Copeland May Leave College

By Peter Kiviat

Acting President Copeland said last night that he was "quite seriously considering a non-administrative post in the Botanical Sciences," citing "numerous offers outside the university."

In Sunday's New York Times, University Chancellor Albert H. Rowker said that a permanent president for the College probably would not be named until February at the earliest.

Meanwhile, Dr. Copeland reaffirmed that the post had been offered with his full knowledge and that it was to be on a temporary basis.

"I have no reason to believe that I will or will not be offered the Presidency on a permanent basis," he said.

When asked if he would accept the post if offered, Dr. Copeland exclaimed: "I will not answer that question unless an offer is made."

Dr. Copeland was offered the presidency after the abrupt resignation of Former President Gallagher, during last term's turmoil. Prior to that, he had taught Biology at the College for 41 years.

Cartey Hits 'Racist' Remark, Declares it Will Lead to 'Crisis'

Prof. Wilfred Cartey (English) last week predicted that if Acting President Copeland fails to withdraw his characterization of Dr. Cartey as "shiftless," it will "no doubt lead to a certain amount of crisis on this campus."

Dr. Copeland "has destroyed by his actions any possible harmonious relations for this semester," Cartey charged at a press conference Friday, at which he scored the remark as "racist."

The College, "which is situated right in the heart of Harlem, is potentially one of the most explosive campuses in America," he declared, saying that he has attempted to "maintain a certain amount of peace" since his arrival on campus last term.

The Acting President last week conceded that his description of Dr. Cartey was "poorly chosen and undesirable," Dr. Cartey said it was a "slave word" and said he was considering legal action.

However, Dr. Cartey emphasized that the episode was not a personal confrontation between Dr. Copeland and himself. He said he was "not seeking a personal apology . . . I'm seeking redress for a group."

He declared that "the attempt to denigrate a black person who has achieved some measure of status is an attempt to denigrate all other black men in this country."

Dr. Copeland explained and offered an apology for the remark in two radio appearances last week.

Appearing on "Night Call," a nationwide telephone show Wednesday night, he admitted that "my words may have been poorly chosen and if so, I apologize for them."

Dr. Copeland told a panel of (Continued on Page 2)

Cafeteria Prices to Raise 10 Per Cent

By Yocheved Berlowitz

A ten per cent price increase on most items will go into effect in the College's cafeterias Monday, the result of an eleven per cent salary increase granted to all workers.

Hot food items will be raised five cents. Lower priced basic foods, such as 35 cent sandwiches, soup, potatoes, bread and butter and wheatcakes will be unaffected.

Under a new contract negotiated between Local 302 of the Cafeteria and Restaurant workers Union and the Board of Higher Education, an across the board salary increase of 11 per cent was granted, in addition to increased layoff payments, welfare contributions and pensions.

Prof. Cornelius Ahearn, the College's business manager, told a gathering of student and faculty leaders last week that the price increase was necessary unless another alternative was presented.

He explained that the cafeterias are not subsidized by the College, and that the costs of wages, food and equipment must come from cafeteria profits. The BHE supplies the cafeterias only with space and heating.

An additional forty to fifty thousand dollars in revenue is needed to cover the new wage settlement.

Even with the new price increases, the College's cafeterias have lower prices than at any other unit of the City University, he maintained.

Under the new agreement, wages range from $1.55 an hour for waitresses to $150 a week for the Chef.

The cafeterias grosses about $60,000 a year. "We're not in business to make a profit," commented Professor Ahearn.

He noted that cafeteria prices have not been raised since April, 1967. Cutting expenses by shortening cafeteria hours has been ruled out, he said.

STARTING MONDAY, cafeteria patrons will have to pay ten per cent more for most hot items.

Are you sick and tired of the daily rigors of your life at the College? Would you like to do more than go to class, sit in the Trophy lounges and go home on the subway? Well, then, come up to The Campus office in 338 Finley (just two flights up from your favorite trophy lounge).

We'll help you learn how to cover all the major news at the College. There's room for anyone interested in photography, writing news, features, sports, doing layouts, editing, or just sitting around in the office playing categories.

Cartey Blasts Copeland

student reporters Friday afternoon on WCCR:

"I think we all regard Professor Cartey as an eminent scholar . . . I regret that perhaps under the heat of some emotion I used some words that were poorly chosen or undesirable."

Dr. Copeland added that "I've never associated that word in my understanding with any racial group."

Professor Cartey indicated yesterday that an acceptable apology would have to appear in print.

However, Dr. Copeland added that "I apologize for the unwarranted words used, but I do not condone the failure to be interested and to care for the legitimate gripes of the students to the deployment of their college record and in graduate school admissions."

Dr. Copeland has charged that Professor Cartey had neglected to submit grades for courses that he had conducted last spring.

In response, Dr. Cartey distributed among the press, Friday, photostated copies of a letter dated June 18 which he said was sent to all his students.

The letter stated that all students would receive a grade of P. Those students who wished to receive a letter grade were asked to submit a term paper. Professor Cartey also said that the grades had been hand-submitted to the registrar.

However, Registrar George Popoulas said yesterday that Dr. Cartey had submitted grades for only fifteen students on July 3. Grades for the other 21 in the class have not yet been submitted, he said.

When asked how Dr. Copeland had singled out Dr. Cartey of all the teachers in the school who had failed to submit grades, Dr. Popoulas said that he had "informally" mentioned it to Dr. Copeland over the summer.

"Most of us know Professor Copeland first as a professor, and then as a president," Popoulas said. "I mentioned to him once, whose grades were not in and that I was concerned about a professor who I had heard was out of the country."

Dr. Popoulas continued that the Acting President did not check check would be routine. "I don't with him again, but that such a remember making a point of Dr. Cartey's grades," Dr. Popoulas said.

Commenting on the new department of Urban and Ethnic Studies, Dr. Cartey explained that "to set up a department of Black and Puerto Rican Studies with two courses is an insult not only to the Black and Puerto Rican Community . . . but to City College itself."

Dr. Cartey was appointed last term by Acting President Copeland to draw up a program of Black and Puerto Rican studies at the College. He was expected to be named chairman of the new department.

However, Dr. Copeland gave the post to Osborne Scott, the former head of a philanthropic organization and a retired Army Chaplain.

Professor Cartey said he was not angry over Professor Scott's appointment. "If a brother is appointed over a brother, how can I be angry?" he asked.

But he added that the black and Puerto Rican faculty was "a bit peeved that they weren't consulted" about the appointment of Professor Scott.

Less Frosh Come Than Predicted

Of the 4,400 high school seniors admitted this fall (excluding those admitted to SEEK) only 1,743 have shown up to register for classes.

According to Registrar George Popoulas at least "100 more freshmen were expected to enroll, but our facilities are so overcrowded they will not be missed." When asked if the increased "no show" rate could be traced to last spring's disturbances, Popoulas declined to comment.

This year's "no show" rate was 60.4 per cent, compared to last year's rate of 58 per cent.

Most colleges send a letter shortly after acceptance asking for a deposit of fifty to a hundred dollars to secure a place in the entering freshman class. They therefore, have an idea how large the class will be, since anyone who sends in the money usually attends in the fall.

The City University, however, bases its estimates on the percentages from previous years and hopes that no more register in the fall.

This year's freshman class represents an increase of 350 over last year's class of 1,400.

Booters

Klivecka was naturally pleased with the game. "We scored early and put the pressure on right away; I'm happy with everyone's performance," he said. "We're going to be better; this game was just a scrimmage for us."

Pajak, who converted on 3 of his 13 shots from the left wing position, made life miserable for Post goalie Rick Holden. Pajak, who can belt the ball with either foot, picked up right where he left off last season before he was declared ineligible early in the campaign. It Saturday's performance was any indication, the 5-10 junior should be in for quite a season.

In all the Beavers took 28 shots to the Pioneers 12 and controlled play all over the field. Mikke Dibono and Aurelio Gennarini, spearheaded the attack from the middle of the field, setting up Beaver wingmen, Dime-trios Hamelos and Pajak for shots.

Gennarini, playing in his first game for the College was particularly impressive setting up two scores. DiBono, once again injury free, was his usual dazzling self.

DiBono's reputation is widespread, but with an offensive unit where everyone is a definite threat, his effectiveness is multiplied. Now in his senior year, the former All-American may look ahead to one of his most productive years.

The Beavers next game is Saturday at Pratt. Game time is 2 PM.

MARQUIS de SADE

DE SADE, A MAN OF TWO WORLDS. MONSTER. VISIONARY. PLEASURE-ORIENTED REVOLUTIONARY. His was an eroticism of the 20th Century, born in the 18th Century. Behind the legends of perverse cruelty and evil were his prophetic theories of personal liberty. Behind the condemned writings were the attacks on a degenerate establishment.

Arrested for sexual outrages... imprisoned for running away with his wife's sister... condemned to the guillotine during the French Revolution... he spent nearly half his life behind bars. Yet he never lost the conviction that war and repression were the orgies beyond all orgies.

The evidence of history is on his side. The violence, the turmoil, the shock, of the Marquis de Sade are now on the screen in a motion picture made for today. That could only have been made for today. "Kill me or take me as I am, for I shall not change." — de Sade

Osborne Scott: Man in the Middle

By Michele Ingrassia
 While much of the College is caught up in the flood of charges and counter-charges over whether or not Dr. Wilfred Cartey should have been named Chairman of the new Department of Urban and Ethnic Studies, there is one man who must keep his head above water during the controversy. Osborne Scott is the man in question, and, at the moment, he is concerning himself with his chores as teacher and chairman of the Department. Professor Scott explained that the Department, as it now stands, is "only the beginning." He said it must "reflect a concern for people and the needs of the community," and that "we must relate the best of our educational system to meeting these needs. We must have a real study of what the needs are, and a curriculum must arise that speaks to these needs. No subjects chosen can be a flash in the pan; we must have a solid curriculum. It must be respectable, enduring, and draw upon the entire resources of the College community in dealing with the issues of the community." The chairman of the Department, which came into being as a result of last term's five demands, is just as concerned with the future of the Department as he is with its present course.

to have people come here to extend their involvement." The wheels of progress are also turning to enlarge the program. Professor Scott does not believe that the $50,000 allocated to start the program will go very far. There are no definite plans as yet for next term, but he hopes to add "at least two more courses" and to enlarge the staff.

A small "task force" will be formulated, made up of "faculty members, student representatives, and outside community experts to help form the curriculum and meet the needs" of the Department, Professor Scott explained. "We have some outstanding people, and we must do some brainstorming."

The original demand of the Black and Puerto Rican Student Community (BPRSC) last term was for a degree-granting school of Black and Puerto Rican studies, and Professor Scott is hopeful that it can be established.

"Very often a strong department can lead to the formation of a separate school," he said. "I keenly feel that we must first know where we're going with the courses; we must be stable. We have to move with care, analyze the needs, and develop into the type of department which will be worthy of the effort put into creating it and which meets the needs of education and the community. If this is done well, it can contribute to the sum total of education."

Professor Scott went on to explain that "other schools can use it as a model and success will influence what is done in other schools. There must not be a mad rush to put in other courses; we will add, but courses must meet the needs. There has to be stability and excellence. We have to do a great deal to sensitize the College to make its program relevant to the needs of the day and the broad community."

At this point, Professor Scott is quite pleased with how the program is going during its first few days of life. "We are getting excellent cooperation from the other department heads," he explained. "The courses are interdisciplinary and we're looking forward to having a major. New courses are being added in other departments" which are related to the courses in the Department of Ethnic and Urban Studies.

Professor Scott has already been planning with members of the History, Romance Languages, and Speech departments, and will speak to people in other areas.

This term the new department offered two courses — one in Afro-American culture and one in Hispano-American culture — and three sections of each are being taught. Professor Scott said that the classes are made up of 75 per cent white students and 25 per cent black students, with a total of 184 students enrolled in the courses.

"Everything is going well," Professor Scott said. "The courses are designed to sensitize the students to the experiences of the Afro-American and Puerto Rican. They are 'living' courses."

When asked how the classes are being taught, he replied that "different techniques are being used: field trips, films, seminars, outside speakers — not only outstanding leaders, but also members of the community."

One plan in the works is the establishment of an Urban Center which would hopefully be set up this term in Goethals Hall. Professor Scott explained that it would be a place for meetings, exhibits, etc., and would be a project on which students would work.

Other plans include bringing in a professor of Pre-colonial African History from Uganda and a panel of experts on Africa (consisting of government officials and former government officials). Professor Scott explained that they would "discuss culture in terms of the current scene and give background on the Afro-American experience." He added that this would be "not only for the students in the courses, but also for members of the community."

The Department is also "contacting community organizations

Booters Go Over Post Only To Fall On Lions

By Fred Balin

The College's soccer team evened its won-lost record at one and one, yesterday, with a 1-0 lost to an underrated Columbia squad at the victor's field.

The only goal of the game was scored by the Lion's Jack Florentine midway through the third period. Len Renery set up Florentine with a long pass down the left sideline, and the Lion forward beat Beaver goalie, Louis Hopfer, on a low line drive.

The Beaver booters had handled the Lions easily last season and expected more of the same this year, but they found the Columbia squad vastly improved. Most of the play in the fourth period was in the Columbia half put the final outcome out of question.

The Beavers scored after just 35 seconds of play, when DiBono found Sauani Santana loose on the left side of the goal and the new addition to the Lavender squad put home the College's first goal.

Santana fed Pajak for a goal moments later, and Pajak tallied again shortly after.

In the second stanza, Hamelos scored from the middle of the field and Cirino Alvarado made it 5-0 later in the period.

Pajak put the icing on the cake midway through the fourth quarter.

The Beavers added two more in the second period and Coach Ray Kivecka had the entire second half to experiment with new players and rest his regulars.

The defense which formed a literal wall in front of goalie Luis Hopfer last season gave every indication of doing more of the same during this one. Hopfer, who led the league with six shoutouts last year had a relatively easy day in the nets, being tested only on a few occasions.

On Saturday the Beavers opened their defense of the Met Conference crown with an impressive victory over league rival C.W. Post at the loser's Hickox Field.

Tom Rath, 21

It's been almost three months since I learned that Tom Rath had been killed in a car accident. And I still can't accept it. How can it be? Only 21 years old, a few weeks after graduating college, friendly, always smiling or laughing. How can he be gone? The mind refuses to believe it.

How can you write an obituary about Tom? Bright, alive, energetic. It can all end so quickly. The list of his accomplishments at the College is considerable. Three varsity letters in swimming, captain of the team in his senior year. Three varsity letters in lacrosse top defenseman in his senior year. One of the few double lettermen here in recent years. The list of his achievements is impressive and yet it can't tell the whole story — of the person that lived beneath them. How can an ordinary obituary suffice?

I had the privilege of being his teammate for a year. The close contact, in the lockerroom and on the field, especially in a sport like lacrosse brings out the true character of a person. It all comes out. Yet I don't remember him getting angry at anyone. He was always joking, laughing, yet above all friendly. Friendly. Not a person the squad would not call him a friend. And yet a person so full of life is gone. So quickly.

Contact lenses are made of modern plastics which have entirely different characteristics than the tissues and fluids of the eye. Consequently your eye cannot handle this foreign object without help. So, in order to correct for Mother Nature's lack of foresight, you have to use lens solutions to make your contacts and your eyes compatible. There was a time when you needed two or more separate solutions to properly modify and care for your contacts, making them ready for your eyes. But now there's Lensine from the makers of Murine. Lensine, for contact comfort and convenience. Lensine is the one solution for complete contact lens care. Just a drop or two of Lensine coats and lubricates your lens. This allows the lens to float more freely in the natural fluids of your eye. Why? Because Lensine is an "isotonic" solution, very much like your own tears. Lensine is compatible with the eye. Cleaning your contacts with Lensine retards the build-up of foreign deposits on the lenses.

And soaking your contacts in Lensine between wearing periods assures you of proper lens hygiene. You get a free soaking-storage case with individual lens compartments on the bottom of every bottle of Lensine.

It has been demonstrated that improper storage between wearings permits the growth of bacteria on the lenses. This is a sure cause of eye irritation and, in some cases, can endanger your vision. Bacteria cannot grow in Lensine because it's sterile, self-sanitizing, and antiseptic.

Let caring for your contacts be as convenient as wearing them. Get some Lensine... Mother's little helper.

Mother Nature never planned on contact lenses
