Dems Study State Police Investigation

Ohrenstein Attacks GOP Attitude

By Clyde Haberman

Democrats in the State Senate have begun an investigation into charges that state police "discouraged" students of upstate colleges from attending the March 11 anti-tuition trip to Albany.

State Senator Manfred Ohrenstein (Dem.-Man.) who prompted the investigation, said Monday, "We believe that the way the police conducted their investigation of inquiring who was going [on the trip] intimidated many students from attending.

Senator Ohrenstein refused to disclose any findings of his investigation or to comment on future actions. "Once our research

DR. SEYMOUR WEISSMAN said he told State Police that students were coming to Albany.

Cafeteria Fare

By Joe Berger and Steve Goldman

President Buell Gallagher says that the College's cafeteria tries to get "the best food possible at the most reasonable prices." How are daily menus made up? What is the extent of student dissatisfaction with the meals resulting from these processes? What alternatives are there to the present system?

The cafeteria food is obtained through a bidding system. Mr. Aaron Zweifach, the College's General Business Manager, is in complete charge of the processing of the bids. Contracts for all food are awarded by Mr. Zweifach to the lowest bidder. The only stipulation in the contracts is that the food received must meet with the standards set by the school.

These basic standards require that all food be of "top quality," and that the meat be "Government Grade Choice."

After the supplier agrees to the contract, he must then meet the required delivery dates on all perishable foods. In the past, the school has had difficulty with only one supplier, a dealer involved in the short-weighting scandal that took place a couple of years ago.

After the completion of the contract which may or may not be weekly or daily, depending upon the food, the supplier must submit a new bid and the process is begun all over again.

The menu itself is made up by the chief chef of the cafeteria. There is no dietician or nutritionist to decide what the students should eat. The chef makes up the menu according to what food is available and in season.

A copy of the daily menu is then sent to the South Campus cafeteria, which has the same cooking facilities as the North Campus headquarters of the cafeteria system.

The meal is then cooked and the students enter the picture.

Student opinion on the quality of the food is generally negative. In a poll taken at both cafeterias, forty of fifty students stated that they would be willing to pay higher prices if it would insure a better quality of food.

On the other side of the coin, the President has already made known his opinion of the "less than human" tendencies of the

Douglas Talk On Liberties Set for Today

Public Address Link Is Planned

Associate Justice of the Supreme Court William O. Douglas will speak on "The Erosion of Liberty" today at 5 in the Aronow Auditorium.

Students unable to obtain tickets to the lecture will be able to hear the Justice's speech in the Grand Ballroom, where a special microphone-public address system link to Aronow has been set up.

Justice Douglas' speech will be the fifth in the history department's annual lecture series. Past speakers have included Professor George F. Kennan, Soviet affairs expert, historian Henry Steele Commager, New York Times edi-

Finley Board Adopts Budget Of $185,000

The Finley Center Board of Advisors last Monday approved a $185,000 operating budget for the Center during the next school year.

The budget total represented a $15,000 increase over this year's budget.

Most of the increase, according to Board member Ira Bloom '64, will be used to keep the Center open every Saturday night next year. Currently, the Center is only kept open on alternate Saturday nights. The extra expenses will involve hiring guards and custodial personnel for the additional nights of operation.

The rest of the increase will be used for the purchase of new equipment, and mandatory salary increases for Center personnel and the hiring of new personnel.

Day-Eve. Program Plans Made by Advisory Board

By Jean Ende

A special Finley Center Board of Advisors committee Monday drew up a series of recommendations dealing with improved co-ordination of day and evening session center programs and allocation of rooms and program funds between the two sessions.

The recommendations, which have not been made public, will be sent to Dean of Students, Wil-

Registration Booths for the Blood Bank will be set-up on April 1-5 outside Knittle Lounge and 152 Finley. Collection will take place on May 15-16.

Remember the blood you give may save your life.

Fete Conflicts With Schedule Of Final Exams

The Jewish holiday of Shavouth and 42 final exams all fall on the same day this year—May 29.

According to Registrar Robert L. Taylor, 50 students will have to have their exams rescheduled because of religious reasons. "Once every few years exams fall on the same day as Jewish holidays, but this matter has never presented a great problem," Mr. Taylor said.

Under normal conditions approximately 400 students have conflicts, so the additional 50 will not make a considerable difference this year, the Registrar explained.

One extra day has already been added to exam week this year, so that tests will not have to be held on Memorial Day, May 30.

Library

Cohen Library will be open on the following days during the Easter Vacation:

April 8-11	9 a.m.-10 p.m.
April 12	10 a.m.- 5 p.m.
April 13	10 a.m.- 6 p.m.
April 14	closed
April 15	9 a.m.-10 p.m.

Pre-Easter Council Meeting To Consider Papers, Publicity

Tonight's Student Council meeting, the last before the spring vacation, will concern itself primarily with a special report on the newspapers and a possible change in the publicity registration system.

Student Government Vice-President Bob Rosenberg '64 and Council member Joel Cooper '65 will present their findings on the special SG committee's investigation of the College's newspapers. The four man-committee was appointed by Council three weeks ago.

Council is also expected to discuss a resolution transferring the power to register publicity to Mrs. Rose Lombardi (Student Life). Currently, representatives of the Student Activities Board process all publicity requests. Under the proposed change, the power to enforce the publicity regulations and punish violators would be retained by SAB publicity chairman Richard Schweidel '63.

Other items on the Council agenda are:

- Arrangements for dedication of Charter Week during May
- Plans for another anti-tuition rally
- Plans for an expanded SG speaker program for next term.

—Janowski

RICHARD SCHWEIDEL '63 would retain full publicity power if regulation changes are made.

SG Election Pace Accelerates As Kane, Cooper Enter Race

The Student Government election pace was quickened Monday with a flurry of activity on several fronts.

Richard Kane, Chairman of the Student Activities Board, announced his candidacy for SG Vice President Monday evening on Ira Bloom's ticket. Bloom announced his candidacy for SG President last week.

Kane's decision came as a surprise to observers who felt that Alan Blume '64, SG President would run for the Vice Presidency on Bloom's ticket. However, Blume explained that his candidacy depended on Kane's choice. "Now that Dick has definitely decided to run, I will strongly support him and Ira and the rest of the ticket."

Rounding out Bloom's ticket, Joel Cooper '65 said he would run for Secretary. Danny Katkin, '65, had announced his candidacy for Treasurer along with Bloom. The slate hopes to get the endorsement of the Independent Reform Party, the group that now holds a majority in Student Council.

Though Bloom's ticket represents

Cafeteria

(Continued from Page 1) students in the cafeteria. The students at one table all agreed that the cafeteria was like a "bath-room," but claimed that it was partly the fault of the cafeteria employees. One of the biggest complaints made concerned the "floor walkers who are obnoxious."

The floorwalkers are supposed to prevent non-eating students from loitering in the cafeteria during the hours of 11:30-2:30. They are also in charge of keeping the cafeteria clean.

On the favorable side, students seemed to support the present pricing system. This allows the student to buy each item of his dinner "a la carte" instead of on a complete dinner basis.

However, there was a general favorable agreement from students on one suggestion: an outside company such as Horn and Hardart taking over the cafeteria operation.

The College ran the cafeteria on this basis, prior to the time President Gallagher came to City College. "However, the situation turned out to be unsatisfactory, and was dropped before I became president," Dr. Gallagher said.

But the President did say that a return to this type of outside operation "is now under serious consideration."

Under existing rules, an outside firm could take over the operation of the cafeteria if it met with the Board of Higher Education standards.

It was learned last Friday that Horn and Hardart handles cafeteria operations at a number of schools. The only requirement is that the operation total at least $350,000 yearly. The College's cafeteria operates at an annual figure of about $400,000.

Douglas

Justice Douglas has served on the Supreme Court for 24 years, and has gained a reputation as a staunch defender of civil liberties. He is the author of "The Right of the People," "Democracy's Manifesto," and "America Challenged."

The Justice is a former professor of law at Columbia University and Yale University, and served as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission before his appointment to the Supreme Court.

Elections

(Continued from Page 1) councilman, has been encouraged by many members of the liberal wing of Council to run for President. But Atkins only says he is considering this possibility. "I would definitely run however for Vice President if someone I could support would run for President," Atkins said.

Sources close to Samuel Eiferman, a candidate in last term's presidential elections, believe that he will run if drafted by either the Beaver Energetic Student Ticket or the Reform Party. They claim that he believes his vast popularity will win him any position for which he runs.

I may just decide to lead the bachelor life.

3. Hardly likely, since 93 per cent of all men and women get married.

Is that so?

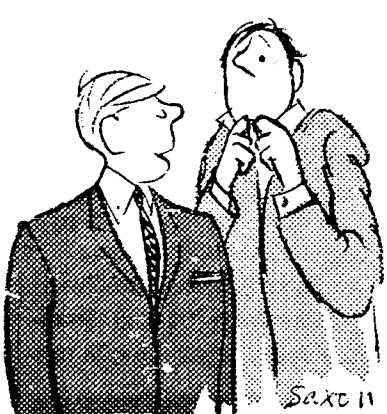

4. Yes, indeed. What's more, you'll have children to consider.

Maybe we won't have any.

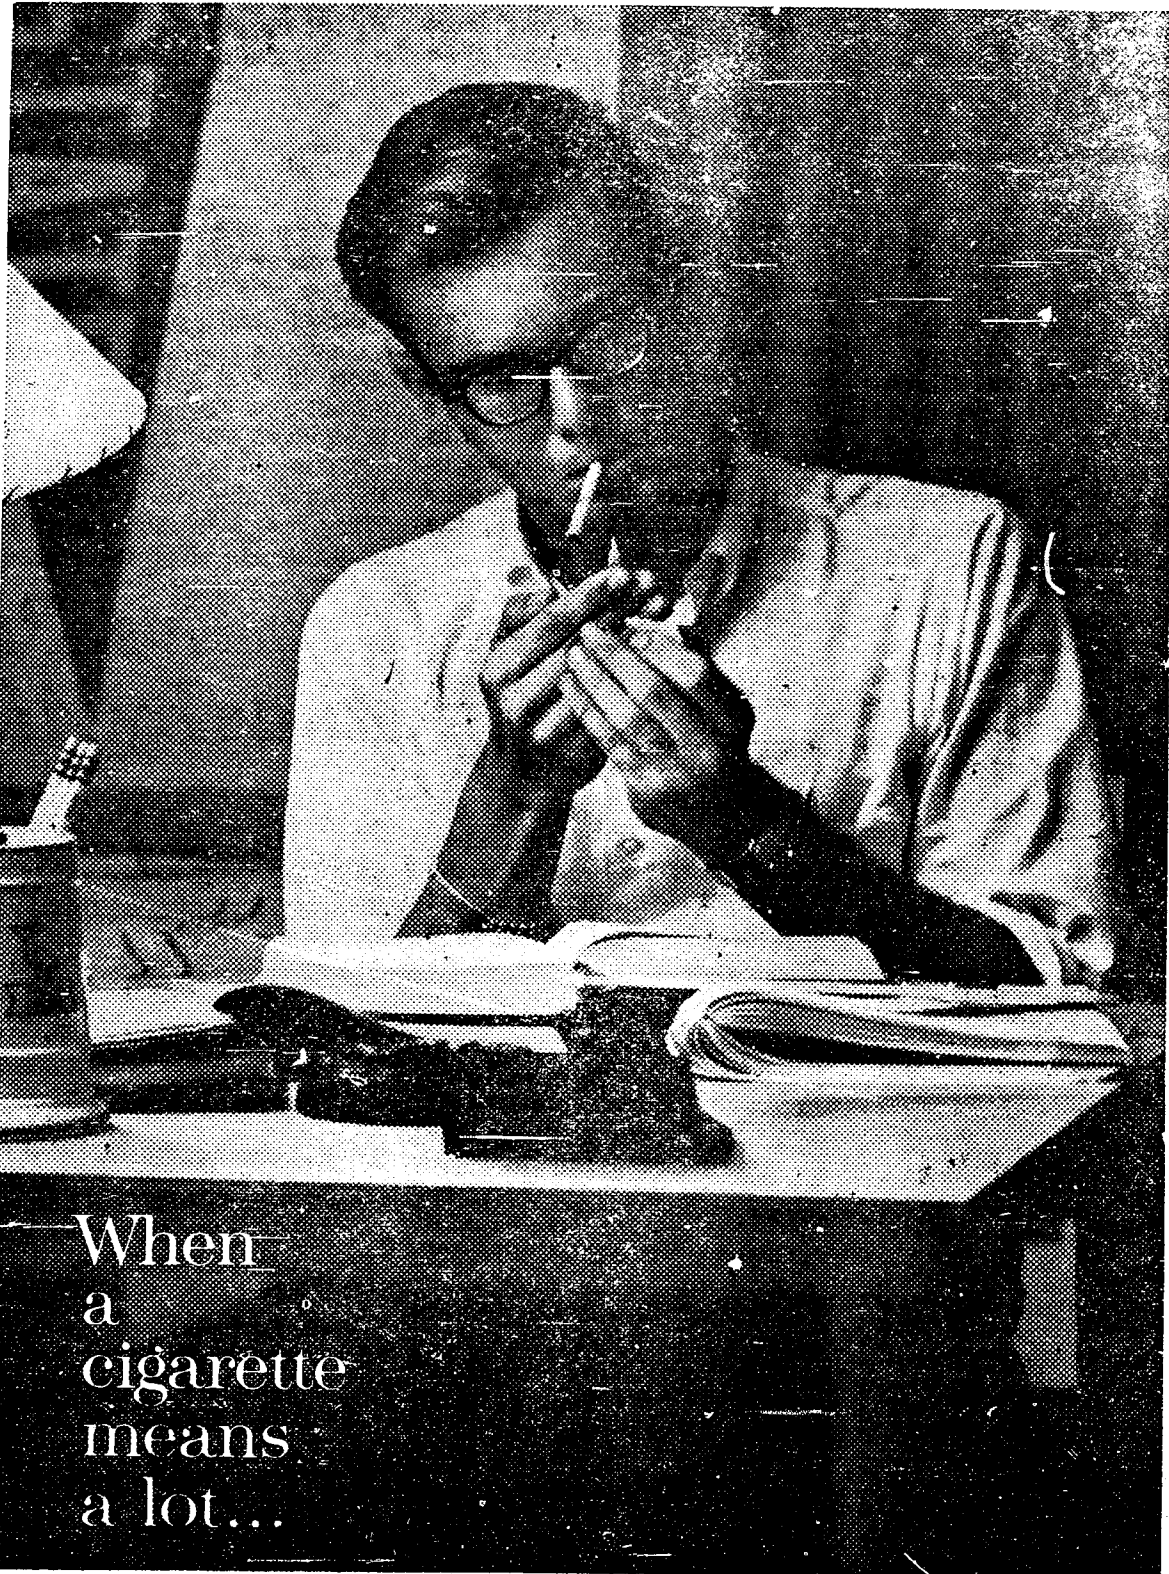

5. I doubt that—after all, 90 per cent of the women who get married today have children. And, on the average, they have all their children before they're 27.

All my life I've shirked responsibility. Have a ball, enjoy yourself—that's my motto. Now, in two minutes, you've given me a wife and who knows how many children to take care of. What should I do? Where do I begin?

Campus Cutie Chosen Colonel Of ROTC Spring Ceremonies

By Joe Berger

The College's ROTC has just chosen the cutest Cadet Colonel in the whole U. S. Army.

A blue-eyed, blond-haired freshman at the College, Cathleen Gilje was selected Honorary Cadet Colonel last Friday night from a field of eighteen coeds, for the ROTC's annual spring Review. The Review, which will be held in Lewisohn Stadium some time in May, is a traditional ceremony where awards are given out to the best companies and outstanding individuals in the ROTC.

As Honorary Cadet Colonel Cathleen will review the cadets with Cadet Colonel Robert Masziel at her side. The eighteen-year old art major will even get a chance to meet the two-star general who views the ceremonies. "This is so exciting to me, because I've never won anything like this before," the pretty coed said.

Cathleen was nominated by the College's chapter of the Society of Scabbard and Blade.

At the review Cathleen will be wearing a white dress with a lavender beret and cape, the traditional costume of the reviews. She will also reign as queen of the Military Ball, held on April 27 for the Advanced Corps Cadets.

Debaters Take 2nd In Virginia Meet

The College's varsity debating team last Saturday captured second place in a 14-team debating tournament held at Hampton Institute, Virginia.

The College's four man team was composed of Bob Marcus '63 and Ira Bloom '64 debating the affirmative, and John Lang '63 and Mitchell Zimmerman '63 taking the negative position. Each team finished with a 3-1 record, giving the College a 6-2 overall record.

The novice team of Warren Liebesman '66 and John Zippert '66 finished in first place, topping fourteen other teams, in a novice tournament held March 23 at Morgan State College in Maryland.

Both varsity and novice debaters argued the year's national debate topic: "Resolved, That the non-Communist Nations of the World Should Establish an Economic Community."

lized" by day session activities.

Among the topics discussed by the committee Monday, according to ex-officio member Mr. Edmond Sarfaty (Student Life) were:

- establishment of a structure for the co-ordination of main activity areas

- establishment of a joint Finley Center day-evening student program board with specifically outlined responsibility

The ad hoc committee, established by the Board of Advisors at its March 25 meeting, is composed of Professor Ansoff Cefola (Architecture), Mr. Peter Brousal (Alumni Association), Miss Irizarry, Student Activities Board Chairman Richard Kane '64, and ex-officio member Mr. Sarfaty.

Student Appreciation Society To Honor Five Film Greats

By Bob Rosenblatt

A dedicated moviegoer, and ardent fan of "five of the great men of the twentieth century," has formed a "Humphrey Bogart, W. C. Fields, Peter Lorre, Sidney Greenstreet, John Huston Appreciation Society" at the College.

Vic Grossfeld '63, founder and president of the club, says that the idea of an organization dedicated to the works of the four actors and the director "just came to me." Grossfeld, who boasts that he has seen Bogart's "Treasure of the Sierra Madre" six times in the movies and seven times on TV, says that the club will try to get an allocation to rent the films of the "masters," in addition to generally "appreciating" them.

The club's application for a charter was approved Monday by the Student Government executive committee by a 6-0-0 vote. It was then assigned by the Student Activities Board to the Arts, Humanities, and Social Science Federation. The society's faculty advisor is Prof. Arthur Zeiger (English) who, according to Grossfeld, "asked if we could get Kim Novak into the club because he's in love with her."

BOGIE is being appreciated by a new society. Here he is seen in "Treasure of Sierra Madre."

Justice for All

Once again the College has dipped into the grab bag of important and interesting guest speakers — and come up with a plum. This time it's Associate Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. Justice Douglas, here under the auspices of the History Department, is speaking in Aronow Auditorium today at 5 on the "Erosion of Civil Liberty."

The Justice is well-known for his long and enduring fight for the maintenance of civil liberties, a fight which has involved the energies of many students and faculty members at the College. Consequently the tickets which were distributed by the History Department were snapped up immediately after Justice Douglas' appearance was announced. There are still many people who want to attend the speech, but they won't be able to because they don't have a ticket.

In order to accommodate these people, arrangements were made to pipe the speech into the Grand Ballroom where people could listen but not look. Surely if there is such a demand to view Justice Douglas' appearance no auditorium at the College is too large to house it. Certainly it is in order to inquire as to availability of the Great Hall or the Grand Ballroom. In any case we hope that everyone here hears the speech — even if it is by the roundabout method of sitting in the Grand Ballroom. We are sure it will be a worthwhile experience.

Domestic Relations

The special Board of Advisors committee which met last Monday has drawn up recommendations concerning improved co-ordination between the day and evening session student governments in the use of the Finley Center. The recommendations, which were not made public, will be presented to Dean Blaesser and then the entire membership of the Board.

Although the substance of the committee's work was not made public, the committee members' unanimous agreement can only be termed encouraging. When day and evening SG officers can get together and agree on something, it is a day to remember.

The substance of the group's work, it is understood, dealt with the formation of a joint center planning board, with the requisite machinery. The formation of such a board would be an important first step toward solving the numerous problems involved in using the Finley Center. The day session near-monopoly of the Grand Ballroom and Lewisohn and Butenweiser Lounges for evening activities, and the niggardly share of the Center program fund given to evening organizations are all serious problems.

For all these reasons, the public release of the committee's recommendations is being eagerly awaited. We hope that Dean Blaesser will submit them to the Board of Advisors for prompt consideration. It is none too early to start tackling the present mess in relations between the two student governments in the area of use of the Finley Center.

Capital Query

Word of two investigations of the recent anti-tuition trip to Albany have filtered down from upstate. Each inquiry is the private property of one of the two major political parties in the legislature. The inquiries dealt with alleged police trips to various state college campuses, and supposed intimidation of students planning to demonstrate in Albany for the cause of free tuition.

An investigation conducted by the office of Assembly Speaker Carlino has turned up police pure as the driven snow. Unfortunately, the modus operandi consisted of asking the police if they went to colleges and "intimidated students." There was no attempt made to question students, faculty members, or administrators at the campuses in question.

The Democrats are also conducting an investigation of their own but have made nothing public as yet. It must be stressed that this issue is too important to be buried under partisan oratory. Democrats and Republicans should cooperate to find the answer to one question: were students intending to go to Albany "discouraged" by the presence and questions of police officers visiting their campuses?

The legislative session will end on Saturday. The investigation should be completed by then, or at least well underway. As the facts are determined, the necessity for future action, in or out of the legislature, can be decided upon.

Hairy Crown To Be Decided On Junior Day

By Jean Ende

Don't be alarmed, Fidel Castro has not invaded the College. The increase in the number of bearded young-men attending classes is a result of an attempt by the junior-class to prove their virility. A beard-growing contest is being sponsored by the Junior-Council as one of the highlights of the Junior-Day celebration on May 2.

The contest was the idea of Robin Weinstein '64, co-chairman of the Junior Day Committee. "I mentioned it as a joke," she said, "but it just caught on. Anyway I like men with beards." Her opinion is not shared by Ronald Friedman '64, President of the Junior class. "I've nothing against people who wear beards, but I wouldn't grow one myself" he said. "I hope this doesn't start a new fad."

The contest will be open to anyone who wishes to enter, because as Friedman says, the ability to grow beards, even superior ones, is not limited to Juniors.

Anyone wishing to enter the contest should appear, clean-shaven, in Room 304 Finley, tomorrow, between 12-2.

is complete, we'll be able to reveal our plans," he said.

He attacked Republican leaders for their "indifference" to such an investigation.

In the Assembly, Information Director Henry Paley revealed the findings of his own investigation of the situation. Directly contradicting Senator Ohrenstein's charges, Mr. Paley said that "no evidence has been produced to substantiate charges of intimidation by state police."

Doubts, however, have been raised as to the validity of Mr. Paley's inquiry. "We based our report on the information given to us by the police," he said. "They said they checked with every trooper and none admitted to intimidation tactics." However, Mr. Paley admitted failure to talk to students or college officials, citing as a reason the fact that "no one had complained to him."

State police officials disclosed Monday that they sent plainclothesmen to state colleges requesting an approximation of the number of students expected to attend the trip. The action was prompted, they said, by information given by College Alumni Association President Seymour Weissman of an expected large turnout.

House Plan Starts New Date Service

By Bob Weisberg

Now you can be sure that you're taller than she is.

Students desiring dates that have similar interests and compatible heights can be served by a new House Plan Association Committee.

Andrew Lien, HP Vice-President, is heading the Date Bureau for this term's Carnival Queen Ball. Students can submit applications for escorts to the April 6th event in the House Plan office.

Lien explained that "there are a lot of girls and a lot of boys who really want to go to the ball, but can't, for various reasons, get dates." The bureau supplies the applications, which request such information as sex, age, weight, height, major and chief interests, he said, and then tries to match a girl and a boy. The applicants also get a chance to complete the statement: "I would like my date to have . . ."

"The whole process is strictly confidential," Lien said. "If we find a good match we give the boy the girl's phone number and notify the girl that she is going to be called." Since the bureau opened, about 20 applications have been handed in and two dates have been arranged.

Home of Bust Still Uncertain

The permanent resting place of the $3,000 bust of Dante is in doubt. The statue has not been returned to its perch on the east wall of Downer Hall.

Prof. Albert D'Andrea (Art), whose office presently houses the bust, said that he will defer his recommendation to President Gallagher as to what should be done with it.

The statue was stolen more than a month ago, but an anonymous telephone call last week led detectives to the east side of Jasper Oval where the bust was retrieved.

Karlin: Waiting for Adelphi

Tennis

By Bruce Freund

The date was May 9, 1962. The College's tennis team squared off against Adelphi in the climatic meet of the season. The score went to 3-3, then 4-4, and then . . . the Panthers captured the deciding match, the meet, and the conference championship.

That was last year. Now it is spring and the netmen, presumably thirsting for revenge for the last eleven months, will soon have their opportunity. Next Monday, in their season opener, the Beavers once again meet Adelphi in a match which may prove every bit as crucial as last year's.

This season as before, the Panthers present the biggest obstacle to the netmen's conquest of the conference crown. But now, fortified by their desire for revenge and by some naturally talented players, the Beavers "have the horses." In speaking of the team, and dreaming no doubt of his prize charges, co-captains Bernie Wasserman and Karl Otto, Coach Harry Karlin radiated optimism, "On paper we can beat anyone."

While Otto and Wasserman, who last year compiled 7-1 and 7-2 records, respectively, comprise the vanguard of the team, it is not upon their performances that the Richie Auster for the winning marker.

Earlier, scores by Oestreicher, Mueller (twice), and Jim McKeown, the last a twenty yarder which took one bounce by the startled netminder, had gotten the sticksters off winging. But they blew a 4-2 lead and had to pull the game out the hard way.

"We were more aggressive—that's what made the difference," Beaver coach George Baron said afterward. But despite the twin triumphs the coach was not too happy.

"Defensively we're all right, but offensively we can certainly improve," he said. "We're getting the shots but we're not shooting anywhere near the net. What's more the fellows have to learn how to look around for openings."

To help the scoring the coach plans to simplify the offense for Saturday's upcoming date with New Hampshire, the official season opener.

Brooklyn Proposes Tri-State Division

At the Tri-State Basketball League's regular March meeting, Professor Joe Smith of Brooklyn College proposed the formal division of the seven year-old league into two divisions, an "A" and a "B."

The formal acceptance or refusal of the proposal has been postponed to a special meeting, to be held May 10, when all the details of the situation can be successfully ironed out. The proposal, introduced by Brooklyn and backed up by Hunter College, will supposedly enable the teams of both schools to compete with teams more on their level. However, it presents many problems.

Chief amongst them is the question of whether or not the NCAA would continue to recognize the League for automatic selection to a berth in the NCAA small college tournament, which currently goes to the League champ. Second is whether enough teams can be found willing to join the "B" division.

rarily administered to, but was still in a great deal of agony during the three day tournament. According to Lucia, "Vito has been suffering from an upper respiratory infection all year, this combined with the altitude caused a serious oxygen debt. He practically lived on coke with double syrup for three days."

To restore some of the missing carbon dioxide to his system, Lucia had Mannino breathe into and out of a plastic bag. It did the trick, since he immediately began to feel a little better. However, perhaps the most unexpected first aid given to Mannino was administered by Columbia fencing coach, Irv DeKoff. Immediately after Mannino had beaten both Jay Lustig of Columbia and Ray Frey of Navy, both all-Americans, he appeared so exhausted that DeKoff became concerned and gave him a few breaths from Columbia's oxygen tank.

"It was one of the nicest displays of sportsmanship I've ever seen," Mannino said.

The disappointment of course

stems from the fact that "healthy Mannino could have gone all the way," according to Lucia. "As it is, all he had out there was sheer nerve and grit."

The future for Mannino seems to be just as bright as the past. Next year, while still attending the College, he will help Lucia develop some of the young fencers coming off the freshman team, specifically George Weiner, who compiled an outstanding record this year, while at the same time he will continue to receive lessons from Lucia.

According to Mannino, the Nationals have taught him the biggest lesson of his life. "I have beaten all of these guys at one time or another," he said of the three men that finished immediately above him. "This means that they've got something I don't have. They're consistent. I didn't deserve to be champion now that I look back on it."

"That's what makes the difference between the champion and myself. Now that I realize this I'm going all out for consistency. It bothers me,"

Beaverettes Finish Victorious Season

By Batyah Janowski

Finally calling a halt to five consecutive losing seasons, the College's women's basketball team emerged victorious this year with a record.

Setting the pace in Miss Andrea Schabel's first year as Beaverette coach was Mary Dominique, high scorer and top rebounder for the team. Averaging 15.3 points per game, Miss Dominique always seemed to come through with that extra basket in the closing seconds of the game. Her two highest scoring games were against Hunter and Wagner, scoring 21 points in each by the end of the season she had netted 168 points, more than half the team's total.

Ably backing up Miss Dominique were the two other starting forwards, Maggie Kalb and Fran Kerstein, each averaging 5 points a game.

Leading the team in free throw percentage were co-captains, Beth Shefflin and Miss Dominique, making 44% and 65% of their foul shots, respectively.

Potential Nimrod All-America

for his successful season. Work . . . drive . . . incentive. For many people this would be a tough diet, and it's been tough for the potential all-America too. But come the middle of May, the work will probably have paid invaluable dividends. At that time, the coaches' ballots will be cast and sent to the selection board in Washington, D. C. and the potential all-America may become the second all-America at the College this year.

All-Americans are selected on the basis of their overall averages, as well as their score in the regional tournament. This year, four colleges were represented in the regionals, the College capturing the top spot with a total score of 1154. The nimrods wound up on top of Lehigh, Princeton, and the United States Merchant Marine Academy. In the meet, the potential all-America shot a 295 for the team, and a 291 in the individuals. With a 291 average for the year, he presents statistics which will be hard to beat.

According to Kelley, "Our league [Metropolitan Intercollegiate Rifle League] is one of the best. And he is right up there near the top. He is one of the best shooters I've ever had."

Assuming for the moment that he had wrapped up a spot on the all-America team, the potential all-America said, "I've been more or less expecting it. But before the season started, I had no idea that I'd have a chance. Then, when we started shooting [in regular meets], I realized that if I maintained a good average I might be selected."

"I didn't participate in the last three meets because they were easy wins and I decided to devote more time to study," he added. Then, as an afterthought: "That's why the scores dropped."

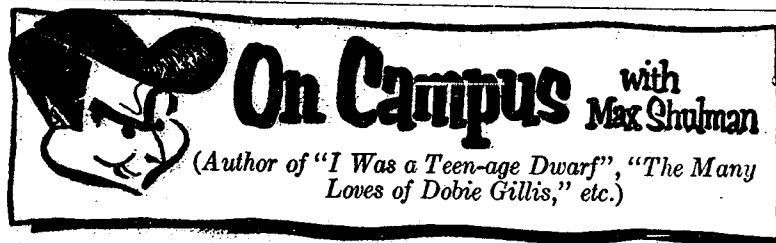

A statement lacking, perhaps, in modesty but certainly not in truth. Kelley will attest to that, as will other members of the team. It proves one thing. The potential all-America is far and away the best shooter the nim-rods have. His value to the team makes it seem inconceivable that he will not be all-America.

One thing is sure. Only ten men can be selected for the all-America team. And if one accepts the consensus of the nimrods and their mentor, FRED GROSPIN will be one of the ten, because he is an all-America.

Di Bernado

Baseball coach Al DiBernado has missed the last ten days of practice due to an illness of the infectious variety, and will probably be out at least another five to ten days. Freshman coach Frank Seeley has put the team through their pre-season paces so far, and Sol Mishkin, a former coach at the College, will take over until Di Bernado returns.

NOW YOU CAN BE YOUNGER THAN SHE IS

It is a scientific fact that girls reach emotional maturity earlier than boys. For this reason freshman girls are reluctant to make romantic alliances with freshman boys, but instead choose men from the upper classes.

Thus the freshman boys are left dateless, and many is the night the entire freshman dorm sobs itself to sleep. An equally moist situation exists among upper-class girls. With upper-class men being snapped up by freshman girls, the poor ladies of the upper class are reduced to dreary, monotonous evenings of Monopoly and home permanents.

It pleases me to report there is a solution for this morbid situation—indeed, a very simple solution. Why don't the two great have-not groups—the freshman boys and the upper-class girls—find solace with each other?

True, there is something of an age differential, but that need not matter. Take, for example, the case of Albert Payson Sigafos and Eustacia Vye.

Albert Payson, a freshman in sand and gravel at Vanderbilt University, was walking across the campus one day, weeping softly in his loneliness. Blinded by tears, he stumbled upon the supine form of Eustacia Vye, a senior in wicker and raffia, who was collapsed in a wretched heap on the turf.

"Why don't you watch where you're going, you minor youth?" said Eustacia peevishly.

"I'm sorry, lady," said Albert Payson and started to move on. But suddenly he stopped, struck by an inspiration. "Lady," he said, tugging his forelock, "don't think me forward, but I know why you're miserable. It's because you can't get a date. Well, neither can I. So why don't we date each other?"

"Surely you jest!" cried Eustacia, looking with scorn upon his tiny head and body.

"Oh, I know I'm younger than you are," said Albert Payson, "but that doesn't mean we can't find lots of fun things to do together."

"Like what?" she asked.

"Well," said Albert Payson, "we could build a Snowman."

"Bah!" said Eustacia, grinding her teeth.

"All right then," said Albert Payson, "we could go down to the pond and catch some frogs."

"Ugh!" said Eustacia, shuddering her entire length.

"How about some Run-Sheep-Run?" suggested Albert Payson.

"You are callow, green, and immature," said Eustacia, "and I will thank you to remove your underaged presence from mine eyes."

Sighing, Albert Payson lighted a cigarette and started away.

"Stay!" cried Eustacia.

He stayed.

"Was that a Marlboro Cigarette you just lighted?" she asked.

"What else?" said Albert Payson.

"Then you are not immature!" she exclaimed, clasping him to her clavicle. "For to smoke Marlboros is the very essence of wisdom, the height of American know-how, the incontrovertible proof that you can tell gold from dross, right from wrong, fine aged tobaccos from pale, pathetic substitutes. Albert Payson, if you will still have me, I am yours!"

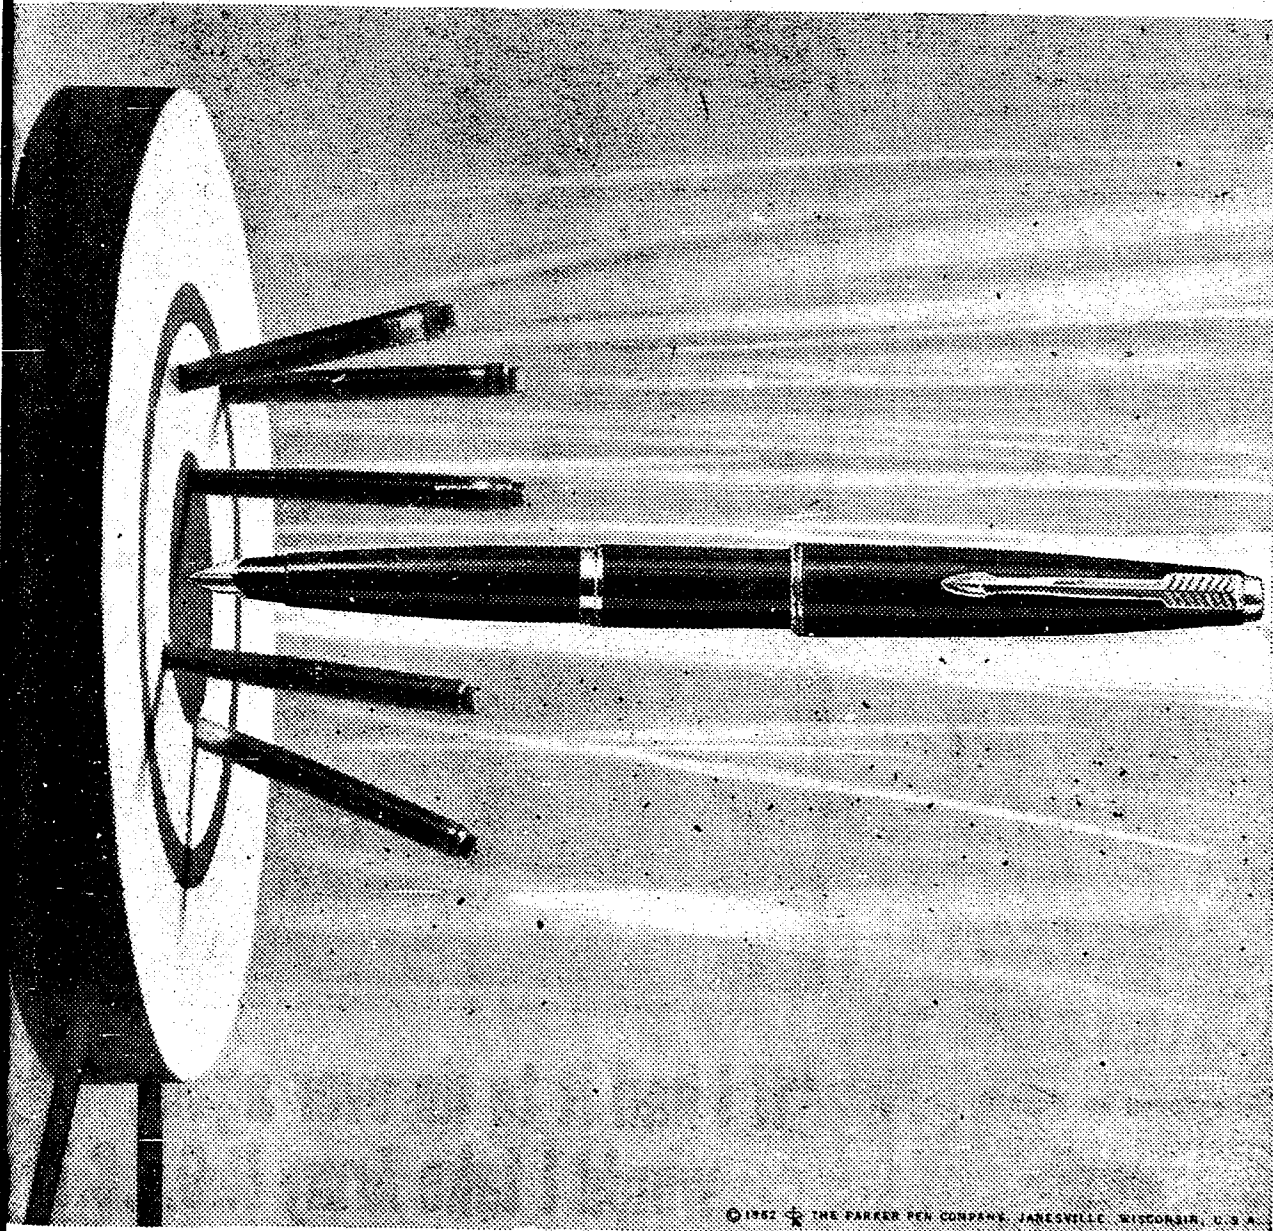

"I will," he said, and did, and today they are married and run the second biggest wicker and raffia establishment in Duluth, Minnesota.

All-America: Fencer—Si, Nimrod—Maybe

Mannino Repeats as All-America

By Jeff Green

They filed into the fencing lockerrooms one by one. Leon Agaronian, Marshall Pastorino, Al Turner, Richie Weininger. One by one they came to congratulate Vito Mannino . . . all-America.

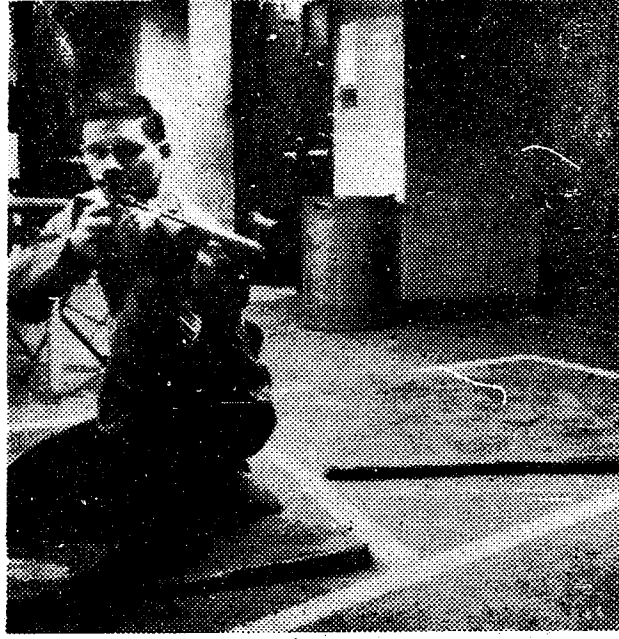

For the second consecutive year the bespectacled senior has achieved the highest honor bestowed upon a collegiate athlete, all-America, or as coach Edward Lucia described it last year, "The achievement of immortality in one's lifetime."

Now, one year later, according to Lucia, "he is a fencing immortal and may eventually get into the Fencing Hall of Fame. There's no doubt about his being one of the greatest in terms of potential. Of course he's still a long way from amateur stardom. "Vito needs three to four years of national and international exposure before he can achieve real stardom," Lucia continued. "He's going to make a big try for the Tokyo Olympics, and will visit the Olympic Training camp this summer for the second consecutive year."

Last year, Mannino's flashing style and cool courage combined to lead him to his all-America position, while this year a new factor, technique, was added. "His technique was 100% better than last year. He disciplined himself much more," the Coach said. "His movements are smaller, faster, and more accurate. He's finally got an organized style of attack."

However, Mannino's stellar performance may be rated as a combination miracle and disappointment by Beaver sports followers. The miracle is the fact that Mannino was able to compete at all. After arriving at the Air Force Academy, he was stricken by a serious case of hyper-ventilation (a form of altitude sickness).

He was taken to the Academy's infirmary where he was tempo-

Alumni, MIT Defeated By Lavender Stickmen

By Ray Corio

Although March went out like a lamb over the weekend, the College's lacrosse team was roaring like a lion. Within a span of twenty four hours the Lewisohn lacrossemen bowled over MIT and the Beaver Alumni by scores of 3-1 and 5-4 respectively.

In both games the offensive punch of co-captain Andy Mueller and attackman Johnny Oestreicher plus the solid play of defensive captain Harvey Leshnick did much to fashion the victories.

Oestreicher and Mueller notched two quick first period goals in the scrimmage against the Engineers on Friday. The Oestreicher score was made on a beautifully executed fast break in which the senior stickman faked the MIT goalie out of position before snapping the ball into the net.

The Engineers got one goal back before the half, but in the third period Beaver stickster Herbie Silkowitz registered the important insurance marker. After that the visitors just couldn't penetrate the nearly invincible Leshnick led defense, so that goalie Andy Markoe was credited with a mere two saves for the entire game.

The Alumni, however, did crack the visible shield in Saturday's unofficial regular season opener. With less than a minute remaining in the game, the former Beavers had matched their successors goal for goal four times, with former all-America Fred Schwettman picking up two of them.

Then, the ubiquitous Oestreicher took a pass from sophomore attackman Jim Gardner and put the ball past last year's Beaver goalie

Green-Shooter May Be Threat

By George Kaplan

This is the story of a potential all-America. He is somewhat overshadowed by all-America folsman Vito Mannino. But he is an all-America in his own right. He is a member of the least followed team at the College: the rifle team.

The nimrods' claim to fame is a shooter who first started firing in the backwoods of Pennsylvania and Vermont. Just a kid hunting small game. Just a "green shooter," as Coach Bernard Kelley phrased it.

"But," Kelley explained, "A combination of hard work, drive, and a great deal of incentive on his behalf has boosted his average from 250 to 291 [out of a possible 300]."

This, in essence, is the reason

Castro: Waiting for FDU

Track

By Bruce Freund

Two years ago, in its season opener the College's track team dropped a close decision to Fairleigh Dickinson University. It finished that season by placing sixth in the Collegiate Track Conference. Last year, the Lavender lost to the Knights by a whopping 102½-37½ margin—and finished second in the CTC. Saturday, the Beavers once again face FDU in the season opener and, if they're superstitious, they just might forfeit the match.

Actually, nothing could be further from the tracksters minds. Coach Francisco Castro and his men are working hard in preparation for the meet as they feel that Saturday's showing could provide a good indication of the team's prospects. "I'm waiting for the Fairleigh Dickinson meet before putting my crystal ball to work," Castro announced mysteriously.

Although far from a star-gazer, distance runner Mike Lester is less reluctant to voice a prediction. "We figure to do well in the track events, but this strength will be offset by weakness in the field events," he said. Paradoxically, the field events, or more specifically Vinny Hanzich, were Lavender strong points a year ago. Hanzich, competing as a shot-putter and hammer and discus thrower, accounted for 13 of the team's 29 points in last season's CTC's.

But Hanzich is gone, having completed his eligibility, and the Beavers are relying on sophomore Paul Bronstein to fill the gap left by his departure. Bronstein, though, is used to following in famous footsteps - he had the dubious distinction of succeeding Gary Gubner as shot-putter at DeWitt Clinton High School.

However, Lester's confidence in Lavender track prowess seems well-founded. Led by Owen Masters and Lenny Zane, the Beavers swept to a second place finish this winter in the indoor CTC's and now, out in the fresh air, they hope to improve their standing. Masters, a recent transfer from the Evening Division and anchorman on the Beaver's crack one-mile relay team, recently shattered the College's mark in the 600-yard dash. In that same meet, the indoor IC4A's, Zane, better known for his cross-country exploits, eclipsed the Lavender two-mile record.

Viewed in perspective, this may be the year Beaver hopes finally achieve fruition. It is Castro's third season as coach, and, in each of the previous campaigns, the mysterious maestro has succeeded in improving the tracksters' position. Considering that, there is no place to go but up.

"If I had it to do over again, would I take Army R.O.T.C.?"

Look at it this way. I like the idea of doing challenging work. That's why I volunteered for Special Forces. So you can see why I felt pretty good when the Army assigned me to Europe! Here I really feel I'm doing something for the cause of my country in these important times. How many jobs can you think of that start you off with this kind of responsibility? My wife's here, too, and she loves it. We get a chance to travel. We meet the people, learn new languages, customs. And there's a pretty active social life on post, too. But above all, I'm an officer with a job to do and with responsibilities to shoulder. I like it that way, and I have a hunch that my leadership training and experience will help me out whatever I do. Take it from me, if you're already half-way towards your commission, see it through. It's a good deal. I know."
