Group Seeks Committee To Formulate New Policy

Four student leaders proposed Friday that College policy be determined by a binding referendum, where possible, until the College's decision making structure can be revised.

Student Government President Shelly Sachs '67, Treasurer Larry Yermack '67, a Former Evening Session SG President Vic Gardaya and Mickey Friedman, a graduate student, urged that a commission of six students, four faculty members and two administrators be set up temporarily to make recommendations on College policy.

Sachs said last night that the temporary committee would make reports in an effort "to solve the present crisis."

He cited the "temporary facilities, 1000 new students, the master plan, the parking lot and, anything else that comes up" as items which would come under student-faculty scrutiny.

Sachs hopes that "if there can be a vote on each issue, President Gallagher would consider the committee's recommendations morally binding".

The students presented their proposals yesterday to President Gallagher who said that he had no reaction at all but wished to discuss it further "at the earliest opportunity".

The students devised the proposal Friday following a meeting of the steering committee of the Community Dialogue, a student-

Elections to Be Held Thurs.; Three Candidates Withdraw

By Eric Blitz

Three students, who were not academically qualified to hold office under the current faculty ruling, have withdrawn from this week's Student Government elections.

SG officials previously had threatened to allow the ineligible students to run for office in defiance of a General Faculty Committee on Student Activities' requirement that students running for Council have a C average.

SG President Shelly Sachs '67 explained yesterday that Council voted on September 21 that "the College should not have the right to act 'in loco parentis' and it should be up to the individual to decide if he is academically qualified."

However, according to SG Treasurer Larry Yermack '67, one of the students withdrew from the College last week and the other two "decided not to challenge the authority of the faculty."

Yermack said that although SG would have seated the students if elected, the students still would have faced disciplinary action from the faculty and perhaps suspension.

In this week's elections, Joe Korn '68 is running unopposed for the Educational Affairs Vice Presidency, and ten students are running for three Councilman at Large and two Class of '68 seats.

Krakower Says Master Plan Could Hurt Sports Program

By Andy Soltis

Prof. Hyman Krakower (Chairman, Physical and Health Education) charged Friday that the College's master plan will probably cause serious curtailment of all intramurals and athletics classes.

Noting that the "temporary" strains on his department might last as long as six years, Professor Krakower told an Interfraternity Council forum:

"We may have to bring all our outdoor athletics classes inside and temporarily substitute drill type courses. And intramurals also may face serious curtailments.

"To put it simply, we are very unhappy with the decrease in facilities."

Defending the administration, Mr. John Stark, assistant to President Gallagher, said, "We don't know for sure that there will be a thousand more students next year or that we will have to cut down the intramurals program."

Under the College's Master Plan, Lewisohn Stadium and Jasper Oval, which are used almost entirely by men's sports, will be razed for massive north campus building complex.

PL Members Threaten Sit-In At Interviews by CIA Today

Members of the College's Progressive Labor Club have threatened to sit-in outside the Placement Office this morning in an attempt to bar the Central Intelligence Agency from holding job interviews here.

Six other anti-war groups are picketing Finley Student Center, but spokesmen said they plan no legal indoor demonstrations.

Dr. Willard Blaesser, Dean of students, warned Sunday that the regular rules apply against demonstrations which "interfere with normal processes." The dean would not specify what action will be taken, saying only that "we will just have to watch".

After conferring with Student Government officials yesterday, Dean James Peace (Student Life) said that in case of a sit-in he and Councilman Barry Shrage '68 would try to dissuade the demonstrators. If the sit-in continues, Dean Peace said, he would take the students' names for disciplinary action.

Shrage, who is chairman of SG's Publicity Regulations committee, said Friday, Freedom of speech is a two-edged sword and Student Government has guaranteed it to all sides. If they feel like taking the risk of civil disobedience, then they should suffer the consequences," he asserted.

However, PL president Rick Rhoads '69 said that "nobody" would take his ID card. He added that PL would not sit-in as an or-

SG Will Study Charge Against 'The Campus'

Student Government's publicity committee will investigate charges levelled last week that The Campus discriminates against Jewish organizations in its news coverage.

Councilman Barry Shrage '68 said yesterday that within two or three weeks he will speak with Rabbi Arthur Zuckerman of Hillel, Prof. Nathan Susskind (Germanic and Slavic Languages) both of whom levelled the charges and editors of The Campus, to ascertain the validity of the accusations.

Dean James S. Peace (Student Life) said yesterday that Rabbi Zuckerman had contacted him. "I told him that the only thing I would suggest was that he con-

Site to Ease Enrollment Crisis

By Tom Ackerman

The Board of Higher Education last night voted to establish a new senior college by the fall in order to alleviate the enrollment crush at the City University's existing senior colleges.

The college, which will be housed in rented facilities either in Brooklyn or Queens, will accommodate 1200 of the 5000 additional freshmen being admitted.

An "experimental" program which the Board also passed and will be initiated at the University's Graduate Center will admit another 500 freshmen.

Modifications

However, President Gallagher last night refused to say whether the College's plans for temporary facilities would now be modified.

"If I attempt to make predictions now, then I would appear to be making decisions, for the College without adequate consultation of faculty and students, the President said.

University Chancellor Albert H. Bowker said he "would have to await the impact of the February admissions applications" before detailing a decrease in previously announced enrollment figures at the senior units.

Alpha College

The new four-year unit will be temporarily called "Alpha College" according to University Vice Chancellor Harry Levy.

The Graduate Center program was described by Dr. Levy as "an experiment in the granting of experience to graduate students to work with actual college freshmen while they themselves are under the supervision of their graduate professors."

PACIFISTS: 300 students gather to hear speeches on the war.

By Barbara Mahony and Julian Svedosh

Over 300 pacifist students and faculty members from throughout the Northeastern United States converged on the College this weekend to militantly denounce the draft and its effect on the university, the economy and the nation.

In discussions that ranged from calm exposition to impassioned oratory, the students planned a renewed attack on the Selective Service, including increased demonstrations on the campuses and a student-oriented anti-draft lobby in Washington.

The conference, sponsored by the Independent Committee to End the War in Vietnam, was organized into morning lecture and debate sessions in the Grand Ballroom and afternoon "workshops" spread around Finley Center and south campus lawn.

Dean Leo Hamalian (Curricular Guidance) began the weekend on a sombre note, illustrating the draft's effect on the univerthrough recollections of students he had come to know an advisor and who were now dead or in danger of dying in Vietnam. He was followed by John McDermott, an outspoken representative of Viet Report magazine, who bitterly denounced the draft as a basic in America's "neo-colonial" machine. He suggested that appeals conscientious objectors be used to immobilize the draft apparatus. After adjourning to the snack bar for lunch, the refreshed participants reassembled in the workshops to bitterly attack the 2-S deferments as "immoral" gimmicks which "split the students community in the non-student, working class community."

Sunday saw an analysis of the "draft and electoral politics" by representatives of the American Civil Liberties Union, the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party and David Frost, a peace candidate in the New Jersey Senatorial primary.

physical and health education department, IFC unanimously endorsed the creation of a student-faculty-administration committee to "investigate and propose alternatives to maintain the high standards" of athletics at the College.

IFC President Jerry Jaffe '67 said that the members would be recruited as soon as possible so that a meeting with President Gallagher could be held later this week.

"This problem is far more important and urgent than the pseudo-cause dreamed up over the loss of south campus lawn," Jaffe said.

Prof. John LaPlace (Physical Education) said at the forum that "even without the increased enrollment the outdoor field area available for athletics will be far from adequate."

He pointed out that even if Lewishohn Stadium is eventually replaced as planned, less than half of Jasper Oval will be available after the new Humanities building is constructed in its place.

Prof. Robert Behrman (Physical and Health Education) added that "the situation here is definitely not optimistic."

800 Neighbors Drop Around For Sunday's Philharmonyx

By Steve Dobkin

Unlike most weekdays, when the unending stream of lectures take their toll, only one person fell asleep in Great Hall Sunday.

While Donald Smith, one of a group of children from P.S. 144, dozed in his big wooden chair, about 800 other visitors from the Harlem community listened attentively to the music of the New World Symphony Orchestra.

The Orchestra, dedicated to "inspiring Negro musicians to pursue careers in the field of classical music," was invited to the College by the Onyx Society and the Harlem Cultural Council.

The highlight of the concert, which presented four full length works, including a new composition by Hale Smith, was Natalie Hinderas' piano solo.

Sitting in the front row, Mrs. Thelma Harris nudged her young son Craig to pay strict attention to the piano when Miss Hinderas sat down to play. Mrs. Harris had brought the boy "to help motivate him in his music studies."

Everyone seemed to agree with her that "the pianist was wonderful," down to a little girl in the center section who tugged on her mother's sleeve to say, "Isn't she pretty?"

Reaction to the new composition Contours was for the most part favorable.

"It didn't send me," Jennie Alberry, Harlem resident, said of the modern, cacophonous piece. But when the composer, Hale Smith, went up to the stage after the piece was played, the audience gave him a standing ovation.

Mr. Smith explained that the piece had "no extramusical message," but was "a logical argument in music."

As soon as the concert was over, the youngsters from P.S. 144 ran up to the bearded composer and pleaded for his autograph, although Gerald Franklin admitted none of them knew who he was.

organization because "they [the administration] would take away our charter".

A spokesman for the Brooklyn College Placement Offices said yesterday that a protest when the CIA appeared there last week was "not regular picketing" but an "invasion of privacy" which "disrupted the interviews". However, she promised that "each student scheduled for an interview" would have it "at one place or another".

Students here who sought CIA positions two years ago charged then the agency rejected all applicants from the College after Youth Against War and Facism disrupted the interviews by sitting-in outside the Placement Office.

The groups picketing outside the Center today are YAWF, the Independent Committee to End the War in Vietnam, the W.E.B. Du Bois Club, The Young Socialist Alliance, Students for a Democratic Society and the Anarchist Discussion Club.

The distributed a leaflet Friday assailing the presence of the CIA on campus because "campus democracy can never exist as long as the College supports the existence and purpose of the CIA—a participant in a brutally undemocratic foreign policy." —Ackerman

Trends Reversed: Booters Win, Harriers Upended

Beavers Stop Losing Skin At Three

By Joel Wachs

The Beaver booters knocked off Seton Hall 2-0 Saturday, in what they hope will signal, if not a new season, at least a new start.

The victory over the Pirates ended the lavender losing streak at three straight, and put their season's record at 2-3-1, with five games to go.

The new start started in the second half, after a scoreless first two periods, as Mike Nigro followed up a deflected shot by forward Steve Goldman. The tally came eighteen minutes into the third period.

Goldman (Goalman?) set up the second goal, which came late in the fourth quarter. Andy Papadopoulos converted a Goldman corner kick 17 minutes and six seconds into the period, and the Beavers had their 2-0 lead, and the victory.

Messing Not Missing

Though the Beavers may believe the triumph signals the start of something new, a comparison with last season's Seton Hall game is instructive here.

That season, also after going three consecutive games without a win, the Beavers bombed the Hall 6-0, with now graduated Cliff Soas garnering five goals, a College record.

No doubt with the comparison in mind, Coach Ray Klivecka is still changing his lineup, mostly in an attempt to beef up his week center. Thus, the coach started junior George Morar at center halfback.

Though the solidly built Morar

Runners Suffer First Defeat Of Season

By Danny Kornstein

The College's heretofore irresistible cross-country force met its immovable object Saturday.

Both the harrier's five-meet winning streak and undefeated season came to a shattering end as they lost to Central Connecticut State and Iona in a triangular meet, 36-39-59.

Even Jim O'Connell could not save the tracksters. O'Connell who placed first for the sixth consecutive time, covered the five-mile course in 25:31, almost three seconds faster than any other collegiate runner this fall.

The time, only 13 seconds slower than the senior's best, was almost two minutes better than Saturday's second best finisher, runner from Central Connecticut.

Abe Assa, continuing to improve, managed to finish fourth, with a time of 27:34, his best for the season.

Far and Few

But after O'Connell, the Lavender placed far back, and few were between the trackmen from Central and Iona.

Iona and Connecticut alternated places until eighteenth, when sophomore Andy Ferrara, who had fallen earlier in the race, came home at 30:43, almost a minute slower than his time of last week.

Immediately following Ferrara was Bernie Samet who placed nineteenth, and Allan Steinberg who finished twentieth.

As Harrier coach Francis Castro complained to his runners after the meet, there was much of a gap between O'Connell, Assa and the rest of the squad.

Last season, the harriers went undefeated through their first five meets, until they lost to Central Connecticut and Iona.

And last season, the squad ended up with but a 6-3 season, even after their magnificent start.

And this season, the most difficult part of the campaign is yet to come.

And there appears to be nobody who can close the gap to O'Connell and Assa.

STRATEGIST: Ray Klivecka made some lineup changes.

"committed some basic mistakes in his new position," the coach will probably stick with him, and attempt to iron out his faults.

Nick Gousis, who is usually pla-toonated at the left inside assignment with Morar, played there for the entire game.

The major Beaver difficulty expected for the contest did not develop. A defensive hole—created by the absence of Marc Messing—was plugged by Messing himself, returning to the lineup after suffering a head injury in the LIU encounter.

"The fullback shined as usual," noted Coach Klivecka.

Though their passing was superb and Goldman set up numerous scoring opportunities, the Beavers displayed the same flaw as in previous games: inability to put the ball into the net.

They fired 36 shots at the opposing goalie, most of which were way off target. Unless the booters start hitting, and soon, their new start may be short-lived.

Nevertheless, members of the team foresee the possibility of a five game sweep.

It could happen.

DIAMONDMEN END WITH LIU LOSSES

Faster than Jim O'Connell, the College's baseball team has completed its fall exhibition season.

The Beavers lost a doubleheader 2-1 and 1-0 to LIU Saturday, thus ending their campaign with an 0-4 record.

Though the diamondmen lost, sophomore pitchers Barry Paris and Andy Sebor showed fine promise against the Blackbird powerhouse, one of the top teams in the east.

Paris pitched a three-hitter in the first game while striking out ten batters, and Sebor also pitched a three hitter in the nightcap.

Also outstanding for the Beavers was third baseman Sam Rosenblum, who garnered three of the Lavender six hits in the twinbill.

The diamondmen's season had lasted about three weeks, commencing with a doubleheader loss to St. John's.
