Group Formed to Study Future Enrollment Crises

By Jean Patman

A committee of five professors to study future enrollment crises has been established by President Gallagher.

The group's creation must be approved by the Faculty Council which will meet tomorrow. Quick approval is expected.

At the last Council meeting, on January 9, President Gallagher requested that a committee be formed to consider the effect of future increased enrollments and lowered admission requirements.

The five professors nominated to the committee are: Bailey Harvey (Speech), John Davis (Chairman, Political Science), Arthur Waldhorn (English), Bernard Bellush (History) and David Lewis (Chemistry).

According to Professor Bellush, Dr. Gallagher requested the formation of the committee because the faculty had been "unhappy" with the implications of Dr. Gallagher's enrollment proposals released last October 3. They felt, Professor Bellush said, that lowering admission standards would "bring in students whose interests, standards of work, preparation or lack of, will lower class discussions and the overall ability of the class to reach the goal it should attain."

The committee has already outlined several problems that it will consider. These include:

- the number of students expected to be admitted during the next decade.
- the most effective way of coping with the problem of high school graduates who are underprivileged or come from families who encourage their children towards vocational pursuits rather than higher education.
- the most effective method of teaching under conditions of expanded enrollments.

The committee's findings will be of great import to President Gallagher, Professor Bellush said, because "he must have the support of the faculty, which he really hasn't had since October 3."

Board of Advisors Requests A $2 Increase in Center Fee

By Jeff Silber

The Finley Center Board of Advisors recommended Monday that the student center fee be raised by two dollars. If approved, the center fee would be raised from five to seven dollars and the bursar's fee from seventeen to nineteen dollars.

The increase in the fee will cover a $30,000 deficit between expected Finley Center revenue and expenditures. The 1964-65 budget calls for expenses of $196,000 while income is only $168,000.

Dr. Willard Blaesser, Dean of Students, must approve the advisors' recommendation for the increase to be effected. It is expected that the fee will be raised because the advisors' proposals are usually incorporated into Finley Center policy.

Next year's budget calls for an increase of $13,000 in expenditures over the 1963-64 budget.

According to Mr. Edmond Sarfaty, director of the Center, the budget provides for mandatory increases in the salaries of the Center's employees and in equipment costs. "We will also share some of the employees medical expenses," he said.

The chairman of the budget committee of the advisory board, Prof. Kurt Lowe (Geology) estimated.

What effect last Wednesday's campaign in Assemblyman Paul Curran's district will have on the vote to discharge the free-tuition bill from committee will have to wait until March 3. It is still too early to reconcile the conflicting reports on the results of drive.

According to Joseph Zaretski, State Senate minority leader, Mr. Curran has been "smoked out and forced to take a stand."

"You people have the greatest potential for success [to discharge the bill]," Mr. Zaretski said.

Council to Consider Raising Aide Wages By Increase in Fee

By Eileen Safir

A proposal to increase the general fee from seven to nine dollars in order to increase the salary of student aides is being considered by Student Government's Student Affairs Committee. According to Bob Rosenberg '64, SG President, Student Council will vote on the proposal "in about three weeks."

Meanwhile, Bob Atkins '64, a member of the committee and a student aide, has submitted a club charter for the Association of Student Aides. The union will meet this Thursday to decide future policies.

The proposal to increase student fees and the formation of the student aides union are due to the aides' dissatisfaction with their $1 per hour minimum wage. President Gallagher favors a wage increase but he has stated that funds could be made available only through a fee increase.

Although Dr. Gallagher has the authority to raise the general fee without the Council's consent, he asked SC for a vote of recommendation.

Atkins said that he "thinks Dr. Gallagher knows Student Council won't support a fee raise" and is trying to put the responsibility for such a raise on SG. He added that he was going to ask Council to abstain from voting.

An estimated forty students, including eight from the College, picketed and chanted slogans in front of the New York Times building last Friday to protest the newspaper's editorial policy on the Cyprus crisis.

Carrying signs such as "To Be Fully Misinformed Read the New York Times," the pickets marched peacefully for an hour under a bright noon sun.

The students, mostly of Greek and Greek Cypriote origin, claimed the American press, particularly the Times, had been "bullied by Anglo-Turkish interests and their international gangsters" into supporting the Turkish Cypriote viewpoint on the Cyprus issue.

They said the Times had refused to print letters sent to them by Greek Cypriote organizations. The

SG Rejects Rally in Albany As CU Council Backs March

The City University Council of Student Governments voted last Saturday to support a march on Albany to restore the free tuition mandate to the State Education Law.

However, Student Government leaders here do not believe that such a demonstration will materialize because they do not back an Albany rally.

SG was one of three City University divisions which voted against an Albany march. According to Danny Katkin '65, SG vice-president, the reluctance of upstate student governments to provide the necessary funds for the demonstration prompted SG to veto the motion calling for a rally.

An Albany march would be slated for March 3, the day anti-tuition forces in the Assembly will attempt to discharge the bill mandating free tuition in the CU from the Ways and Means Committee. Supporters of a rally hope that an upstate demonstration would influence Republican legislators to vote for discharge.

Admission is free and all are urged to attend.

MDC Considering Taking Legal Steps For Delay on Files

The Marxist Discussion Club is considering suing the College if no "definitive statement" is released in the next few weeks by President Gallagher on allowing off-campus access to student files.

According to Eric Eisenberg '64, the leader of the MDC protest, representatives from the MDC consulted Attorney Frank Donner in November to discuss the feasibility of a case against the College.

Now, the MDC is awaiting public release of the President's ad hoc committee's report on access to student files. If release is not forthcoming "shortly," the MDC may retain counsel.

The report is now in President Gallagher's hands and he plans to meet with committee members before releasing the report or issuing any comments on it.

Mr. Donner told the group that the basis for court action lies in the College's infringement of "the right of association." Mr. Donner the cagers brought the ball down-court, Bob Kissman, as if having a premonition of the oncoming disaster, blew one right under the basket. The Lavender play and the cheering of the crowd got the Broncos fired up. Nick Valvano scored from the outside and Doug Endres followed with three quick baskets, all from underneath.

Before Alex Blatt hit with the Beavers' first bucket of the second period, Rider had built up a 47-34 lead.

The Beavers did make one last vain effort. With the Broncos leading by 17 points with little more than eight minutes to play, Blatt made good a shot from the foul line. Schweid and Golden then sank free throws as the cagers tried to move into high gear.

But the Lavender could come no closer than seven points. Down by 60-48 with slightly more than five minutes left, Schweid hit from the outside and was fouled intentionally by Valvano. The little (5-8) guard sank both foul shots, bringing the score to 60-52. When Golden sank one free throw in a one-and-one situation, the Beavers were closer than they had been since the opening moments of the period.

The Broncos, however, closed out the game in another scoring spree and the Beavers were losers as they have been in three of their last four games.

This game was a "must" for the Beavers as far as the Tri-State League is concerned. With a win, they could have stayed in contention with league leader Fairleigh Dickinson. Rider is now 2-3 in league play, 9-6 overall.

The College's basketball team, in quest of its second Tri-State League win, was turned back by the Stags of Fairfield, 74-69, at Wingate Gym January 30. The Beavers, bounced back to beat Wagner, 68-65, Saturday, February 1, before losing to C.W. Post, 83-74, last Tuesday.

The Stags coasted to a 41-30 halftime lead thanks to the almost flawless shooting of guard Pat Burke who would up with a total of 27 points, including 12-19 from the floor. Alex Blatt led the Lavender with 20 points.

Wagner came into Wingate with

The C. W. Post game gave Lavender fans the chance to see the most dazzling backcourt play seen here in years. Frank Townsend (5-6) is evidence that the little men can still hold his own — and then some — against the giants of the basketball world.

Time and again, Townsend would fly downcourt with the ball, fade, and then drive for layups. When he wasn't scoring, he was setting up plays with passes that even the most diehard Beaver fans had to applaud.

Mike Brandeis, Townsend's backcourt sidekick, was high man for the Pioneers with 30 points. Al Zuckerman led the Beavers with 21 points.

Lavender Mermen Dunked In Three Vacation Meets

Intersession did not prove to be a particularly enjoyable holiday for the College's swimming team. The mermen were defeated by Kings Point, Fordham, NYU, and saw their record wilt to 1-6.

Against NYU, Saturday, the Beavers were unable to capture a first place and lost, 66-25. Their only strong performance came in the 500 yd. freestyle event as they took both second and third places, with Walt Konen edging Girard Pessis.

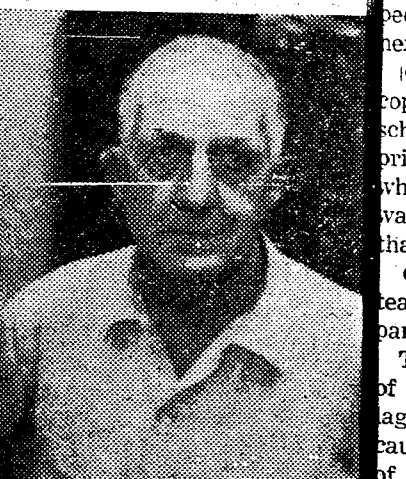

In the dive, the usually strong duo of Richie Woska and Al Carter was soundly defeated by the Violet's Sam Finns.

Al Frishman, who has come into his own during the second half of the season, swam in three events. He took third place in the 200-yd. Individual and in the 200-yd. Backstroke. He also swam a leg in the 400-yd. Freestyle Relay.

Winners for the Violets included Steve Semryck (200-yd. Breaststroke), Ed Buncanson (500-yd. Freestyle), and Norm Globberman (200-yd. Freestyle). Globberman, NYU's versatile sophomore, completed the eight laps in 2:10.9.

Two days prior to the NYU meet, Fordham had administered similar treatment, defeating the Beavers, 65-26. In five different events, the Rams swept the first two places, and coupled with a victory in the Medley Relay, they proceeded to give the Mermen one of their worst beatings of the 1963-64 campaign.

Beaver standouts were Frishman and Woska. Frishman won the 200-yd. Backstroke and swam the first leg of the victorious 400-yd. Freestyle Relay. The other legs were swum by Steve Gluck, Al Morgenthal, and Tom Hoepfner. Woska triumphed in the dive, with SWIMMING coach Jack Rid can't wait for next season when he will bring up frosh team.

Carter placing third. Ken Zinkand, Frank Tarra and Gary Oswald gave strong performances for the Rams.

The Beavers' best showing during the intersession period came against Kings Point January 10. The Lavender bowed in that meet 52-41.

Point scorers were divers Carter and Woska, finishing first and third, respectively.

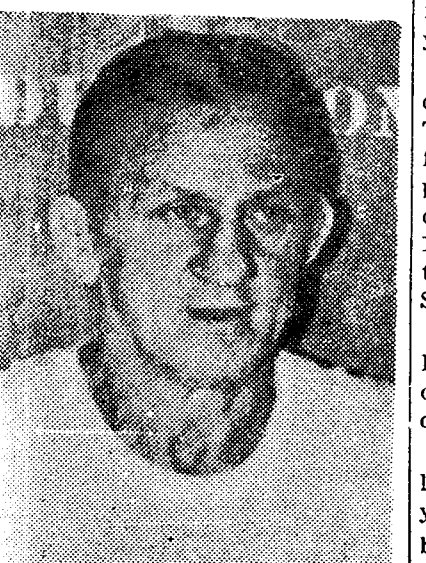

Denny Mora, who had won events in the preceding meet against Brooklyn Poly, took first place in the 100-yd. Freestyle. Girard Pessis came up with strong performance in winning 200-yd. Butterfly.

The Beavers will close out regular season February 15, with little chance for victory against a strong Lafayette squad. Hopes are high for next season this year's fine freshmen swimmers will attempt to strengthen the varsity's chances for future winning campaigns.

FDU Pins Matmen, 20-18; Loss of Siegel Is Handicap

The College's wrestling team dropped a hard fought decision to the grapplers of Fairleigh Dickinson Saturday in Goethals Gymnasium. The score was 20-18.

The Beavers were handicapped by the absence of 130-pounder Al Siegel. After reporting to the team's 9 a.m. weigh-in, Siegel drove away and was not heard from until the following morning. Siegel had gone to the hospital when he discovered that his girl friend had taken ill. His absence prompted the first Lavender default in coach Joe Sapora's 32 year tenure.

Unmindful of Siegel's sudden disappearance, the College's Ron Taylor got the matmen off to a fine start as he pinned his opponent to register his fifth victory of the season. Wrestling in the 123-lb. class, Taylor has lost only to Carl Bateman of Montclair State.

In the next match, Beaver Paul Biederman took to the mats to oppose 137-lb. Horst Rudolph, captain of the Purple Knights.

It was Rudolph whom the college's Harvey Taylor defeated last year in what Sapora termed "the best match of the season." But Biederman was not equal to Taylor's heroics and Rudolph pinned him in the third period.

When Charles Hough pinned

the Lavender's 147-lb. entry, Paul Weiss, the visitors increased their lead to 15-8. But the Beavers cut the margin when Mark Miller, who had moved up to 157 lbs. for this match, found himself without an opponent for the second time in his last three matches.

"They're afraid of him," Sapora chortled. "They won't put anybody in to wrestle him."

Miller had to content himself with wrestling an exhibition match against a member of the Fairleigh Dickinson freshman team, whom he clobbered, 11-1.

Now the Lavender began to pick up momentum. Al Fein decisively decided his man in the 167-lb. class and Al Leydecker pinned his purple-shirted adversary as the Beavers forged ahead for the first time.

Alas their three point lead was short-lived as heavyweight Jack Stein succumbed in the final seconds of the last match to give the Knights five points and the victory.

Feesable

A financial crisis on a different plane than the tuition issue besets the students at the College. In September, they will probably pay a bursar's fee of at least nineteen dollars.

The Finley Center Board of Advisors has recommended an increase of two dollars in the five dollar student center fee to cover a $30,000 deficit in the Center's 1964-65 budget. Although the advisory board's decision must be approved by Dr. Willard Blaesser (Dean of Students), it is fairly certain that the fee increase will be imposed. The Board's proposals are usually made into Center policy as a matter of course.

Little can be said about the proposed seven dollar student center fee. The increased budget provides for necessary increases in the salaries of Center employees and for payment of essential equipment. If the Finley Center is to operate at maximum performance, the increased costs must be met. Of the various sources which finance the Center, only the student fee can be increased to provide added revenue.

Students cannot be expected to accept another boost in their bursar's fee happily. However, when one thinks of the necessary services which this increase will provide, it becomes apparent that the fee hike must be accepted gracefully.

There is the possibility, although slim, that the bursar's fee will be more than nineteen dollars. At President Gallagher's request, Student Government's School Affairs Committee is considering the feasibility of increasing the seven dollar general fee by two dollars. This does not mean that either Dr. Callagher or the School Affairs Committee supports another increase in the general fee so close on the heels of last September's raise. However, if the salaries of student aides are to be increased, as the committee has demanded, according to Dr. Callagher the general fee must be raised.

We cannot accept an increase in the general fee as readily as one in the student center charge. We have no guarantee that the extra two dollars will go entirely to pay the aides' salaries. Nor do we know which aides will receive a share of the added revenue. If the Affairs Committee is considering an increase in the fee, it must first make a detailed study of who gets how much.

A short six months ago, the general fee was increased from five to the present seven dollars. Another raise so soon after, is not warranted.

A House Divided

If the student governments of the City University hope to achieve some measure of success in this year's tuition drive, they must at least present a united front. For this reason we consider SG's behavior since last Saturday's meeting of the CU Council of Student Governments regrettable.

Whether or not SG agrees with their CU counterparts is irrelevant. Once the Council voted to go ahead with a trip to Albany on March 3, SG should immediately have thrown its support behind the effort. Instead SG leaders tried to discourage other student governments from attempting the trip.

Rumors have been circulated during the last few days claiming that other student governments have pulled out from the Albany trip; other rumors refute these. Now it seems unclear exactly which colleges would support a trip and which oppose it and an air of indecision has pervaded the entire trip plan. This give opponents of free tuition an opportunity to discount the whole anti-tuition drive as an amateurish attempt by some college students to gain personal recognition.

In addition, a rift seems to be in the making between Evening SG President Bob Croghan and Bob Rosenberg as the two have hurled charges at each other regarding the tuition campaign. It now appears that the past few days' developments have not only made a shambles of the CU's united front but may even hurt relations between the Colleges evening and day session.

A rally in Albany without College support would probably be a failure and the CU student governments who are planning to go ahead with the rally would do better to save their money. But the fault is not theirs. It rests squarely with SG.

ON THEIR PINNING

By Art Iger

Contrary to popular belief, there is no one road to power. The means of attaining it depends only on the ingenuity of the individual.

At the College the conventional method of achieving power is the "up through the ranks" method. By way of preparation the most important asset is the right high school. In this case the Bronx High School of Science is preferred, but is by no means indispensable.

At Science, the prospective candidate is not required to run for office, but he should endeavor to have the widest possible circle of friends. Having a large circle of friends is probably the most important asset that a Science High School student entering the College can have. This is because of a preponderance of former Science students in every class at this school.

On arrival at the College it is imperative that you run for Student Council while high school loyalties still run true.

After your first election you have no cause for worry if you do not aspire to higher office.

When seeking re-election just campaign on your record and your opponents inexperience. Your legislative record itself matters very little (people assume that if you campaign on your record it must be pretty good and will thus vote for you).

If on the other hand you aspire to higher office your campaign must be more involved. First of all you need an issue—reform is as good as any other. You must proclaim that the establishment is corrupt and is ruining the good name of the school. If, by some accident, the preceding administration was a reform administration you must claim that they are ruining the good name of the school by destroying traditions at the College. In addition you must make promises: tell the students that you will provide free bus and train passes, promise an investigation of the school cafeteria, lower prices in the bookstore, free foreign movies and Broadway show tickets. This should carry the election for you.

Those of you who did not go to Science may feel left out of things. Take heart—there is a way for you if you are ambitious. You must come to power by the "back stairs" method.

The first step is to pledge a large fraternity. Once in the organization have yourself elected Inter-Fraternity Council delegate. In order to build a personal following within your fraternity you should have yourself elected Pledgemaster. This position will enable you to endear yourself to all incoming pledges by assisting them through the trauma of pledging.

While you are building a following within your fraternity you should keep advancing within IFC. Your immediate goal is the IFC Presidency; once there you are ready to plunge into schoolwide politics. As IFC President you command the loyalties of all fraternity people. You must endeavor to transfer this loyalty from the IFC Presidency to you as the candidate for S.G. Secretary. As Secretary you should strive to loose the stigma of the fraternity image and instead become a model Secretary.

The next step is the most difficult and where even the most adept Lifeman is apt to blunder. You have undoubtedly lost your fraternity following and have been unable to garner sufficient support from any other quarter. You cannot attack the administration because you were part of it, you cannot make extravagant promises because you should have tried to implement them while you were in office. You are faced with a return to civilian life and anonymity. What shall you do? It is time to roll out your secret weapon—the personal letter.

You are to send out two letters, one to fraternity people and one to other influential groups in the school. The first letter should gently remind all fraternity people of your record as IFC potentate, your devotion to the fraternity cause, and should ask them to come to your aid in your time of need. The letter to other influential groups must impress your name in their minds. It should also speak loudly of a long record of public service, mumble vaguely of your liberal stands on many issues, and slander your opponent in a very discreet and indirect manner.

It is at this point that your fraternity brothers are used—they are your personal campaign committee. They pass out leaflets proclaiming your merits and speak to their friends, making eloquent pleas for your cause.

As SG President you will probably be bored and disappointed; but, as any Lifeman will admit, he's not really interested in the office itself; it's just the quest that excites him.

Debating
The Debating Society will hold its semi-annual student-faculty tea in 111 Wagner tomorrow at 12:30. All prospective candidates are invited. No previous experience is required.

Clark Requests Aid for HARYOU Plan

Professor at the College will be the city, state and federal payments for $100 million for project of his.

Dr. Kenneth Clark (Psychologist, director of Harlem Youth Opportunities Unlimited, Inc., will submit his request to gain funds for improving educational, cultural, and social opportunities in Harlem.

A bulk of the request, if approved, will go towards educational and job training. HARYOU's plan includes the establishment of school academies to make it possible for Harlem children to adapt to elementary school; job training for high school dropouts; academies for the counselling of juvenile delinquents.

Clark, who has been active in HARYOU since its founding, laments the inferior education of Harlem as the crux of the neighborhood's problem.

Albany Rally

Albany has produced a rift between the presidents of the College Day and Evening sessions and the governments.

Robert Croghan, ESSG president, and Bob Rosenberg '64, day session SG president, with "trying to get the City University Council to work for him."

He does not get what he wants, he will not only not cooperate with us, but will fight us," said Croghan is chairman of the City Council and strongly favors the Albany rally.

Rosenberg claims that without the support, an Albany demonstration will fail. He said that upstate colleges do not favor rallies and prefer contact within districts.

At the day session's representative CU Council meeting, Joel Rosenberg '65, thought it "ironical" that the division which voted for the Albany march represented the colleges which played minor roles in similar demonstration staged earlier.

Committee Trying to Rally Support To Draft Rosenberg for US Senate

A committee to draft Dr. Gustave G. Rosenberg, Chairman of the Board of Higher Education, for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senator, has been rallying support that Dr. Rosenberg does not seem to want. The committee wants him to run on a platform calling for state-wide free tuition.

"I am honored and flattered, but my candidate is Robert Wagner," Dr. Rosenberg said. Despite the chairman's protests, the committee, stationed at the Hotel Mansfield at 12 West 44 Street, is still soliciting support throughout the state.

According to Mario Scutaro, chairman of the committee to draft Dr. Rosenberg, twenty political groups have declared their support for the movement.

"Sixteen regular Democratic Clubs will announce their support of our movement," Mr. Scutaro said. "We also have reform clubs that are voting to have their membership ratify support for Dr. Rosenberg."

Although tuition is generally considered to be strictly a local issue, the committee members feel that it is of nationwide interest. "With a federal official in favor of free tuition, something constructive can be done for free tuition on a national scale," Mr. Scutaro said.

He added that a candidate who opposes tuition charges in colleges and universities "would receive a great deal of support because the issue crosses party lines."

Dr. Rosenberg would not say whether he would run if Mayor Wagner declines a nomination for Democratic candidate for Senator. An informed source in the BHE, however, said that Dr. Rosenberg would accept the draft.

Files Protest

said the College violated this right by allowing the Federal Bureau of Investigation access to student files.

"You couldn't stop the FBI from asking but you can certainly try to stop the College from giving information," he said.

Meanwhile, the MDC, the Student Peace Union, and the Students for a Democratic Society will not recharter for the spring term until Dr. Gallagher reveals the report's recommendations. Eisenberg said that until the report is released clubs here cannot know "what they are getting into when they are chartered."

Advisors Request Fee Raise

estimated that the increased fees would cover expected increases in Center expenditures for the next two years.

An increase in the Center fee would be the first since 1959, when the charge was raised from three to the present five dollars.

In similar action, the Board of Advisors recommended that the evening session Center fee be raised by one dollar.

A controversy arose at the meeting over the extent to which evening session students will be taxed to cover the budget deficit. Several Board members proposed that the evening session Center fee be raised from $3 to $4.50.

Robert Croghan, president of the evening session student government, attacked the proposal as being iniquitous. "The day session representatives are very inconsistent," he said. "We can pay equally but we cannot vote equally."

Malamud

Bernard Malamud, noted author will read from his works at the College tomorrow in 200 Shepard at 12:45.

Mr. Malamud is a 1936 graduate of the College and is the author of such critical successes as "The Magic Barrel," "The Assistant," and "A New Life."

Curran

and more legislators than Mr. Curran will be affected, SG leaders noted.

However, when one speaks to Mr. Curran, he gets the impression that the grass roots campaign did not accomplish anything.

"No demonstration will make me change my vote," he said, in a telephone interview Monday. "I am absolutely in favor of free tuition in the City University, but only as long as it is feasible."

He added that last week's drive would not have any effect on the November election, when he will attempt to maintain his seat.

Mr. I. E. Levine, the College's Public Relations Director, refuted the Assemblyman's claim that the Lincoln's Birthday demonstration will have no repercussions in November.

"If that's his opinion, fine, however many people in high political places in the legislature, as well as people in advisory capacities, are not at odds with each other concerning the vote on the free tuition mandate," Mr. Levine said.

Meanwhile, Student Government is moving into the districts of two Republicans from Queens next Saturday. The outcome of this campaign is even more uncertain than that staged in Mr. Curran's district. Nobody will know for sure whether the free tuition bill will reach the Assembly floor until the role is called on March 3.

Pickets

students and the organizations wished to remain unidentified.

"New York Times stop being biased" the pickets repeated in unison, rubbing their hands for warmth. "New York Times be objective" they chanted, many having trouble pronouncing the last word.

Employees of the Times taking their lunch break stared at the group as they left the building, some waiting around to see if "any exciting things" would come of the demonstration.

CAGERS' WINNING RECORD IN JEOPARDY

Polansky Needs A King-Size Performance

By George Kaplan

The clock on the scoreboard in Wingate Gym flashed at 0:00. Home 65—Guest 62. The College's basketball team had just downed a Howard University squad which was bigger, in inches at least, than the Beavers. The Lavender had looked good doing it.

Thus, the cagers closed out the fall term with a 5-2 record. The disappointing losses to Columbia and Queens were water under the bridge and the Beavers were looking forward to the tougher competition which would come with the new term.

Only things didn't quite work out as planned. Since the Howard game, the cagers have won only two of six contests. Their record has dwindled to 7-6 and they've got a chance to blow their winning mark when they meet the Terriers of St. Francis tonight at 8 at the 69th Regiment Armory.

This all leads to the obvious question: Just what has happened to the College's team?

The poor showing can be blamed on several things. The death of Mike Shaffer had a bad effect on the team other than the obvious, the loss of a swell guy and a good ball player. As a result of the mourning period of the Blatt and Shaffer families, the Adelphi and Bridgeport games were postponed. The lack of action hurt the Beavers. So, in addition to the traditional break for final exams, the cagers were idle from mid-December to early January.

Beaver center Steve Golden will have to produce if cagers are to win future contests.

It is foolish to expect a team, after two layoffs, to be as sharp as they otherwise might have been. But there has to be more to the problem than that.

Dave Polansky, coach of the Beaver quintet, lit his pipe, then glanced out on the court where the cagers were wrapping up the day's practice. Steve Golden and Bob Kissman were practicing shots from the floor. Golden is the seasons' starting center. Kissman figures to be next year's regular at the pivot spot.

"Kissman has the raw ability to be our starting center next year," Polansky said. "What we need is a good performance from our big man."

The coach looked out on the floor again and seemed to be thinking back over the games that the Beavers have lost this year because they couldn't get the big performance from the "big man." He glanced at Golden as the latter made his way through the exit, heading for the locker room.

Last season, the 6-5 center led the starting five in field goal percentage, hitting on 74 of 170 attempts (43.5 percentage). This year, that percentage has fallen to 34.8.

Contrary to the opinion of many, it is not the backcourt man, generally, which holds a team together. Of course, there are exceptions. But, as a rule, it is the center who is asked to "smash" the boards and chip in with a fair share of the team's points.

Golden has not been able to do too much of either. There have been times when he has played like the competitor that he is. The Wagner game is a case in point. His rebounding and production seemed to steam up other Beavers as the cagers nipped the favored Seahawks, 68-65.

But the Wagner game was the only contest in which Golden distinguished himself. Too often he seems content to let the other players do the job as he fails to box out and fight under the boards as he should be able to.

In the meantime, Kissman continues to learn. Kissman figures he'll be the most improved player on next year's starting five.
