward to playing. "I love to putt," he said, "I just hope the holes are placed in good positions."

Method, along with teammates Gary Playmate and Jack Nicholas figure to be the key men on the team. "They're real swingers, man," said College pro Slammin' Sammy Sneezy. As a matter of fact we're only building the course because we hope to make a pretty penny by charging admission to exhibition matches."

Sneezy also plans to give lessons on the side—at $25 an hour—to all interested students and faculty. He also may teach some golf.

Congratulations
