Business office records

Project 250 unpaid loans in July

By Dale Brichita

Only half of an estimated $35,000 dispersed last semester in unsecured book loans is expected to be repaid by the end of the school year, the Finley Business Office revealed this week.

"I don't think our payback rate for this year is as poor as it looks," said Vice Provost Ann Rees, whose office oversees the loans. I am investigating the situation because I want to make a judgement on how much we can afford to lose. I also want to get a much clearer picture as to how much money there is.

Operating on an average loan figure of $85 per student, Rees estimates that 350 students owe outstanding loans from last semester. Although neither she nor Michael Jacobs of the Business Office would arrive at a "comeback rate [for this semester] is a lot better than for returned. Someone may have been a student who failed to repay their on-campus [for this semester] is a lot better than for returned. Someone may have been a student who failed to repay their loans would be debarred.

Formerly, students were able to get emergency "small loans" just by walking into the Vice Provost's office, filling his story, and verifying with the registrar that he was a student in good standing. "In a last analysis, I guess it's a matter of -and," said Rees, who added "I prefer to operate that way.

State officials call unreasonable Rees' delay in opening records

By Lisa Rubin

Declaring that "it does not seem reasonable," a ranking administrator for the state's Freedom of Information Act denounced Vice Provost Ann Rees for postponing public review of the Senate's current financial records until next week's Senate election.

"These books should be available for inspection at any time, as long as they are not used for accounting purposes," said Bill Cabin, director of the state's Public Interest Records Office. "The law requires reasonable procedure for access to public records and what she is doing doesn't seem to be reasonable."

Rees responded to a written statement that "we are not mandated" by Board of Higher Education regulations to open current books. "Nonetheless [these] books will be open next Monday, as I have already published," Rees continued.

Last month, Rees designed a policy allowing students to examine current records upon five days notice. Later, however, she decided to make such books available only one week a semester. For this term, Rees selected the week beginning May 2.

Meanwhile, the investigation controversy has become entangled in a knot of legislation. In a memo accompanying her original policy, Rees said that it was the "opinion" of a lawyer from the Board of Higher Education's Legal Counsel that all student government accounts "should be open to any student upon request" with due notice. But in a second memo to the Campus, Rees said that the counsel merely indicated that such a review "would be desirable."

"I'm not relying on BHE by law; I'm relying on the state Freedom of Information Act," Cabin reiterated.

Schiff audit won't itemize House's $700,000

By Lisa Rubin

Some $250,000 allotted for the troublesome Africa House project "will not" be specifically accounted for in a public document to be released, Gerald Kauvar, executive assistant to President Marshak disclosed this week.

According to Kauvar, the document would list the sums of expenditures for various projects funded by non-tax levy College accounts. "It will not" delineate the expenditures for any project. Kauvar indicated that the accounts were too numerous to list.

The money for the House was part of a $90,000 Schiff up grant to spruce up off and on-campus areas that have been utilized by students. Although the Africa House project was to have begun two years ago, a brownstone is now in a state of "disrepair."

Robert Carroll, vice president for communications and public affairs, who authorized the $90,000 payments, has said that Prof. Osborn Scott, (Byrd's) Studies was charged with supervising the project in Scott's capacity as co-chairman of the African Academy of Arts and Sciences. The Academy owns the House. So far Scott has refused to comment.

This week a spokesman for a supplies firm which is using Scott for alleged unpaid payments has charged that Scott signed vouchers for a contractor who company that Scott already knew was in the red.

Fred Pucci, of Top Print Supply Incorporated said that Scott signed checks two years ago authorizing the C.L. House Improvement Company to pick up roughly $1,000 worth of supplies. "But two months later when we were well under $250, we held back on supplying the rest of the materials," said Pucci. Allegedly, said the C.L. owes him about $1100 for work done on the Trinity Baptist Church, where Scott is a reverend. According to Pucci, Scott knew about these alleged non-payments at least one month before the Africa House project began. C.L. House Improvement Company went out of business.

Amid this controversy, administrators are debating the cause and extent of the problem. Marshak has blamed the contractors who took the Academy on a merry ride. Dan Carroll blamed Hurricane Belle for "damaging the roof" last summer while conceding however that roof was "probably not" in sound condition prior to the hurricane.

Kauvar originally said that "we don't know if we got our money's worth yet." But we are investigating." He subsequently termed the investigation a routine audit. Carroll called his comments "bald.

Although Kauvar promised that the Africa House audit would be released "as soon as we get it from the Business Office" he later said "that was the President's decision" to release the audit as part of an overall audit. When other non-tax levy audits are completed.

Marshak explained that he would not release a "report" after "two outside auditors" reviewed the accounts because "there are still some questions as to whether those are the final figures."

Kauvar promised that the overall audit would be released "in a few weeks." Last week the accounts were released because "there are still some questions as to whether those are the final figures."

Kauvar promised that the overall audit would be released "in a few weeks." Last week the accounts were released because "there are still some questions as to whether those are the final figures."

Kauvar promised that the overall audit would be released "in a few weeks." Last week the accounts were released because "there are still some questions as to whether those are the final figures."

Kauvar promised that the overall audit would be released "in a few weeks." Last week the accounts were released because "there are still some questions as to whether those are the final figures."

Kauvar promised that the overall audit would be released "in a few weeks." Last week the accounts were released because "there are still some questions as to whether those are the final figures."
Speak freely and vote

With Student Senate elections coming upon us next week, it is important for students to take a close inspection of the candidates and their platforms.

Educational Restoration is headed by a current senator and has as its basis, several politically motivated individuals. We may infer that they have some experience in dealing with bureaucratic systems. Yet their deep commitment to the problems of inadequate day care, "marriage" of the State and the community, and the overall improvement of higher education can hardly be considered a forceful enough campaign to arise from the single student senate, no matter how broadbased. They do, however, support a free student press, as vital to every college community.

Eric's idea for a community-wide voting block is also commendable, but again, we question the practicality of channeling efforts into these small enterprises. We would prefer to see something a little more attainable, brought a little closer home.

As for the incumbent United Peoples Party, they have the majority of the expressed discontent in the College's particular bureaucracy. They know the people-in-the-know, and as they have shown more than once, they know how to get their way.

However, their way is not always in the best interests of the student body. Take the Campus suspension last fall, for example. Although the Senate dragged this newspaper through months of trials, re-scheduled trials and more re-scheduled trials, not one solitary ruling, for or against the paper's operation, was ever given.

Presidential candidate Raymond Jackson was a member of the CCO Committee on Publications and several running mates were also senators. Not one of them has come to terms with the implications of fundamental freedom and Amendment rights. Nor have they in any way demonstrated a sincere interest in the problems of paramount importance to the student body.

They are also responsible for stalling the student services corporation, the forseeable-minded Campus episode and were the recipients, by and large, of a questionable $2300 Schiff Fund Grant to retreat to Onning for a week-end of work away from home. Couldn't we all use such a week-end?

For the Socialist candidate, let's just say that if they stuck to campus issues it would at least be time prudently spent. Reforming the apartment government of South Africa, however admirable as a life-time job, better done with their time and more money. This leaves us with the Free Speech Party. We recognize immediate problems in that they only have enough candidates to fill the executive positions.

But they impressed us with their sincere pragmatism. They have no grandiose plans, no far-fetched ideas, just a honest desire to implement several crucial changes for students at this College. Expediently.

Take the calendar changes. No other slate has offered a solution to this problem, and yet the Free Speech Party is the only slate with an executive position to change the calendar.

Barring an unforeseen switch, whichever slate gets elected will be expected to contend with a new calendar and the student's demands on time and energy.

We hope all students will exercise their option to vote, and will choose those who represent the majority of the student body.

We feel Free Speech is that party.

Letters to the editor: Vote no on NYPiRG

To the Editor:

During next week's day students of The City College, will be asked to attend and increase the student activities fee from $23.00 to $25.00. This increase will direct a portion of the fee income to the New York Public art, Research Group (NYPiRG).

For several reasons, The Office of The Student Support Services Office is unable to support this referendum.

Firstly, student members of the research groups and environmental preservation. While the potential for types of research and recommendations made by NYPiRG have not been adequately communicated to the City College student body.

For these reasons, this office can not endorse this referendum. However, it has attempted to raise questions for you to think about before cast your vote in this matter. All students must take the time to review the simple majority of those voting, passes the referendum. This will ultimately mean an increase in the student activities fee from $23.00 to $25.00. The above question is, do you want this increase for this purpose?

Thorne Brown
Student Underbansk

NYPiRG, the student's lobby

To the Editor:

More money for education, the renovation of the campus, and the development of the beauty of the campus so delights us that our attention is diverted briefly from the student activities conditions on campus.

It is apparent here in the damage done to the flowering cherry trees, and others have been broken off, trunks split, and limbs have been cut off by those greedy for the beautiful Limbs. I am not trying to improve the look of the place. There are some students and staff that is important to the time and money, including the College, the College of Industrial Arts in the School of Education, the College of Environmental Science.

The College has too little money for maintenance and beautification. If we want physical condition to improve, we will have to pick up after ourselves, and convince those who desire to improve the campus that their behavior is socially unacceptable.

Robin Vass

Pundit

Vote United Beavers and buck the system

The unfair小吃 meals with election speeches from the boxspring of Student Senate candidates. "Vote" they quote.

Yet voters should observe caution before casting their ballots. How often have you sat in a listless gym page among the campus? How often have their election meant their departure from every promise and commitment made. How often has a no meaningful issue issued from their candidates?

But before too eagerly criticizing these elected, voters should consider: How much power do in politics actually have to improve the quality of education and life and work? How often can students accomplish anything in office without the help of all the students? It is time to work in office! We of the United Beaver Party will concern ourselves with what is important to students. If the UBP slate is elected:

- No one will be closed out of courses at registration.
- Every student will be served immediately in the Financial Aid Office.
- Refunds will be adequate and receive checks promptly.
- Professors will be forced to take their vacations.
- Professors will grade students objectively.
- Professors will not deduct credit for late papers.
- Professors will not give students a grade, a run-around or red tape, such as have filled it out a form that will permit them to fill out a form. Their favorite instructor will not be unrestricted.
- Students will be able to get high in the School--easier--cheaper, and not for a change.
- All experiment performed in a lab will work.
- Every book you look for in the library will work.
- Professor Madalene Coleman (author of "Fabulous Feats") will become head of Finance Snick Bar.
- Every music student will have a practice room.
- The cleaning staff will not tear down signage announcing club meetings as fast as the clubs post the signs.
- The Student Senate will allot funds to school clubs and activities instead of at the end, and they will allot a lot.
- Every stay cat and dog on the campus will be placed in a good home.
- Professors and other on-campus construction sites will be turned into beautiful areas.
- Improvements will be made in courses and the campus so that students can use their time and energy.
- The campus will be clean and safe. No more money for political campaign promises.

Look for the UBP ticket on Election Day. If you can't find us, maybe it's because we exist only in your dreams.
Biannual bulletin will alter course of things

By Albert Depay

Q. What makes next year's College bulletins different from all other years' bulletins?

A. You'd better hold on to them for two years. They will not be published annually. There will be no more School of General Studies bulletin and if you lose it, it will be prepared to ship out fifty cents Director of Public Relations, Israel Levine, editor of the bulletin, said that students will no longer pick up the bulletins at the Busans's office upon registering. Instead students will be mailed vouchers enclosed with their transcripts. The vouchers can then be exchanged for bulletins. And if you lose the book, be ready to fork over a half a buck for a new one.

SGS Lost Bulletin

According to Levine, students in the professional schools will be entitled to a College of Liberal Arts and Science bulletin as well as the bulletin for their particular school. "And since the School of General Studies bulletin has nearly been a reproduction of all the other bulletins, it will not be republished" but incorporated into the revised editions.

The revamped two-year bulletins will save approximately $10,000 in printing costs alone.

Committee asks to scrap Saga

By Dalia Gomez

Citing widespread student dissatisfaction, the Food Services Committee recommended Wednesday replacing Saga's Dining Halls, the College's food contractor, this fall. It was unclear whether the College would follow the recommendation, but one administrator said last week it was too late in the year to find a replacement for Saga's long

A survey conducted this week showed that "student complaints continue to grow," according to Student Senate Treasurer Hugh Lawrence. "The majority of students always say that the prices are too high and the food quality is poor."

"People are literally walking out of the delis across the street because it [the food] is bad," said Lawrence. "You can go inside these delis and ask how is business, and you'll tell you business is booming."

However, Yvonne Jones, an evening student and a College employee said that the North Cafeteria now has more ice, the Webb has a greater variety of food. "The employees and the faculty said from the evening students I spoke to, quite a few don't like Saga," she said.

Elaine Boyer, a student senator on the committee, said that many students said North Campus food had received negative student input that North Campus food was good but my friends and students say it's not."

Dean Edmond Safary, the College's Director of Public Relations, according to Levine, the last bulletin, which were published in 1975, cost in excess of $55,000.

Freshmen Supplement

"Because of budgetary problems, there was no bulletin this year, although entering freshmen were given a specially prepared supplement so they wouldn't go running around during registration in a mad council an annual report.

The total price just was becoming exorbitant," explained Levine. "In view of all the budgetary problems here, something had to be done so this case—not done."

Levine added that the high edition in costs printing and typesetting, such a decision would have to be made in the future.

As this will be the first bulletin published since the imposition of tuition, the new issue will contain an enlarged financial aid section, according to Levine.

No respite in sight for Open Admissions discussions

By Dale Brichta

Taking its name from the College slogan, "Advising, Prospecting, and Recruitment," the combined forces of the program for Open Legal Studies and the newly formed Center for Academic Skills held a Symposium, "Open Admissions: Retrospective and Prospective" yesterday. The Symposium was poorly attended, perhaps due to hard many students complained that they might have to attend two committee meetings or more and that the College was not interested in the topic. Prof. Louis Kriegel (English), and Prof. Leonard Lowen (Classical Languages) and Gerard Lowen (Engineering), Kriegel chided the Open Admissions program as "something to make students feel comfortable, give them identities."

Our function is not to make students comfortable," he said. "It measure success by how uncomfortable I make them."

Departmental panel election set for May

By Jerald Saltzman

Student elections for departmental executive committees have been scheduled for May, but today is the deadline for nominations. Territorial committees are responsible for hiring, granting tenure and determining departmental curriculum.

Ann Rees, vice provost for student affairs, said that for the first time there will be two elections held. Last year the now defunct Department of Student Affairs conducted a single election but Rees said that her office just could not handle it at once.

Departments operating under plan A, which allows for two students with voting power on the committee, will have ballots cast next month. However, the committee following plan B, which provides for a five student advisory panel, will conduct elections next fall.

Student representation on executive committees was first allowed in 1973 and, many departments have since been plagued with little student interest. Rees recently placed advertisements in College newspapers informing students of the vacancies. "We've gotten some replies," she said, adding that "participating was low, the newly formed the departmental committe as having a "positive" on elections.

Supe ors will be distributed in class this year rather than mailed to majors in the department as done in the past. Tallying of votes will also be conducted by the vice provost's office.

List of Bylaws

Rees also said that she will hire a person to compile a list of bylaws and governance for student reference.

"Not only will the handbook contain College policy," said Rees, "it will also have a chapter of grants, courses and standing in the like," Rees explained. "There is a need for the open many sources," and it would be beneficial to everyone to have it all together.

The "dictionary" would be available in selected places around campus.

Rees stressed that the handbook, which should appear by September, "would not be a primary source." In one of the...
Workshop bags leather

By Roger Jacobs

The old world lives at the College in the form of a leather workshop. Handmade works, assembled with blood, sweat, and tears are the product of the labors of student participants.

Sponsored by the Finley Program Agency, the workshop is instructed by Chris Schreiber (a professional leathermith). He stresses that "students work at their own speed" and pick the projects on which they are going to work.

"I like to have people to their own devices" says Schreiber. He does help when help is needed, or asked, but does not try to impose himself on the group. "One woman came in out of the blue and said that she needed a wallet. It was finished in less than an hour. But there are those who need help every time," he says.

Effort and care are the major qualities needed. "The most difficult part is to be careful and precise" says Schreiber as he helped one student stitch up a piece of leather to demonstrate. Participants must buy their own leather, but the cost is free. Tools are provided by Schreiber and some students even buy their own for use at home.

William Gowrie, an electrical engineering major, is in the process of finishing a beautiful pair of saddle bags which he says he is going to use on his motorcycle. Finished projects are also in evidence. An brie case made by senior Adi Ashkar rivalled anything to be found in Bloesem's.

Incorporating both leather and denim, dance major David Phillips sports a bag with leather sides and denim pockets which he completed some time ago.

Schreiber says that the bag needs some reinforcement on the strap.

"This semester's turn out is only twenty people and last year we had about fifty," said Schreiber disappointingly. The workshop meets every Tuesday from 11 am to 4 pm in Finley 305.

An epic fantasy of peace and magic.

An RALPH BAKSHI FILM

WIZARDS

NOW AT THEATRE NEAR YOU

It's not too late to order your Class Ring.

Class 77-78
Day Wed., Thurs. May 4-5
Time —
Place Beavue Student Shop

Please bring advance deposit of $20.00
Full Name Engraved + Choice of White Gold, Fireburst Stone, Encrusting

Apollon Top Free
Mural, mural on the wall

The painted face of a bygone era will be replaced by a colorful, upbeat sign of the times. The new mural is Antonio LaGreca's winning entry in a competition to replace the "Peace Mural" of Finley Student Center.

LaGreca, a sculpting major, was surprised to win the first place prize of $50. "I've never won anything before except a prize in the fifth grade for composition. I was unhappy with it," he said of his winning entry. After I handed it in I wished I could have done it over." This mural is a colorful stylistic representation of trees, a blue sky and waterfall.

The Finley Program Agency sponsored the run for the roses to give Finley Student Center a new look. Though some students judged the present mural for its symbolic significance to the turbulent sixties, the disrepair was reason enough for the facelift.

The first response to the contest was less than overwhelming, so the deadline was moved up two weeks. About twenty entries were finally received. They were judged by a panel of Finley administration and a member of the art faculty.

Roger Chan, one of the originators of the contest said, "Some of the entries we received involved too much money and manpower. We had to keep within a budget of about three hundred dollars." According to Chan, LaGreca's entry "really stood out."

Cash prizes were also awarded to a second and third entry, received from Kenneth Stepan and George Osorio and Rodrigo Martinez.

Incorporating trees, a waterfall and the sun, LaGreca sought to avoid what he termed "depressing subjects." The existing mural was muted, somber colors and was missing one panel of lettering. "I couldn't think of a theme that had to do with the school," said LaGreca as he commented on FPA's original suggestion of College related material "so I just did this."

The final product may not be as bright as the original design due to paint restrictions. Chan says that he intends to make the sky a lighter shade of blue. As few changes as possible in LaGreca's plan will be made. Construction of the mural is slated to begin this summer.

'Car' crashes, comedy clunks

The first part of the movie's name practically sums it all up: Jabber. That is all that goes on throughout the latest Monty Python film, incessant jabbering.

"Jabberwocky" is supposedly a comedy in the vein of "Monty Python and the Holy Grail" saying that is the last part of the movie, because "Pytho" was screamedly funny; this film isn't. "Pytho" was beautifully done, this film isn't. Python was exciting; this film isn't. Python was bloody, this film is but not the worst pieces of refuse ever foisted off on an unsuspecting audience.

The story concerns a young man from a small town making his way in a large city and if that isn't a cliché nothing is. In fact the whole film is a cliché from one end to the other. If this is a take off on a fairy tale it wouldn't be so bad, but as L-r-blotch!

The Jabberwocky, a horrible monster, eats townspeople, destroys towns and makes a general mess of things. The King then organizes a joust to get a champion to fight the monster. And well...

We enter along watching all the bad jokes, decrepit scenes and dull dialogue, hoping things will take a turn for the better. But they don't and the result is awful. This film is sorely lacking of a holy hand-grenade, a Knight who says "oil," or any of the characters from "Holy Grail." It is dull, boring, shallow and sort-of-all unfunny.

If "Jabberwocky" was as disappointing than "Car" is Pit City. This is without a doubt, one of the ugliest films ever made.

"Car" crashes, comedy clunks

If all goes as planned this is how the Finley mural will look after this summer. Antonio LaGreca's design was chosen from a group of twenty entries to replace the dilapidated "Peace" mural.

LEARN OR IMPROVE
MEDIEVAL LATIN
at our fifth summer ulpan!

Spend five weeks at a beautiful country campus in Riverdale (May 27-June 30)

Two Classes: beginners and advanced, and individual projects.

Cost: Room and board $390.

Can be taken for 1 to 8 credits or for no credit

You are welcome to come to the Institute for Medieval and Renaissance Studies in Shepard 222, Or call 283-7688, 690-8167, and ask for Daniel Furman.

Inquire Now!
Today, Spring of 1977, we still stand with our backs against the wall. Our position has not improved, it has deteriorated. The student body of City College find themselves in a pressured and precarious position in and outside of the confines of the university. This text is to estimate 10% of the student body to be black, Latin and Asian as well as working students and prevent us from getting a complete higher education. This text is a part of the effort to turn CIUW into an elite and racist Institution.

OPPOSITION TO WESSELL COMMISSION

The Wessell Commission found that the state school system was not being run efficiently and that the burden of City College would be shifted to the state. So even though it claims to be in favor of academic excellence and, in reality, it is a vicious way of increasing the education of the poor.

STUDENT SERVICES

We hope to maintain the programs that have been successful this year and create innovative programs that will help and benefit the student body. For example: Book Grants, Book exchange, Forums of a Text Book Library, Peer Tutoring Program, a Day Care, Cultural and Academic Programs and Information Service. SEEK restoration and maintenance of the SEEK program is to ensure a higher education to minority and working class students.

Rudder's advice

'It takes a serious commitment'

Her tenure at the helm of the Student Senate almost up, Cheryl Rudder offered her successors this advice.

"You decide your priorities and you must have them. Many other factors can interfere with your initial priority, but you must maintain it."

"The only thing that has helped me get through my term is the fact that I'm still alive," she continued. "When you go on Convent Avenue and tell all those people what you want to do, that is a commitment and will give you the strength to surmount all the battles the Senate can bring."

Rudder agreed that her Senate programs were basically towards Third World students. "Let me just say this: Third World people, not only on this campus but in America are on the bottom of the ladder. When services, programs and whatever area, helps Third World people, the people who are one or several steps above them improve."

Surveys show Free Speech Party has edged ahead of United Peoples and Educational Restoration in the race for the Student Senate, a survey compiled by The Campus this week has shown.

Of 70 students polled on North and South Campus, 12 favored Free Speech, ten opted to re-elect United Peoples, seven chose Educational Restoration, four picked one or another group, and four were undecided.

For the campaign, those opting not to vote outweighed all others, comprising of a whopping 30 per cent. At least one fourth of the undecided indicated they would not vote for the incumbent United Peoples Party.

The referendum to raise the student activity fee by $2.00 for a College chapter of the New York Public Interest Research Group, did not fare well in the survey.

"I wasn't even aware there would be elections next year," was a recurring response. One student believed he couldn't vote since he was not a United States citizen.

Another common answer echoed was that of 21-year-old Biology major Kevin Costrell who said, "I do plan to vote but I'll have to check the particular party." When it came to positions advocated by the different slates, students were, for the most part, unaware. "The Educational Restoration slate favours stopping the decline caused by Open Admissions," History major Guy Sands remarked. This apparently contradicted the slate's objective to "reduce" that policy, according to treasurer candidate Bill Srbova.

Engineers Steer Heading Win

The Free Speech Party, packed with engineering students, received its greatest impetus from engineering and architecture students, as well as computer science majors. The purpose of the slate, according to treasurer candidate John Arenas, is to "promote engineering students and benefit the student body. For example: Book Grants, Book processing and benefit the student body. For voice our interests, in reality, it is a vicious way of increasing the education of the poor.

FINANCIAL AID: We will propose the following student policies:

1. A Campus Survey: A survey will be conducted quarterly during the school year 1977-78. The purpose for such a survey will be to obtain student grievances and student desires for campus life and activity.

2. A Bulletin: A bulletin will be initiated by listing events on Student Senate activities, as well as the comments and ideas from students and professors on the restoration of our educational system.

3. A New Legislative Process: Its purpose is to protect and improve our educational system. It will be used by the Student Senate to deal with the city and state administrations. The method is as follows:

a. Drawing up correspondence in our plan designed to lower the quality of our education by state and city governments;

b. Getting the CASU-wide and for the voting power needed to elect officials who are in support of restoring a stable educational system.

c. Having three elected officials voice our proposals in the legislative process.

4. Financial Aid: Educational Restoration will work towards the immediate elimination of the financial aid facilities. The adoption of more efficient processing of applications, and the hiring of students for pre-screening of applications.

5. RECREATION FACILITIES: We will propose the recreation of recreation facilities in order to establish appropriate services which are easily accessible to all students.

6. SCHOLARSHIPS: We propose the creation of tuition waivers for outstanding scholarship.
free Speech leads the pack

Gary Stone
YOUNG SOCIALIST ALLIANCE

The Young Socialist Alliance is 100% opposed to any cutbacks in education. We say that no departments should be axed and that no programs should be ended. All students, both in the senior and community colleges, in SUNY and in CUNY must unite with all other victims of the cuts: faculty, staff, hospital workers, day care workers and other city employees to demand no cutbacks in Social Services.

Another effect of the economic crisis has been increased attacks against women's right. These attacks including the proposed Hyde Amendment which will cut off Medicaid payments for abortion, the closing down of day care centers, and the weakening of affirmative action hardest at black and Latin women.

There are 350 US corporations with $1.6 billion directly invested in the South African economy. These corporations pay their Black workers less than half the wages earned by their white counterparts. The US government supports apartheid. Students must unite with the Blacks' community and other working people to demand: US out of Africa! Black Majority rule now!

Maxine Horne
OMBUDSPERSON

The Students Ombudsperson is the Spock in the Star Trek. The ombudsperson, the arbiter, the objector who makes history into the body of City College. She is an assembler of diverse fragments. Her purpose is to logically mediate between the representatives, President Mandlak (the captain) the Administrators (doctor McCoy) Maxine Home Student Ombudsperson (Mr. Spock) and the Faculty and Student Body at large (the crew).

I desire to help the world of City College.

I am secretary to the Day Student Senate under our current president Sonia Cheryl Rudder of United People and John Arena who is Vice-President to Cheryl but presently running for President under the slate Educational Restoration. My duties and responsibilities were to attend administrative and organizational meetings taking minutes of procedures, policies, BHE, OK, how can we clear the incoherence in the communication between us and our institutions? Get down to business! We want a positive, direct, OK, that's why I said, "I Can Do It!"

77-78 candidates for Student Senate

ENT SENATE

ELECTIONS

AY 2 - 6

Weinley Student Center
Craper Hall
Hunter Hall
TeenHall
science Building
Goethals Hall

Vote

Vote

Vote

Vote

Vote

Vote

Vote

Vote

 Vote

Wed. - Thurs. 10am - 4pm • Fri. 10am - 2pm

EXECUTIVE POSITIONS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Position</th>
<th>United People</th>
<th>Educational Restoration</th>
<th>Free Speech</th>
<th>Independent</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Prs.</td>
<td>R. Eaton</td>
<td>J. Raymond</td>
<td>B. Heck</td>
<td>G. Stone Ys.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Execs. Ys.</td>
<td>T. Callow</td>
<td>J. Avera</td>
<td>G. Schelma</td>
<td>N. DeBord</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Univ. VP.</td>
<td>E. Bryant</td>
<td>D. Bruffe</td>
<td>A. Gray</td>
<td>F. Porpet</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Exec. VP.</td>
<td>G. Williams</td>
<td>B. Brecher</td>
<td>R. Lomax</td>
<td>X. X. X.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Comm. VP.</td>
<td>L. Norton</td>
<td>J. Schmidt</td>
<td>B. Bossman</td>
<td>X. X. X.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Camp. VP.</td>
<td>C. Wiener</td>
<td>J. Smith</td>
<td>B. Bossman</td>
<td>X. X. X.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Edtv. VP.</td>
<td>S. Schleifer</td>
<td>E. Weinberg</td>
<td>B. Bossman</td>
<td>X. X. X.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Treasurer</td>
<td>M. Lawrence</td>
<td>T. Snyder</td>
<td>B. Bossman</td>
<td>X. X. X.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| SEnatorial POSITIONS
| Architecture      | D. Murisvich     | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Art            | C. Berge         | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Engineering       | N. Smith         | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Business         | B. Andrews       | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Facilities        | H. Holder        | A. Petronius            | X. X. X.    |
| Administration    | W. Howard        | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Humanities        | H. Foster        | F. Garcia               | X. X. X.    |
| History          | F. Velardez      | M. Charles              | X. X. X.    |
| English          | P. Roberts       | P. Moore                | X. X. X.    |
| Science          | R. Salazar       | J. Perry                | X. X. X.    |
| Math              | C. Menozzo       | E. Massa                | X. X. X.    |
| Political Science| G. Filo Anita    | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Social Science    | P. Fatt         | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Philosophy       | K. Phillips      | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Nursing           | V. Caffeti       | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Science          | S. C. Rudder     | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Science          | W. Valentine     | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Biology          | R. Schell         | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Chemistry        | C. Menozzo       | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Physics          | G. Filo Anita    | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Math              | P. Fatt          | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Social Science    | S. Pater         | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Business         | N. Curves        | L. Sanchez              | X. X. X.    |
| Executive         | M. Dinsev        | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |
| Ombudsperson      | M. Dinsev        | X. X. X.                | X. X. X.    |

OTHER POSITIONS

Finley Bld.
Of Admissions
Discipline
Committee
Onboards
Person

N. Thomas X
M.feston Thomas X
A. McGielland X
H. Lawrence X
M. Horne

(Continued on Page 8)
Free Speech Party leads field

(Continued from Page 7) of a people’s “watchdog” on the data and national level.

On the NYPIRG issue, 14
students were undecided, 12 opposed and two favored. Four students did not wish to vote on the issue. Most of these students were completely unfamiliar with the organization.

Senator Philip O’Connor
said he would vote for NYPIRG because they are a Nader type consumer organization.

NYPIRG proposals include:
fighting redlining and reforming the marijuana laws. “They’re typical of actions made by college students assistants,” O’Connor said.

Perhaps as a result of this year’s imposition of tuition, many students voice the attitude, “If only two dollars, why not?” The last item to come up for referendum was the Senate’s Concert Committee in 1972. At that time, a one-dollar increase was asked to the Senate could present large “Woodstock-like”
Concerts. The referendum passed.

There was no correlation between choices of states and campaigns on NYPIRG, although IR is the only state endorsing the group’s for a charter here.

Material for this story was provided by Vivian Bissman,
Laura Collins, Helen Simpson,
Kenneth Storey and Emily Wolf.

CACTIONS Editor—Dan Briska with Lisa Mallon and Janet Smailoff.
Mouskouri sings five encores

By Stella Syringa

The quality that separates the vocal artist from the singer is the ability of the former to wrap poetry into music. Nana Mouskouri, a native of Greece, is demonstrating that quality in abundance on her current tour.

During the past week, this international virtuoso so captivated her New York audiences that they refused to relinquish her. After Wednesday's performance the applause did not diminish until Mouskouri had given five encores.

A quintet of musicians accompanied her, but one comes away convinced that she needs no instrumental help. Indeed this was amply demonstrated by her opening piece, a Greek ballad called "Ilarion To Sangarika" (The Paper Moon), which is sung a capella. Her voice is in her hands; she uses that voice to take a song beyond the mere singing of words and into the realms of melody. She also incorporates an extraordinary degree of intensity and couples that with a range of an operatic soprano.

While some of the audience was familiar with Greek music, never追逐 tho central

The quality that separates the vocal artist from the singer is the ability of the former to wrap poetry into music. Nana Mouskouri, a native of Greece, is demonstrating that quality in abundance on her current tour.

During the past week, this international virtuoso so captivated her New York audiences that they refused to relinquish her. After Wednesday's performance the applause did not diminish until Mouskouri had given five encores.

A quintet of musicians accompanied her, but one comes away convinced that she needs no instrumental help. Indeed this was amply demonstrated by her opening piece, a Greek ballad called "Ilarion To Sangarika" (The Paper Moon), which is sung a capella. Her voice is in her hands; she uses that voice to take a song beyond the mere singing of words and into the realms of melody. She also incorporates an extraordinary degree of intensity and couples that with a range of an operatic soprano.

While some of the audience was familiar with Greek music, never pursued oh the central

The quality that separates the vocal artist from the singer is the ability of the former to wrap poetry into music. Nana Mouskouri, a native of Greece, is demonstrating that quality in abundance on her current tour.

During the past week, this international virtuoso so captivated her New York audiences that they refused to relinquish her. After Wednesday's performance the applause did not diminish until Mouskouri had given five encores.

A quintet of musicians accompanied her, but one comes away convinced that she needs no instrumental help. Indeed this was amply demonstrated by her opening piece, a Greek ballad called "Ilarion To Sangarika" (The Paper Moon), which is sung a capella. Her voice is in her hands; she uses that voice to take a song beyond the mere singing of words and into the realms of melody. She also incorporates an extraordinary degree of intensity and couples that with a range of an operatic soprano.

While some of the audience was familiar with Greek music, never pursued oh the central

The quality that separates the vocal artist from the singer is the ability of the former to wrap poetry into music. Nana Mouskouri, a native of Greece, is demonstrating that quality in abundance on her current tour.

During the past week, this international virtuoso so captivated her New York audiences that they refused to relinquish her. After Wednesday's performance the applause did not diminish until Mouskouri had given five encores.

A quintet of musicians accompanied her, but one comes away convinced that she needs no instrumental help. Indeed this was amply demonstrated by her opening piece, a Greek ballad called "Ilarion To Sangarika" (The Paper Moon), which is sung a capella. Her voice is in her hands; she uses that voice to take a song beyond the mere singing of words and into the realms of melody. She also incorporates an extraordinary degree of intensity and couples that with a range of an operatic soprano.

While some of the audience was familiar with Greek music, never pursued oh the central

The quality that separates the vocal artist from the singer is the ability of the former to wrap poetry into music. Nana Mouskouri, a native of Greece, is demonstrating that quality in abundance on her current tour.

During the past week, this international virtuoso so captivated her New York audiences that they refused to relinquish her. After Wednesday's performance the applause did not diminish until Mouskouri had given five encores.

A quintet of musicians accompanied her, but one comes away convinced that she needs no instrumental help. Indeed this was amply demonstrated by her opening piece, a Greek ballad called "Ilarion To Sangarika" (The Paper Moon), which is sung a capella. Her voice is in her hands; she uses that voice to take a song beyond the mere singing of words and into the realms of melody. She also incorporates an extraordinary degree of intensity and couples that with a range of an operatic soprano.

While some of the audience was familiar with Greek music, never pursued oh the central

The quality that separates the vocal artist from the singer is the ability of the former to wrap poetry into music. Nana Mouskouri, a native of Greece, is demonstrating that quality in abundance on her current tour.

During the past week, this international virtuoso so captivated her New York audiences that they refused to relinquish her. After Wednesday's performance the applause did not diminish until Mouskouri had given five encores.

A quintet of musicians accompanied her, but one comes away convinced that she needs no instrumental help. Indeed this was amply demonstrated by her opening piece, a Greek ballad called "Ilarion To Sangarika" (The Paper Moon), which is sung a capella. Her voice is in her hands; she uses that voice to take a song beyond the mere singing of words and into the realms of melody. She also incorporates an extraordinary degree of intensity and couples that with a range of an operatic soprano.

While some of the audience was familiar with Greek music, never pursued oh the central

The quality that separates the vocal artist from the singer is the ability of the former to wrap poetry into music. Nana Mouskouri, a native of Greece, is demonstrating that quality in abundance on her current tour.

During the past week, this international virtuoso so captivated her New York audiences that they refused to relinquish her. After Wednesday's performance the applause did not diminish until Mouskouri had given five encores.

A quintet of musicians accompanied her, but one comes away convinced that she needs no instrumental help. Indeed this was amply demonstrated by her opening piece, a Greek ballad called "Ilarion To Sangarika" (The Paper Moon), which is sung a capella. Her voice is in her hands; she uses that voice to take a song beyond the mere singing of words and into the realms of melody. She also incorporates an extraordinary degree of intensity and couples that with a range of an operatic soprano.

While some of the audience was familiar with Greek music, never pursued oh the central

The quality that separates the vocal artist from the singer is the ability of the former to wrap poetry into music. Nana Mouskouri, a native of Greece, is demonstrating that quality in abundance on her current tour.

During the past week, this international virtuoso so captivated her New York audiences that they refused to relinquish her. After Wednesday's performance the applause did not diminish until Mouskouri had given five encores.

A quintet of musicians accompanied her, but one comes away convinced that she needs no instrumental help. Indeed this was amply demonstrated by her opening piece, a Greek ballad called "Ilarion To Sangarika" (The Paper Moon), which is sung a capella. Her voice is in her hands; she uses that voice to take a song beyond the mere singing of words and into the realms of melody. She also incorporates an extraordinary degree of intensity and couples that with a range of an operatic soprano.

While some of the audience was familiar with Greek music, never pursued oh the central

The quality that separates the vocal artist from the singer is the ability of the former to wrap poetry into music. Nana Mouskouri, a native of Greece, is demonstrating that quality in abundance on her current tour.

During the past week, this international virtuoso so captivated her New York audiences that they refused to relinquish her. After Wednesday's performance the applause did not diminish until Mouskouri had given five encores.

A quintet of musicians accompanied her, but one comes away convinced that she needs no instrumental help. Indeed this was amply demonstrated by her opening piece, a Greek ballad called "Ilarion To Sangarika" (The Paper Moon), which is sung a capella. Her voice is in her hands; she uses that voice to take a song beyond the mere singing of words and into the realms of melody. She also incorporates an extraordinary degree of intensity and couples that with a range of an operatic soprano.

While some of the audience was familiar with Greek music, never pursued oh the central

The quality that separates the vocal artist from the singer is the ability of the former to wrap poetry into music. Nana Mouskouri, a native of Greece, is demonstrating that quality in abundance on her current tour.

During the past week, this international virtuoso so captivated her New York audiences that they refused to relinquish her. After Wednesday's performance the applause did not diminish until Mouskouri had given five encores.

A quintet of musicians accompanied her, but one comes away convinced that she needs no instrumental help. Indeed this was amply demonstrated by her opening piece, a Greek ballad called "Ilarion To Sangarika" (The Paper Moon), which is sung a capella. Her voice is in her hands; she uses that voice to take a song beyond the mere singing of words and into the realms of melody. She also incorporates an extraordinary degree of intensity and couples that with a range of an operatic soprano.

While some of the audience was familiar with Greek music, never pursued oh the central

The quality that separates the vocal artist from the singer is the ability of the former to wrap poetry into music. Nana Mouskouri, a native of Greece, is demonstrating that quality in abundance on her current tour.

During the past week, this international virtuoso so captivated her New York audiences that they refused to relinquish her. After Wednesday's performance the applause did not diminish until Mouskouri had given five encores.

A quintet of musicians accompanied her, but one comes away convinced that she needs no instrumental help. Indeed this was amply demonstrated by her opening piece, a Greek ballad called "Ilarion To Sangarika" (The Paper Moon), which is sung a capella. Her voice is in her hands; she uses that voice to take a song beyond the mere singing of words and into the realms of melody. She also incorporates an extraordinary degree of intensity and couples that with a range of an operatic soprano.

While some of the audience was familiar with Greek music, never pursued oh the central

The quality that separates the vocal artist from the singer is the ability of the former to wrap poetry into music. Nana Mouskouri, a native of Greece, is demonstrating that quality in abundance on her current tour.

During the past week, this international virtuoso so captivated her New York audiences that they refused to relinquish her. After Wednesday's performance the applause did not diminish until Mouskouri had given five encores.

A quintet of musicians accompanied her, but one comes away convinced that she needs no instrumental help. Indeed this was amply demonstrated by her opening piece, a Greek ballad called "Ilarion To Sangarika" (The Paper Moon), which is sung a capella. Her voice is in her hands; she uses that voice to take a song beyond the mere singing of words and into the realms of melody. She also incorporates an extraordinary degree of intensity and couples that with a range of an operatic soprano.

While some of the audience was familiar with Greek music, never pursued oh the central

The quality that separates the vocal artist from the singer is the ability of the former to wrap poetry into music. Nana Mouskouri, a native of Greece, is demonstrating that quality in abundance on her current tour.

During the past week, this international virtuoso so captivated her New York audiences that they refused to relinquish her. After Wednesday's performance the applause did not diminish until Mouskouri had given five encores.

A quintet of musicians accompanied her, but one comes away convinced that she needs no instrumental help. Indeed this was amply demonstrated by her opening piece, a Greek ballad called "Ilarion To Sangarika" (The Paper Moon), which is sung a capella. Her voice is in her hands; she uses that voice to take a song beyond the mere singing of words and into the realms of melody. She also incorporates an extraordinary degree of intensity and couples that with a range of an operatic soprano.
You're looking at a wall containing over 10,000 record albums. It's the main source of music for the personalities who choose the daily sounds of WNEW-FM.

But it's not the only source. We present live concerts, too. From places like The Bottom Line and Central Park. Or from Los Angeles via satellite.

Sometimes our personalities bring in singles, albums or tapes from their own collections. And they're always getting the first advance releases of the most important new rock and roll albums.

They play hits, too. But only when they want to.

You see that's the important thing about the WNEW-FM play list. There is no play list. The only thing that dictates what our personalities play is their unique sense of the energy, diversity and excitement of the music of our times. And a special sense of knowing just what you want to hear.

That goes for Dave Herman in the morning and Pete Fornatale at midday. For Scott Muni in the afternoon, Dennis Elsas in the early evening and Alison Steele from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. And it goes for Vin Scelsa and Richard Neer in the wee small hours and Pat Dawson, Al Berstein and Tom Morrera on weekends.

They're what makes WNEW-FM different. And why our listeners hear more new music, more old music, more of all kinds of music than the listeners of any other station in New York.

Most other stations that play rock and roll limit their play list to a few best sellers, a few pick hits of the future and a few golden oldies.

Which isn't bad if you don't mind the repetition, repetition, repetition, repetition ...
Elegant cruise ship or luxurious car ferry... Karagorigis does it with style...

No other cruise line offers such ancient sites, more modern excitement and an unparalleled luxury — and Karagorigis does it with style aboard the superb 25,000-ton Navarino, formerly the Olympia. Experience the ancient splendor of Greece—Olympus, Mycenae, Delos, Delphi, Delphi, Mycenae. Visit Athens, Corfu, Oia, Mykonos, Crete, Rhodes and more.

TAP applications for Tuition Assistance for the 1977-78 academic year must be filed before June 30th or you may not receive credit toward tuition.

TO STUDENTS WHO WOULD LIKE TO EARN $200 (P/T) DOUBLE (F/T)
Every week during school session, the Career Center will have open office hours where you can drop by to pick up your TAP application and answer your questions. Get into GUINNESS with a colorful GUINNESS T-SHIRT. Send $300 (Check or Money Order) TO GUINNESS T-Shirt Offer PO BOX 2484 Reidsville, N.C. 27322 "This movie is not to be missed. Robert Altman's 3 Women is such a stimulating achievement in cinematic art that it makes one rethink the whole aesthetic of motion pictures."

This is the end of Page 2. It has been doing. NYPIRG is the leading lobbying organization in America. It has been NYPRI's anti-reformists in Albany that forced some legislators to vote for its "extra pay for voting the right way" checks. Now, NYPRI is organizing against selfish, unscrupulous practice by which banks create slum communities by refusing to make mortgage loans. And if you've taking LEAP, or MFTA, or GAF, or the CIA exam, NYPRI's ETS Compliant Service is working to test the tenant before they burn you.

In the upcoming Senate elections you will be asked to decide whether you want PIRG to expand their work to City College. Remember, the $300 PIRG fee is refundable. PIRG TO WORK FOR YOU! If corporations can lobby, so can students.

Nathan Berge, President
The Campus welcomes letters and comments from its readers. All contributions should be typed and submitted to the Editor-in-Chief of The Campus, 350 S. 14th St. and Lincoln Avenue N. Y. 10031.
Holman prize may go to women for first time in 16-year history

By Dale Britich

The Nat Holman Award reads: "To the graduating senior who has brought honor to the College by his scholastic and athletic achievements and has selected to pursue post graduate study in his chosen field." Simple.

But as usual there's a catch. Does "his" refer to a "he" or to any basketball player including a "she," who happens to be a senior? The "she" question, which caused some discussion within the College's athletic office was answered by Holman himself, who wrote:"...It is my recommendation that a graduating Beavers in the Men's Varsity Basketball and/or the Women's Varsity Basketball team be nominated..."

And so, for the first time since its inception in 1981, the award is up for grabs between two women and a man. Pat Samuel, Linda Keirigan and Hugo Bono have been nominated by their respective coaches.

The strike for affirmative action almost did not occur. As women's coach Roberta Casseus tells the tale, "I was looking through the major [College Athletic] awards and saw the Nat Holman Award. I asked if it was only for a man and no one knew. So I asked Nat Holman and he said it wasn't..."

Casseus, who has coached the women for ten years, expalined why she never pushed to get her players the prize. "I always assumed that it went to a male player because a man always wins it...although it says 'to a basketball player,' when the award was initiated the women's team was just starting."

Samuel, who has played under Cassesus for four years commented on her nomination. "I think it's an honor, my parents will be very proud." The 21-year-old forward expressed anger that no woman had ever been considered. "I hope this will set a trend for women in the future to be considered for some of the other major awards." Samuel said she wouldn't be upset if teammate Kerrigan wins, "as long as it's a woman and not a man." No one knew.

Men's Coach Floyd Layne, who nominated Bono, said, "Whatever she qualifies, she should get it...Layne expressed 'hope' that his starting guard would receive the award. 'I had no problem recommending Hugo, he has a high scholastic award as well as athletic.' The coach said that Bono will definitely go on to post graduate work - he's a pre-law and an economics major.

Bono himself was not informed that he had been nominated, and expressed surprise to learn of it. "I have no problem recommending Hugo, he is a high scholastic award as well as athletic." The coach said that Bono will definitely go on to post graduate work - he's a pre-law and an economics major.

Bono has played varsity ball for two years, participating on both CUNY Championship squads.

According to Cassesus, "it seems there have been strong recommendations that all three people under consideration for the award will get it." The Director of the College Fund, said this was made possible due to a donation from the past two years, when no one won the $600 prize. The last recipient was Zarl Taylor in 1973.

Tourney gives booters a kick

The varsity soccer team got a kick out of the Second Annual Metropolitan Intercollegiate Soccer Conference Indoor Tournament held at Pratt Institute.

In the company of such old-time favorites as St. Francis, Brooklyn, C.W. Post and King's Point College, the booters reached the finals before losing to Post, 1-0. "I guess we were all excited after beating a quality team," explained Coach Bay Klava. The Beavers defeated St. Francis in the opening round, 2-1. Last year the Territorials were invited to the National Collegiate Athletic Association's playoffs.

"A lot of people will say 'so what, it was only an indoor tournament,'" said Klava. "The answer is 'so what nothing.' It showed that we have some take. We're looking forward to the fall," he added.