Method of Altering Term Scored by UFCT Leader

By Constance Stone
Dr. Israel Kugler, president of the United Federation of College Teachers, expressed grave doubts over the decision of consultation between faculty and administration in extending the College's academic year.

Dr. Kugler explained that the union has not taken any stand on the lengthened term as yet but is now investigating whether the procedures used in determining the new policy were "democratic" or not.

Registrar Robert L. Taylor said that he was surprised by Dr. Kugler's charges.

Agitation for the move, the registrar maintained, "came not from the administration but from the chairman of our departments—something of a grass roots movement."

He questioned whether the UFCT, which has 100 members among the uptown center's faculty, "is truly representative of the thoughts of the teaching staff." The majority of faculty members, the registrar said, apparently supported the extended school year. He termed the department heads, who recommended the plan, "duly elected spokesmen of the teaching staff."

UNION CRITICISM: UFCT
President Kugler said more faculty should have been appraised.

According to Dr. Kugler, however, "At least one chairman was not present at the meeting in which the new schedule was planned."

Under the new schedule, approved by President Gallagher on March 3, classes will begin two days earlier next semester. Classes will meet on both Election Day and Columbus Day.

Rally to Draw 3,000 People; Facilities Will Not Be Closed.

By Mark Lerner

Three thousand students are expected to march up Convent Avenue at noon tomorrow and rally for free higher education.

A large turnout by the faculty is also foreseen. Last Thursday, the Faculty Council, the legislative body of the School of Liberal Arts and Science, unanimously endorsed the rally.

Spurred on by this vote of confidence in the anti-tuition campaign, President Gallagher issued a "Call To Mass Rally," in which he asked the support of all sectors of the academic community.

The President also announced in this message that the libraries, cafeterias, and dining rooms would be closed during the 12 to 2 break when the rally is to take place.

Yesterday, however, the President reversed this decision after numerous students protested to the administration and Student Government.

According to Joel Cooper '65, SG Executive Vice-President, the students complained that they were being "coerced" into attending the rally.

Cooper added that he "wanted

people coming to the rally out of choice," rather than lack of any place else to go.

Students participating in the rally will gather on south campus lawn and sing free tuition folk songs led by the Musical Comedy Society.

Then they will march to the north campus quadrangle, accompanied by contingents from the Pershing Rifles club and the Drum and Bugle Corps.

As the marchers pass through the gate by Cohen Library, they will each be handed a paper asking them to participate in the anti-tuition campaign.

The students can join any of the committees formed by SG for the fight for free higher education: a research committee, publicity committee, lobbying committee, or a canvassing committee.

At the quadrangle, Cooper will read a message of support from SG President John Zippert '66, who is now on the "freedom march" in Selma, Alabama.

Action is now being planned for the anti-tuition fight in the remainder of this term. SG leaders emphasize that the rally is a means to win student support for other free tuition projects.

A demonstration at the World's Fair has been suggested by Mark Brody '66, candidate for Council. He urged that an attempt be made to set up a "free higher education" booth at the New York City Pavilion.

Councilman Carl Weitzman '65 has suggested that students circulate petitions to amend the City Charter, so that the Board of Higher Education would be prohibited from charging tuition.

Cooper explained that this measure is being investigated by Alumni lawyers to determine whether such a step would have any effect, since a state law supercedes a city statute.

The State Education Law now gives the board the right to impose tuition.

Twenty Participate In Alabama March For Voting Rights

A bus load of students from the College left this morning to join the march on Montgomery, Alabama for the last day of the civil rights demonstration.

After the fourteen hour trip, the twenty students will arrive in Montgomery early tomorrow morning and rally in front of the Montgomery Courthouse.

The trip cost each student $40, but a committee of students collected $100 on campus to subsidize those who could not afford the expense, according to Linda Weber '66 who organized the trip.

Student Government President John Zippert '66 and Educational Affairs Vice-President Howie Simon '65 left for Selma, Alabama over the week end and are presently staying at the home of a Negro family.

The marchers will present tomorrow a petition to Alabama's Governor George Wallace.

Protests Mount Against Film Institute's Final Take

By Jane Salodof

A last minute reprieve is being sought for the College's Institute of Film Techniques by students, faculty members, and professionals of the film industry.

The future of the institute, presently housed in Steiglitz Hall at the College has been uncertain since President Gallagher announced last year that it would be moved to Manhattan Community College at the end of this semester.

At the prompting of film institute director Dr. Yael Woll, the President promised to reconsider his decision.

Proponents of the renowned institute have been incensed by the President's failure to issue a final ruling on the institute's fate here.

"We want to save the film institute and we want to rehabilitate it," explained Richard Anobile, one of the founders of the student movement.

He said that their immediate plans call for a mass letter writing campaign directed at Dr. Gallagher, which will be marked by appeals in newspapers, radio and television for public support.

"If we have to resort to demonstrations, we will," Anobile warned.

Among the Institute's faculty, Miss Rohama Lee, who is editor and publisher of Film News magazine, intends to speak at the next meeting of the Film Producers Association, in expectation of enlisting their support.

In the past she has spoken to President Gallagher as a representative of her magazine.

"We want to publish the story of the film institute, but we don't want to publish it as a tragedy," she said.

President Gallagher in his announcement last year of the move explained that the institute would be more suitable in a vocational school such as Manhattan Community College than a liberal arts institution.

Since that time, construction in Steiglitz has severely hampered the program of the institute.

Anobile has charged that the institute is "being squeezed out" by the construction program of the Speech department, which is expanding its use of the institute.

Classes in photography, advanced editing, directing, and advanced photography have been cancelled, reducing the institute's former enrollment of 280 students to the present total of 144.

She expressed regret that the basic editing course was being given this term in a "filthy" studio; there are carpenters constantly coming in, and "no place to hang up their [the students'] coats."

The film institute comes under the immediate jurisdiction of the Speech department. Prof. William Finkel (Chairman, Speech) said that he had never been informed of the cancelled classes.

He agreed that unless the construction is "a temporary thing," it would constitute "an interference."

President Gallagher said on Monday night that he has "no announcement" to make at the present time and would not explain the purpose of the construction in Steiglitz until he did.

The Launching Pad

Tomorrow's rally poses a challenge to the entire student body. We must prove to all skeptics on campus that a boycott was not needed to shake us out of apathy; we must show Governor Rockefeller and the Republican legislators that we are firmly committed to the cause of free higher education.

We can start to meet this challenge tomorrow by rallying en masse, thus showing our support for the anti-tuition campaign. We should not, however, walk away from the rally thinking our job is done. Student Government will soon ask our assistance in fighting the district campaigns and obtaining signatures for a referendum on the ballot in November. The hard work lies before us.

Endorsements

This term's Student Government by-election will be more than just an exercise to fill SG's ranks. The candidates running for Council will be faced with very important issues including free tuition, interpretation of the students as students clause, and determination of the students' role in student-faculty affairs. Proper consideration of these and other issues will require more than just the casual interest in Council affairs that some present members of that body seem to have.

Four candidates have shown themselves ready to meet this responsibility, and therefore, we recommend their election. They are:

- Linda Weber, Council '66
- Mark Brody, Council '66
- Cary Krumholtz, Council '67
- Joseph Popper, Council '67

The Silence

President Gallagher has had a year to decide whether the world-renowned film institute will stay at the College and honor the school by its presence, but still the President remains silent. In this silence, however, the institute is slowly being deprived of its facilities, and the respect the school has earned with professionals in the films industry is being tampered with. The President must act immediately and forthrightly. If he should rule the institute "condemned," he must devise a better reason for its eviction from our academic community. He should not continue to claim that it is a vocational school having no place in the college that has always pointed with pride to its training of the "well-rounded man."

Alabama Bound

To the Editor:
Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has asked all citizens to make their personal witness to the struggle for the freedoms of suffrage and assembly by joining him in his march from Selma to Montgomery. Thousands of students from all over the country are converging on Montgomery, Alabama Thursday to make their personal commitment to the cause of equality.

Several buses of students from the City University will leave Wednesday morning to join this expression of support for the march. Some members of the Involvement Slate will be among this contingent. We feel that we cannot in good conscience remain in New York to work to get votes for ourselves while Dr. King has asked that we "make our personal witness" to the Negro's striving for the right to vote.

We urge all of our fellow students to travel with us to Montgomery so that our voices can be heard; so that when we leave the gates of City College we will live in a country where the Proclamation Emancipation has become a reality, not just a dream.

Correction

To the Editor:
It has been said that to err is human, to forgive divine. Your representative, in reporting the March 11 student-faculty discussion on South Viet Nam in the March 12 issue of The Campus, amply proved his humanity. In keeping with Alexander Pope's observation, it would be blasphemous of me not to point out that the views attributed to me in the second paragraph of the article are not remotely mine and that what I did say is better reflected in the quoted material. If I add that I have written to you in a spirit entirely free of rancor, I trust that I will not be misunderstood.

Dante A. Puzzo
Assistant Professor

Editor's Note: The following paragraph is the one cited by Professor Puzzo:

"Speaking at a discussion, sponsored by the WEBB DuBois Club, Professor Dante Puzzo maintained that Communist influence in the area had increased to the point where the United States cannot pull out, or risk nuclear war by escalation. The only remedy left, he said, is negotiation with the Vietcong."

Future Doctor Uses His Skull To Make Cash

By Sol Solomon

Bruce Allen Werner '66 has probably the strangest collection of skeletons in the closet and he's making no bones about it.

Werner bought one Felis domestica (commonly called tabby) skull, one set of cat vertebrae, one turtle skull, one alligator skull, and one lower jaw of an iguana but is now trying to get rid of his menagerie.

Having purchased the items for Biology 23 (Comparative Anatomy) class last term, Werner, a pre-med student placed a for-sale card on the Finley bulletin board at the beginning of this term, hoping for customers.

Business, however, has been anything but prosperous. Werner has received only two calls in two months, resulting in the sale of one cat vertebrae for $22.

However, Werner said that he is not "trying to make a profit" on the sales, since not too many people want to spend money on these items, and will accept any reasonable offer. Anyone interested should call OL 3-2984 and ask for Bruce.

A message of importance to sophomore men

If you've got what it takes to be an Army Officer, you may qualify for this new on-campus training program

A new Army ROTC program starts this coming Summer for sophomore men who apply prior to May 1—only 3,000 applicants to be accepted

If you're a sophomore now attending one of the 247 colleges and universities that offer Army Officer training—or you plan to transfer to one of these schools next Fall—you may qualify for the new two-year Army ROTC program.

This new program—designed especially for college men who have not taken Army ROTC during their first two years—will commence with six weeks of field training this coming Summer, beginning June 14. Then you'll have on-campus training during your junior year . . . six additional weeks at camp during the following Summer . . . and more on-campus training during your senior year. Even flight training is offered at some schools.

ROTC training is really a process of learning to organize and direct others—to be a leader. Consider how important this ability can be to you throughout life; yet, to acquire it you will spend relatively little time in the ROTC classroom. You'll obtain valuable junior management experience . . . a fuller and richer campus life . . . extra spending money ($40 per month during your junior and senior school years, and even more during Summer training) . . . and, when you graduate, an Army Officer's commission as Second Lieutenant. Then you'll normally spend two interesting years on active duty, often abroad with opportunities for travel.

Talk to the Professor of Military Science on your campus about this opportunity. Ask him to describe this new short program in detail.

Or send in the coupon below for complete information. There's no obligation involved, and you'll not be subjected to any "hard sell" recruiting effort. The kind of men the Army wants can decide for themselves if this new opportunity is right for them.

If you're good enough to be an Army Officer, don't settle for less. Sign up now for Army ROTC.

Send in this coupon for more information on this new two-year on-campus Army Officer training program.

Diamondmen to Rely on Power Stickmen's Hopes High In Spite of Inexperience

By Arthur Woodard

To most baseball fans the term "Murderer's Row" conjures up thoughts of the 1927 New York Yankees, but after this year, at the College at least, it may bring to mind the 1965 edition of the Beaver baseball team.

The diamondmen will undoubtedly play for the big inning more this year than they ever have before, since they have four players who all seem to merit the title of "fencebusters."

Sluggers

The Beavers' "Sultan of Swat" will probably be Lou Gatti, a 6-3, 215 lb., left-handed hitting first baseman who has power to spare.

Gatti is a transfer student from Hunter College, who looked great in summer league competition last year and who has been powdering the ball with great consistency during practice sessions.

Lavender coach Sol Mishkin feels that Gatti "will knock in a lot of runs for us," and that in addition he will be an excellent defensive first baseman.

Backing Gatti up in the power department will be third baseman Dave Minkoff, who led the Beavers in batting last season with a .400 batting average and a .633 slugging percentage.

Big Bats

Sophomore catcher Bernie Martin and shortstop Barry Edelstein are the other two Beavers who are expected to wield big bats.

Martin was a pitcher-outfielder on the freshman team last season, but Mishkin feels he can help the Lavender most as a backstop. He led the fall baseball team in hitting and clubbed two extremely long home runs against Fairleigh Dickinson University.

Edelstein, who drove in eleven runs last year, won his starting slot because of his bat. He is an adequate defensive man but Barry Mandell, the other shortstop candidate, is far superior in this department. Mishkin, in fact, calls Mandell "the best fielding shortstop I've ever seen since I came to the College."

The Beaver outfield also should do all right in the hitting department, particularly in the rightfield spot which will be patrolled by Lou Henik.

Henik, a mainstay in rightfield last year, slammed three doubles and a homerun for the diamondmen then.

Steve Beccalori will be the Beavers' leftfielder. He didn't see a great deal of action last year but when he did play he was impressive, especially in the Lavender's 14-3 romp over Brooklyn College. In that contest, he slammed a circuit smash with two men aboard.

Glove Man

Speedster Bill Miller will patrol centerfield. Miller is a defensive specialist who covers the large centerfield area like a blanket.

Rounding out the starting lineup will probably be Dave Hayes, a switch hitter, at second base. Hayes may have problems with the bat, but he is a top defensive player.

Mound Weakness

The Beavers' one weakness appears to be pitching. There is no problem about the number one spot, manned by senior Howie Smith, but after him the staff is extremely thin.

Smith, who compiled a 4-2 record with a 2.40 earned run average last year, will probably start nine of the Beavers' fifteen games, as many as possible in the tough Met Conference.

Roland Meyreles and Joel Weinberger will be the Beavers other starters, but since both have been primarily relief pitchers in the past, there must be a great deal of doubt about their ability to go the route.

The problems would not be so acute if Ron Muller, who won three games last season had been able to recover from the arm trouble he developed last year. Muller would have been the only lefthander on the Beaver staff.

Overall, the Beavers are a strong defensive team with exceptional power, who seemingly will go as far as their pitching will carry them.

Allagaroo: Are You Ready?

By Bob Diskin

If nothing else, this year's Fifth Annual Metropolitan Intercollegiate Cheerleading Competition proved that the quality of a school's basketball team has little to do with the quality of its cheerleaders.

At least this was the case with Paterson State Teachers College, who captured the championship trophy Saturday for the fourth time after seeing it go to Jersey-State Teachers College last year.

It is obvious that Paterson's cheerleaders did not take their cue from their school's cagers who compiled a woeful 2-21 record in the past campaign. They ran up a near perfect score of 1787 points out of a possible 1800 in edging out the defending champs by eleven points. Newark State College was a distant third, scoring 1456 points to take home the remaining trophy.

The College's cheerleaders once more acquitted themselves well as they finished fifth, eight points behind Upsala College.

By Steve Leiterstein

Despite heavy graduation losses and a large percentage of inexperienced sophomores, the College's lacrosse team hopes to improve on last season when the stickman could win only two games while dropping eight.

Lost from last year's Beaver aggregation are Walter "Red" Brown, the mainstay of the team's defense, Emil Castro, who tallied 49 points on 15 goals and 34 assists, and Andy Markoe, who was tremendous in the Lavender goal last season.

Stars Return

A combination of injuries and ineligibility has kept many of the stars of last year's freshman team from coming out for the varsity. The stickmen have, however, been fortunate to regain the services of Rudy Chaloyaska and Lenny Sager who starred on the freshman squad of two years ago.

Coach George Baron expects to field an attack which will feature Chaloyaska, Lloyd Smith, Mike Metaxes, and Craig Hirsch. Among these, Metaxes is the only one without varsity experience.

The starting midfield will consist of Ted Kostiuik, Ossi Juvonen and Jimmy Pandoliano. Juvonen was one of the Beavers top scorers last year while Kostiuik was a steady performer throughout the campaign.

Norm Pianko, Steve Berman and Georges Grinstein, none of whom played much last season probably will start at defense. Baron will look to newcomers Marv Sanber and Barry Traub if any of the others should falter.

Goalkeepers

Sager and sophomore Stan Nack will man the Lavender goal. Baron feels that "Stan is doing exceptionally well for a boy who had no experience.

While the squad is not deep in experience, the coach expects to carry a full team of about twenty or thirty players. The sophomores, although untested in varsity competition, will provide needed speed and bench strength.

The stickmen play host Saturday to the Suffolk Lacrosse Club which may be, according to Baron, their toughest opponents of the season.
